Reds Deploy For Renewed Offensive in Border War

Japanese Assert Enemy Lost 1,500

Tokyo Claims Own Casualties Total Only 200 Men.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Aug. 8.—The Japanese army tonight listed 200 dead and wounded in Siberian border fighting since July 29 and estimated Soviet Russia had lost 1,500 men battling for the heights of Changkufeng.

Soviet troops were reported by a Japanese army communique to be retreating north of the disputed heights, dominating a thin strip of territory along the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier, after an unsuccessful assault on Japanese lines near the summit.

Later the Japanese army at Yuki, Korea, reported new activity on the right flank of Soviet forces at Changkufeng tonight in apparent preparation for a new attack in the disputed zone between Japanese Korea and Russian Siberia.

Japanese Admit Wedge.

These preparations were reported after day-long bombardments.

Japanese asserted the Russian left flank, southeast of Changkufeng, was driven back last night, although army headquarters earlier conceded Soviet forces to the north had driven a wedge to the Tumen River, isolating Japanese troops stationed on the mile-long, 4-mile-wide, 400-foot-high hill overlooking the Tumen River and Khassan Lake. The Japanese had denied a Sunday announcement in Moscow that all Japanese troops had been driven from the area in dispute.

Claim 100 Tanks Damaged.

A Japanese officer returning from the front said today 14 Soviet planes dropped ten small bombs and took turns machine gunning his staff car. The machine was not hit, however.

Bitter hand-to-hand fighting resulted when Soviet troops, covered by an intensive artillery barrage, advanced on the 4-mile-long heights.

A Japanese army communique declared 100 Soviet tanks had been damaged since the outbreak of frontier fighting and that six Red airplanes had been downed. The Changkufeng sector was said to be quieter today.

Another communique related statements made by two Soviet infantrymen who surrendered to the Japanese. It quoted them as saying Red army morale was very low.

"Purge" Is Extended.

They reported a Russian tank corps commander who planned to surrender his entire unit was executed and a "purge," which hitherto had affected only officers, now extended to the lowest ranks.

The Foreign Office disclosed that the Ambassador to Moscow, Mamoru Shigemitsu, repeated Japan's request for a joint border commission to be appointed to mark the frontier, and said the Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinoff, agreed "in principle."

The main stumbling block to this plan when suggested previously was Japan's desire for a tripartite commission composed of three Japanese, three Russians and three representatives of Japan's protectorate of Manchoukuo. It was not stated whether Japan was prepared to modify this condition.

(Yesterday in Moscow, Litvinoff proposed a commission to be composed of two Russians, and one rep-

President to Receive Degree From University of Georgia; Plans Address at Scene of Electrification Project.

Aboard U. S. S. Houston, Aug. 8 (AP).—(Via Naval Radio)—President Roosevelt tonight was nearing the end of his vacation cruise aboard the cruiser Houston.

The Houston late today had less than 250 miles to run before completing its 5,888-mile voyage, which the President started on July 16 and which will end early tomorrow afternoon at Pensacola, Fla.

Mr. Roosevelt is scheduled to speak Thursday at Athens, Ga., where he will receive an honorary degree from the University of Georgia, and at Barnesville, Ga., where he will dedicate a rural electrification project.

He intends to inspect the Naval air station at Pensacola, and later board a train, arriving in Warm Springs, Ga., Wednesday. After a day there, he will proceed to Washington by way of Athens and Barnesville. He expects to arrive in Washington Friday afternoon.

Sudeten Slain, Berlin's Press Cries 'Terror'

Nephew of Benes Declares Runciman Must Judge Aggressor in War.

By Walter B. Keer.
Special Cable to The Post.

Prague, Aug. 8.—The ominous silence which settled over Czechoslovakia with the arrival of Lord Runciman as mediator between the republic and its Sudeten German minority, was shattered today.

At Glaserwald, on the southwestern frontier, a 28-year-old Sudeten was stabbed to death after a barroom quarrel with Germans loyal to the state.

[An official report on the slaying of the Sudeten German, Wenzel Baierle, was closed with a recommendation for increasing the strength of the constabulary in remote districts where the possibilities exist of heated arguments over Czechoslovakia's minority problems, the Associated Press said.

[Authorities said Robert Holden confessed the stabbing. Holden lived in Vienna the last 28 years, but fled Austria when Germany annexed the country.

[The Berlin press carried banner headlines reading "New Czech Terror Wave" and "Another Czech Murder."

[The Boersen Zeitung commented sharply that "the German people no longer are ready now or in the future to look on and tolerate the fact that Germans are harrassed only because of their nationality and are made the game of un-

GHA Doctor Fights Medical Society Ouster

Brief to A. M. A. Contends D. C. Group Violated Its Constitution.

Dr. Mario Scandiffio yesterday delivered the latest thrust in the duel between the Group Health Association and the District Medical Society by appealing the society's action in expelling him from membership last March, five months after he had joined the clinic staff of G. H. A.

The appeal was addressed to the judicial council of the American Medical Association, of which the local society is a unit. Through his attorney, E. K. Newman, Dr. Scandiffio requested a review of the expulsion proceedings and an order reinstating him to membership.

The five-page brief contends that the Medical Society ousted him for "violating" three provisions of its constitution—provisions which, according to Dr. Scandiffio, the society never was empowered to pass or to enforce.

A Congressional act limiting the society's powers in 1924, the brief contends, refers to its purpose as solely one of "promoting and disseminating medical and surgical knowledge."

Thus the organization "stepped beyond its powers" in establishing "rules of conduct for membership," and such rules "cannot be used as a basis for the expulsion of a member," it is argued.

Dr. Scandiffio listed the provisions which he was alleged to have violated as section 1 of the Constitution, forbidding members to sign

Guerrillas Hold Huge Area Behind Japan's Chinese Line

By the Associated Press.

Chinese Guerrilla Headquarters, central Hopeh Province, China, August 8.—Communist agents and patriotic students are directing a Chinese mass movement against Japan which is sweeping the towns and villages of North China.

The movement is guarded by the machine guns of guerrilla armies which now control two-thirds of the territory behind the Japanese advance lines.

The entire provinces of Hopeh, Shansi, and Shantung are now included in the anti-Japanese movement except for narrow strips along the railways where the flash of Japanese bayonets is visible.

A Chinese leader of the movement, a 26-year-old graduate of Peiping National University, told the Associated Press:

"Our first purpose is to enroll every farmer, his wife, and his children in some kind of organization, whether it be a farmers' union, chamber of commerce, women's association, or the 'Little Vanguards,' (formerly the Boy Scouts). We can spread anti-Japanism through these societies."

4 States End Hot Primary Fights Today

Ohio, Arkansas, Idaho and Nebraska Voters to Cast Ballots.

President's Speech Tomorrow Expected to Attack George.

By William V. Nessly.

Primary elections in four States today divide political interest in the Capital with President Roosevelt's scheduled landing at Pensacola, Fla., on the last lap of a trip widely-heralded as intended to aid liberal candidates in the Democratic intra-party contests.

The primaries today:

OHIO—Senator Bulkley (Democrat), opposed by former Gov. George White; Robert A. Taft contesting with Arthur H. Day for the G. O. P. Senate nomination; Gov. Martin L. Davey (Democrat) seeking renomination over Charles Sawyer; 24, Congressmen seeking to return.

ARKANSAS — Senator Hattie Caraway and Representative John L. McClellan in a hot race for the Democratic Senate nomination; Gov. Carl Bailey trying for a second term with two opponents; seven National Representatives asking renomination.

IDAHO.—Senator James E. Pope (Democrat) opposed for renomination by Representative D. Worth Clark; three seeking G. O. P. Senate nomination; Gov. B. W. Clark with three opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial selection; two Representatives to be nominated by each party.

NEBRASKA.—Gov. R. L. Cochran (Democrat) and five Representatives in Congress seeking renomination.

A. F. of L. Backs George.

As three New Deal Senators battled opposition in Ohio, Idaho and Arkansas, Mr. Roosevelt was preparing a speech, to be delivered at Barnesville, Ga., Thursday, generally expected to be in opposition to renomination of Senator Walter F. George, opponent of several important New Deal measures.

There were other political situations and developments that served to color the general picture. They were:

The National Emergency Council prepared to deliver to Mr. Roosevelt at once, for possible use before he moves north, its report on economic conditions in the South, recently termed by the President the Nation's "No. 1 economic problem."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, revealed the A. F. of L. had indorsed Senator George, opposed by both the President and John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, encountering difficulties in obtaining accurate information from candidates planned to ask legislation that would give the Senate's bi-ennial committee greater authority.

Hamilton Hopeful.

John Hamilton, G. O. P. National chairman, saw in the more than 200,000 votes cast against Senator Alben W. Barkley, Senate majority leader, in Kentucky, an indication Republicans will make big gains in the November voting.

Social Security Board officials said "administrative discrepancies," as well as alleged political

Chrysler's Wife Dies; 2 Children, Husband at Side

Great Neck, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler, wife of the automobile manufacturer, died at her home at 6 p. m., E. S. T., tonight after a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Chrysler was stricken earlier in the day and was placed in an iron lung, and oxygen was administered continuously. She had been treated several months for high blood pressure, her son, Walter, jr., said. She complained after dinner Sunday night of feeling ill and retired early. Chrysler, who also has been confined to his Kings Point estate, arose shortly after 2 a. m., found his wife unconscious and called medical aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler, jr., and Mrs. Byron Foy, who dined at the Chrysler estate last evening, were at the bedside with Mr. Chrysler. Mrs. Foy is the former Thelma Chrysler, first child of the auto magnate.

Mrs. Chrysler is the former Della V. Forker, who became engaged to the millionaire automobile manufacturer when as a railroad man in Ellis, Kans., he was earning only $1.50 a day. Her father was the town's leading merchant.

Earle Inquiry Up to Highest State Court

Harrisburg Judge Says Legislative Probe Is Unconstitutional.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 8.—Gov. George H. Earle's plan to substitute a legislative committee for the grand jury in the investigation of charges against himself and 13 associates was ruled unconstitutional today as an "invasion of judicial power."

An appeal from today's opinion of Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, specially assigned to Dauphin County (Harrisburg), for the court inquiry, was taken immediately to the State Supreme Court by Attorney General Guy K. Bard and the chairman of the legislative committee.

Chief Justice John W. Kephart said that he would hold a hearing tomorrow.

Laws Passed Week Ago.

The laws in question, passed a week ago at a special legislative session, would suspend the Dauphin County grand jury inquiry into the charges of blackmail, extortion and coercion for political purposes in the spring primary campaign, and would give the legislature prior right to conduct such an investigation of civil office holders, with a view to impeachment first and criminal action second, if found guilty.

Schaeffer withheld a decision on the validity of a third act—allowing the attorney general to supersede a county prosecutor in a criminal case—but ruled that in this particular case Attorney General Bard should be kept out of the proceedings. Bard was disqualified, Schaeffer decided, because the governor, who appointed him, was named in the charges.

Schaeffer also refused to lift a previous order impounding material District Attorney Carl B. Shelley has accumulated for the grand jury inquiry, scheduled to start today but postponed until the appeal is decided.

To Appear Today.

Shelley and Earle's former attorney general, Charles J. Margiotti, who made the charges against Earle and the others, are scheduled to appear tomorrow before the House investigating committee.

Shelley was the first—and only witness—called by the committee. He refused to testify about his material, because he claimed that he would violate the court's order.

After holding the new laws invaded judicial powers, Judge Schaeffer added:

Constitution at Stake.

He held that "the grand jury is an integral part of the constitutional criminal courts and, as such, in all essential respects, is beyond the control of the Legislature as a coordinate branch of the government."

He said his ruling "does not mean that the General Assembly or the House of Representatives may not conduct its own investigation" but that "it is only right and proper that • • • this court should safeguard its evidence until considered by the grand jury."

Prisoner Declares He's Charles Bird, 'Enemy Number 2'

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—Armed detectives tonight captured a couple sought in several robberies here and Capt. of Detectives John A. Cooney said the man identified himself as Charles Bird and the woman as his wife, Barbara.

Bird said "What's the use" and both he and his wife surrendered.

Bird is the last of the notorious Bird Gang that escaped from Cleveland's county jail September 23, 1937.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, ranked the fugitive Charles Bird on November 6, 1936 as "Public Enemy No. 2."

13 Playgrounds Are Thrown Open

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A mass attack on Washington's tangled traffic problem was called for yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen as final arrangements were completed to combat child deaths by providing additional city-wide playgrounds and roped-off streets.

Prepared to launch a long-range safety program and stem the recent wave of child and adult casualties, Hazen announced he had summoned citizen groups and traffic officials for a District Building meeting at 10 a. m., Friday.

With 13 new playgrounds opened yesterday — bringing the total available play spots to 73—police and American Automobile Association safety directors adopted a tentative 7-point program to protect the city's youngsters during the remaining summer months.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, announced also that several streets in scattered sections of the District had been approved by his precinct commanders as roped-off play streets. Final action on this phase of the city's new safety program awaits approval of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

To the safety rally Friday, Hazen summoned police and traffic authorities, playground heads, public school officials, auto club representatives and spokesmen for the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A. A. A. Maps Program.

"We are going to attack the problem from all angles," said Hazen. "We are going to seek an answer to the horrible killing of little children and we are going to act to prevent needless deaths among adults. We want to plan for the future and find a continuing solution for all our traffic troubles."

A strict program of safety education and supervision for the District's newly opened playgrounds was decided upon at yesterday's conference at A. A. A. headquarters. The tentative schedule provides:

Children leaving playground will be escorted home by schoolboy patrolmen.

Policemen will visit the ground to give safety talks.

Locations of playground will be widely advertised.

Efforts will be made to provide adequate playground leadership.

The supervising personnel at all play yards will be increased.

Improved and increased physical equipment will be sought.

A program of beautification will be undertaken to make playgrounds more attractive to youngsters.

Schoolboy Patrols Aid.

It was announced also that schoolboy patrolmen will tour the vicinities of playgrounds and encourage children playing in the streets to take advantage of the newly provided safeguards.

In emphasizing the need for off-street play facilities, Richard Ham, A. A. A. safety director, pointed out that during the period from June 1 to August 8 last year, there were only two youngsters killed in traffic.

"However," said Ham, "during the same period this year, 9 children have been killed. This is an increase of almost 500 per cent and accident reports indicate the majority were of pre-school age."

Attending the conference was Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, director of the

Carroll Jury Told of Death Threat to Boy

Dwyer's Lawyer Says Fear of Girl's Father Was Guilty Plea Cause.

By the United Press.

South Paris, Me., Aug 8.—Alleged death threats that forced 19-year-old Paul (Buddy) Dwyer to confess two murders he now says he did not commit were described to an Oxford County jury today as 15 State witnesses testified at the trial of the so-called "real slayer"—former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll. Carroll's wife and 17-year-old daughter, Barbara, were present, but the latter was not a witness as anticipated.

On the morning of last December 2, in the midst of Dwyer's trial for the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, the youthful defendant purportedly told his attorney, E. Walker Abbott:

"I've got to plead guilty to this murder. I can't go through with it. My life has been threatened and my mother's life has been threatened. I'm going to get out of here where I can be by myself."

This statement was repeated by Abbott today to the jury that must decide whether Carroll, the deputy

Code of Ethics May End Ford, Chrysler Suits

Consent Decree Tentatively Approved in Finance Company Cases.

By the Associated Press.

The Justice Department tentatively approved yesterday a proposed consent decree designed to eliminate practices which prompted antitrust action against the Ford Motor Co. and the Chrysler Corporation.

The decree, which establishes a code of business ethics for manufacturer-affiliated automobile finance companies, is subject to approval of the Federal District Court at South Bend, Ind.

A Federal grand jury there on May 27 indicted the Ford and Chrysler companies, General Motors Corporation, their affiliated finance companies and 40 individuals on charges of violating the Sherman antitrust act.

Department officials withheld details of the proposed decree.

The Government has objected particularly to manufacturers requiring dealers to insist that customers finance their purchases through manufacturer - affiliated companies.

Lie Detector Shows Corrigan Was Fooling About Mistake

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug 8.—A "lie detector" tonight showed that Douglas Corrigan was fooling when he said he "certainly" started for California on the flight which ended in Dublin.

The test was made at a dinner given by Dr. William Moulton Marston, New York psychologist.

"Because Douglas may have deceived himself in his flight across the Atlantic, we are offering this test of self-deception," Mayor Maurice J. Tobin said.

"Did you really start for California?" Dr. Marston asked Corrigan.

"Certainly," Corrigan replied, but his voice was feeble.

Dr. Marston looked at his chart. "I'm really sorry to say there is a slight rise her... he said. The crowd roared.

The dinner climaxed a crowded day during which Boston honored the flier.

"This was my second trip over Boston Airport," he told the crowd which welcomed him.

"Only, the first time," he chuckled, "I thought it was Baltimore. I realize now, of course, that it was Boston."

Gov. Chandler Admits Defeat; To Aid Barkley

Senator's Lead Increases to 60,000 as Rival Pledges Support.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—Renomination conceded, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley tonight had a lead of more than 60,000 votes over Gov. A. B. Chandler as additional returns from Saturday's Democratic Senatorial primary were tabulated.

Gov. Chandler from the mansion at Frankfort conceded his defeat in a congratulatory telegram in which he pledged his active support to Barkley in the November general election. The Senator, at Paducah, replied thanking the governor for his message.

Mrs. Chandler at Frankfort in an interview charged her husband's defeat was due to Federal money promised or spent" in Kentucky.

118 Counties Complete.

The latest unofficial tabulation from 4,058 precincts out of 4,313 in the State with 118 of the 120 counties reporting complete, gave:

Barkley, 274,131.
Chandler, 213,800.
Majority for Barkley, 60,331.

The usual slow count in Jefferson County (Louisville) showed Barkley continuing his tremendous gains. With 384 of 621 precincts counted, Barkley had 30,847 votes to 10,487 for Chandler. Tabulation was stopped at 5:30 p. m. for the night.

Only a few precincts had been counted when Breathitt County took a recess until tomorrow. The count was delayed because of the killing of one election official and the shooting of two more—one also an election officer—in pre-primary gunplay.

Haswell Leads Republicans.

In the Republican Senatorial primary John P. Haswell, backed by the State G. O. P. organization, had a big lead over his opponents on the basis of unofficial returns from 2,160 precincts. Haswell had 16,050 to 4,558 for his nearest rival, Andrew O. Ritchie. Tabulation in 65 counties was complete.

From unofficial returns it was apparent all incumbent Representatives, eight Democrats and one Republican had been renominated.

In Washington Senator Burke, Nebraska Democrat, who frequently has opposed the Administration, suggested Barkley's victory "put him in the running as one of the contenders for the Presidential nomination in 1940." Burke added to reporters, however, "But I am for (Vice President) Garner. I have just one choice."

GHA Physician Fights Medical Society Ouster

contracts with any organization "under conditions which make it impossible to render adequate service to the patient;" section 2, requiring members to submit any such contract to the society for approval, and section 5, providing that "no member shall engage in a professional capacity with any organization group or individual engaged in medical practice" which has not been approved by the society.

The expelled physician revealed in the brief that he attempted to resign from the Medical Society three days before joining G. H. A., that his resignation was not accepted, that subsequently he submitted for approval his proposed contract with G. H. A. and that the society took no action on the contract.

Furthermore, he declares, G. H. A. is not "engaged in the practice of medicine" and consequently section 5 of the society's constitution is not applicable "even if found to be a valid rule" enforceable by the society.

As for the rule requiring approval of all contracts, Dr. Scandiffio claims many members of the society are engaged in contract practices without previously having secured approval from the membership.

The final point in the brief is a reference to the case of Group Health Association vs. Moor et al., decided in District Court July 27, which classifies G. H. A. as a "legal organization not engaged in the practice of medicine."

On the basis of this decision, Dr. Scandiffio claims "the society acted illegally in attempting to regulate the professional relationship of the appellant where such relationship is with a legal organization" and where it is not charged that such relationship is "unethical, illegal or immoral."

The physician's expulsion March 16 by a majority vote of the society's membership followed a five-week hearing. The "sole issue involved," according to the official announcement at that time, was "whether Dr. Scandiffio has violated certain rules of the society that have been in effect for many years, concerning the eligibility of physicians for membership."

Meanwhile President Roosevelt's view that health is a "public problem" was stressed last night in a radio address by Oscar L. Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior and member of the Interdepartmental Committee to Co-ordinate Health and Welfare activities.

Chapman, on a national broadcasting network, reviewed discussions at the recent National Health Conference, in which divergent viewpoints among medical and other groups were expressed in discussion of a technical committee study looking toward an $850,000,000 a year program.

"You may have seen this national health program referred to as 'socialized medicine'" Chapman remarked. "I do not know just what 'socialized medicine' is. If it means the provision of better medical care for every man, woman and child in America, I am in favor of it, whatever the tag or label applied . . .

"It was evident from the discussion at the conference that public opinion was much more advanced, more prepared for action on a national front, than many of us in the Government service had realized."

Carola Goya Asks Larger Stage For 2 Groups of Solo Dancers

Dr. Kindler to Return and Lead Symphony in Season Finale; Hoogstraten to Conduct Tomorrow Night.

At its final concert in the Sunset Symphony series August 17 at the potomac Watergate, the National Symphony Orchestra will feature Carola Goya, Spanish dancer; as soloist, it was announced last night by C. C. Cappel, manager. Dr. Hans Kindler will return to Washington to conduct the symphony in its farewell performance this season.

Miss Goya will appear during the second half of the program in two groups of Spanish dances on a stage considerably enlarged. Yesterday the dancer was in Washington to check the size of the stage and lighting arrangements.

The soloist's only previous appearance in Washington was at a White House recital.

Her performance, requiring six changes of costume will include a dance from De Falla's "La Vida and the intermezzo from "Boyescas," Breve," Albeniz's tango in D major, Granados' "Rondalla Aragonesa," Lecuona's "Malaguena Gittanilla" and Retana's "Fado Blanquita." The orchestral numbers are to be announced.

The next concert at the Watergate will be tomorrow night with the Dutch conductor, William van Hoogstraten, as guest leader in a program that includes Beethoven's "Fidelio" overture and eighth symphony; Strauss' tone-poem, "Don Juan;" Liadov's eighth Russian folk songs, Debussy's "Festivals" and three Hungarian dances of Brahms. Tickets are on sale at the Julius Garfinckel store and the A. A. A. ticket bureau.

Voters in 4 States Go to Polls Today to Settle Hot Primaries

Primaries

activity by Gov. Martin L. Davey among Ohio's old age pensioners caused the order for a hearing on whether Federal funds shall be withheld from the Ohio pension set-up.

While some doubt was expressed that Mr. Roosevelt would directly call for defeat of Senator George in his Barnesville speech it was considered probable he would make a determined plea for New Deal philosophy and objectives. Possibility that he would utilize the NEC reports in this effort to keep the entire South back of his Administration was considered strong. The report is the outgrowth of the recent meeting here of Southern industrialists, farmers and others, called by Lowell Mellett, NEC head, to consider formulae for bettering conditions throughout Dixie.

U. S. Attorney Is Rival.

George was one of the original nine members of the Senate Judiciary Committee who fought and eventually killed the President's court plan. Early talks of a Democratic Party "purge" centered around these nine Senators. However, George is conceded strength with Georgia voters, and numerous observers have expressed doubt that Camp can defeat him unless President Roosevelt should go farther than he has to date in behalf of Camp.

The primary is September 6.

Green said George had been indorsed by the A. F. of L. as having a "100 per cent labor record." The indorsement was given in a letter to the president of the Georgia State Federation of Labor, written last Thursday. However, the C. I. O Labor's Non-Partisan League has placed George on its "blacklist" for opposition to measures favored by the Lewis organization.

Amendment Bid Possible.

Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the campaign expenditures committee, indicated a Constitutional amendment will be sought, if necessary, to give the Senate adequate authority in its campaign investigating. The Supreme Court has held that the corrupt practices act did not apply to primaries, which are governed exclusively by the States.

The only weapon in the hands of the Senate, so far as primaries are concerned, is the right to refuse to seat a successful candidate if it is found he or his backers spent money excessively or engaged in other practices considered improper.

Sheppard already has hinted possibility of the present Senate committee recommending such action in the case of the Tennessee and Kentucky elections.

Silent on McClellan Charge.

The committee yesterday decided to issue no statement at present regarding charges by McClellan that Federal officials were interfering in the Arkansas race on behalf of Senator Caraway. However, its investigation will continue.

Hamilton's statement on the renomination of Senator Barkley said:

"What has happened in Kentucky can be counted only as an omen of Republican success this fall. In that Democratic primary contest President Roosevelt and the New Deal were the issue. Mr. Roosevelt personally injected himself into it. The New Deal spending agencies flooded the State with money * * * Senator Barkley's managers in the closing hours of the campaign pleaded with Democrats of Kentucky not to humiliate the President by voting for Gov. Chandler. There could be no clearer issue.

"Yet 200,000 or more Kentucky Democrats voted for Gov. Chandler. If that is the way Democrats feel about the President, it is clear that Republicans will be elected in large numbers this fall in such States as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and a dozen others where the two major parties are more evenly balanced than they are in Kentucky.

The Social Security Board's move to withdraw Federal old age pension funds from Ohio followed charges letters urging Gov. Davey's renomination had been sent to the pensioners. Davey called the move a "desperate eleventh-hour effort of our political enemies."

Board officials replied only with the assertion that "administrative discrepancies" also had prompted the move, and that the hearing would have been called even had there been no political activity.

The New Deal is a well-defined issue in the Idaho voting. Senator Pope is a staunch supporter of the President. Clark is a conservative who has opposed some Administration moves.

Gov. Clark, uncle of the Representative, is opposed by Former Gov. Ben Ross, Lieut. Gov. C. C. Gossett and W. P. Whitaker in the Democratic gubernatorial race. C. A. Bottolfson and R. H. Young seek the G. O. P. nomination.

Representative Compton I. White is unopposed in the primary, but nine Democrats and two Republicans are after the nominations for Clark's House seat.

Ohio's outstanding fights were those for the Republican Senate nomination, and the Davey-Sawyer Governorship fight in the Democratic ranks.

'Officers' Reveal Volunteer Movement During Warren Strike.

By the Associated Press.

Citizens of Warren, Ohio, told the Senate Civil Liberties Committee yesterday an elaborate volunteer "army" was organized to maintain law and order during last year's strike in "Little Steel."

William A. Porteous and William C. Burbank, officers in the "army," testified, however, it was never actually mobilized because 24 hours after organization plans were completed, the Ohio National Guard had taken charge of the strike area.

Both told the committee the plan was to have the mayor deputize and bond the men as special police. Upon his call they were to assemble, bringing with them their own shotguns, the witnesses said. A few guns were provided by the leaders, they added.

The day also added to the committee's record evidence of intense activity by citizens' groups, one of them known as the "John Q. Public League" and by members of the Chamber of Commerce and a citizens' committee, directed at the "maintenance of law and order."

Witness Reprimanded.

In addition, Chairman La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, reprimanded one witness, Edward J. Mulligan, calling his testimony "very evasive." Mulligan, a worker in the Republic Steel mill, had difficulty in recalling activities during the strike, for which Republic paid him full salary and maintained him in a Warren hotel.

There was testimony, too, that Sidney J. Warwick, an officer of the "Silver Legion," attended a meeting of the "John Q. Public League" upon the invitation of Howard H. Luse of Warren, and at a previous meting of another and unidentified group held in Luse's home a speaker had predicted the assassination of President Roosevelt. Luse denied any such statement was made in his home.

Other testimony disclosed that negotiations between union leaders and the Republic mill management concerning the peaceful conduct of the strike were broken off by a riot which Sheriff Roy Hardman testified was started by men in the mill.

Tension at High Point.

When the volunteer army was formed, strike tension had reached a high point. Witnesses said some 2,000 workers, in the mill constantly for more than three weeks, were growing restless, and threatening to "march out," which meant sure trouble with the pickets outside. Moreover, they asserted the "vigilante movement" was growing. The possible consequences of a brush between pickets and nonstrikers and vigilantes were considered alarming.

After consultations with the mayor and director of safety, leaders of the citizens committee set about the organization of an army of volunteers. George Pinkerton was selected as "general." He chose colonels, who chose lieutenant colonels, who selected captains, who named lieutenants, who recruited the privates.

On Sunday, June 20, some 30 leaders attended an organization meeting. Porteous said they talked about whether the "city could obtain uniforms and arms and badges." It was finally decided that ribbons stamped "special police" would suffice and that the members would provide their own shotguns, "lending" them to the city.

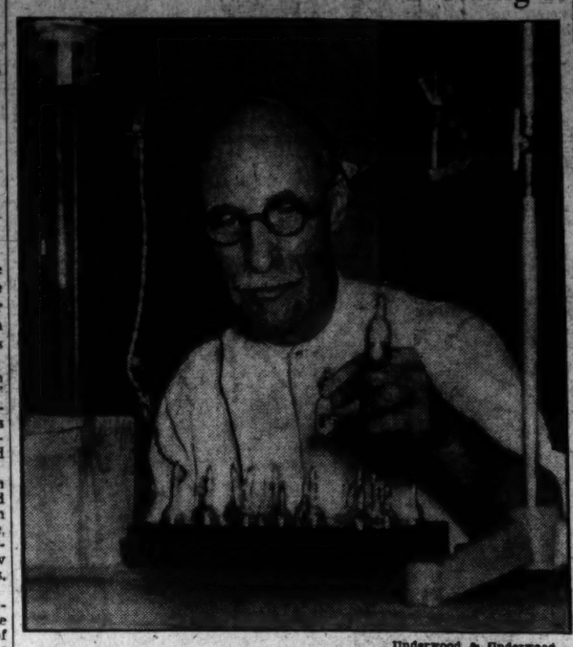
Denies Secrecy.

"There was a clamor to get into the organization," Porteous said. "And I assure you there was nothing secret about it. I was a captain and I picked two lieutenants."

Both Porteous and Burbank said reports of communistic activities in connection with the strike, rumors of dynamite and TNT being brought into the city and "anarchists from Akron," had created an unusual tension and led to a "vigilante movement."

"We thought it might stop the vigilante movement," said Burbank, "and that they would much prefer to join a special group to be used as special police."

Cools Water to -6 Without Freezing It



Underwood & Underwood.

Dr. N. Ernest Dorsey is shown in his Bureau of Standards laboratory working on his formula for producing liquid water 38 degrees below its freezing point.

Savant Finds Non-Freezing H20; 'Sno Use!

Contrary to popular belief, water does not freeze at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the so-called freezing temperature. Neither does all water freeze at the same temperature.

These are the findings of Dr. N. Ernest Dorsey, scientist of the National Bureau of Standards, who has been experimenting with 37 specimens of water taken from lakes, canals and other sources.

He cooled water until it was minus 6 degrees Fahrenheit—that is, 38 degrees colder than the so-called freezing point of 32 degrees. Yet it remained liquid.

In all cases the water did not freeze until subjected to a temperature below the 32-degree mark. Dr. Dorsey found that water, when first heated and then cooled, required a lower temperature for freezing.

Dr. Dorsey found that the temperature in which water froze depended on the motes, or particles, in the water itself. And he found that these vary.

Asked what practical value his "super-cool" water possessed, Dr. Dorsey replied, "None." He said it was cooled under ordinary methods and would not retain its coolness on picnics. Neither could it be used in air-cooling systems, he said.

TVA Aide Denies Crookedness in Phosphate Deal

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 8 (AP).—Dr. Harry A. Curtis, chief TVA chemical engineer, told a congressional investigation committee today there was "no crookedness" in the authority's purchase of phosphate lands in middle Tennessee.

Dr. Curtis, who negotiated the deal with the International Agricultural Corporation last year, testified for the third time regarding the transaction by which the company made a profit of $530,000 on an investment of $148,000.

"You will not find anything crooked about this deal as Mr. Wolverton has inferred in his questioning," Dr. Curtis declared. "I am too old to indulge in any skullduggery."

He referred to Representative Wolverton (Republican), of New Jersey, who has subjected him to vigorous cross-examination about his part in the deal.

$2,500,000 Irish Stakes Tickets Seized on Ship

By the Associated Press.

Stephen B. Gibbons, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, announced seizure of $2,500,000 worth of Irish Sweepstakes tickets yesterday from the hold of the Steamer Capulin at Philadelphia.

Gibbons said the tickets were not manifested on the ship's Log. The vessel sailed from Hamburg, Germany, and had docked at Norfolk, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

O'Connor Says He Fought for Free Congress

Rules Committee Chairman Denies He's 100 Per Cent New Dealer.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 8.—Representative John J. O'Connor, Democratic chairman of the House Rules Committee, whose defeat is being sought by all-the-way New Dealers, told a Republican gathering tonight he had made "untiring efforts to assert the independence of Congress from inroads by the executive department."

At the same time, in a speech prepared for the Nathan Hale Republican Club formally accepting Republican support, he attacked Republican National Committeeman Kenneth Simpson as the only important New York party leader who had "been adamant against joining with all the other Republicans in the movement" for that support.

"For a reason or an alibi—call it what you will—he (Simpson) has waved, daily and nightly, a copy of a letter I wrote months ago . . . before Congress adjourned and without any thought of the election," said O'Connor.

"He has conveniently placed his own interpretation on that letter. That 'interpretation,' from his lips, mind you, is that I have been a '100 per cent New Dealer'—that I never swerved from the path of the 'rubber stamps.' Well, if he can persuade the Republicans of this district on that he is a better politician than I accredit him."

"He will have to slide over my fight against the reorganization bill. He will have to blue pencil my activities in behalf of the complete repeal of the corporate surplus undivided profits tax. He will have to obliterate from the record of untiring efforts to assert the independence of Congress from inroads by the executive department."

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—Voluminous briefs reviewing the long and acrimonious suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union and the Committee for Industrial Organization to enjoin Mayor Frank Hague and other Jersey City officials from interfering with their activities were filed in the United States district court today by opposing counsel.

Judge William Clark, who heard the case, has given each side ten days to file answering briefs, and is expected to hand down his decision during the first week in September.

Mayor Hague's counsel, in a 98-page brief, denounced the motives of the plaintiffs, stating "the real truth about the whole business . . . is that a group of subversive-minded, publicity-seeking radicals, euphemistically called the American Civil Liberties Union, have conspired with some radicals of the left wing of the C. I. O. to injure the official and political leadership of the defendant, Mayor Hague, as Mayor of Jersey City, and as vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in order to gain a politico-labor control of the City of Jersey City and ultimately of the State of New Jersey."

Contractor Sues District Heads for $28,200 Balance

Charging the District Commissioners with having failed to carry out a contract for one of the units at the Districtof Columbia Tuberculosis Hospital at Glenn Dale, Md., and withholding a payment of $28,200, Walter Kidde Construction, Inc., of New York City, yesterday in District Court filed suit for that amount together with interest from March 14, 1937.

The suit asserted that from time to time the Engineer Commissioner ordered changes in the specifications, thus bringing about numerous delays.

Under the contract, according to the suit, the Commissioners had the right to suspend work, but a corresponding extension of time was to be granted the contractors. A total of $851,219.20 was paid the builder.

Uniforms Loaned To Film Director By Marine Band

New Air Board, Administrator Assume Offices

Authority to Regulate All Phases of Civil Aviation Activities.

Headed by Chairman Edward J. Noble, members of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and its administrator, Clinton M. Hester, yesterday took the oath of office, bringing into being the first Government agency charged with the regulation of the whole field of United States commercial and private aviation.

In assuming his new duties, Noble stated aviation's rapid development and limitless possibilities require a dynamic organization, quickly adaptable to changing conditions; yet efficient, dependable, business-like.

"The Aeronautics Authority," he added, "also hopes to promote, through high safety standards, the public's growing confidence in air transportation."

Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the United States Court of Appeals for the District, who administered the oath, said the new organization is an example "of the way democratic government creates new regulatory bodies to meet changing conditions," and hailed the occasion as "significant and of historic importance."

Johnson's Work to Change.

Shortly after the conclusion of the ceremonies Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson said that some reallocation of the work of his department was under consideration. Explaining that the Bureau of Air Commerce, formerly under his supervision, is being transferred to the new authority, he said he expected to be given charge of the Bureau of Standards, now operating under Assistant Secretary Richard C. Patterson, jr.

Until the Civil Aeronautics act becomes effective on August 22, the authority will devote its time to setting up a detailed system of administering air-mail contracts, supervising commercial air lines and private flyers and studying aviation safety.

The functions of the Authority will be divided between the five-man board, making quasi-judicial decisions; the three-man safety board; and Administrator Hester, former assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department, who helped write the Civil Aeronautics Act.

In Civil Service 20 Years.

A civil servant of 20 years standing, Hester came here shortly after the World War as an employee of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Later he was on the staff of the Alien Property Custodian and then was attached to the Justice Department.

Noble, who announced his aim is to make the agency as successful in regulating aviation as the Interstate Commerce Commission has been in supervising railroads, makes his home in Greenwich, Conn., and is a nationally-known candy manufacturer.

The vice-chairman of the Authority, Harllee Branch, before his appointment was Second Assistant Postmaster General. Other members are Oswald Ryan, fromer general counsel of the Federal Power Commission; G. Grant Mason, who has been with Pan-American Airways for many years; and Robert Hinckley, WPA administrator of the Far Western States.

The agency is the first major Federal unit in which executive control has been separated from a regulatory board. Some of President Roosevelt's advisors hope the experiment may prove feasible for use in reorganizing various other independent offices and commissions.

Nazi Ocean Plane To Wait for Balbo

Berlin, Aug. 8 (AP).—The projected flight of a Focke Wulff airplane from Berlin to New York was postponed today until next week to permit Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of Italian Libya, to witness the take-off.

Balbo, who led a transatlantic flight of 24 Italian planes from Italy to Chicago in 1933, is scheduled to arrive tomorrow for a visit of several days at the invitation of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

The route is by way of Lisbon and the 24-passenger plane will be in command of Capt. Henke, of the Lufthansa Air Line. There will be four crewmen and no passengers.

Adirondacks Storm Wrecks Power Lines

Chestertown, N. Y., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Hail stones reported "large as hens' eggs" fell in this Adirondack village late today in a storm which felled power and telephone lines.

Heavy rain and wind accompanying the hail washed out several roads and blocked others with uprooted trees.

Residents described the storm as the worst in the village's history.

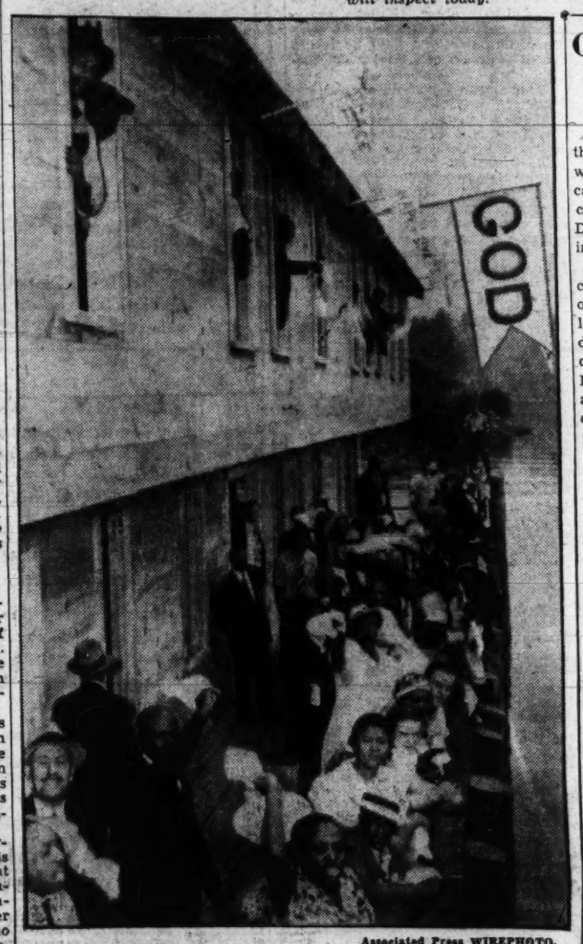
Father and Mother Divine Sit Down to Heavenly Feast

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Father Divine rings a dinner bell to signal his followers it is time to feast at the Milton "heaven" at Milton, N. Y. Seated next to the Harlem cult leader is Mother Divine. Father Divine and 2,000 followers stopped at Milton en route to their new "Kingdom of Heaven" at Krum Elbow, N. Y., which they will inspect today.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Followers of Father Devine are shown as they awaited the arrival of the Harlem cult leader and two boatloads of the faithful coming to Krum Elbow-on-the-Hudson to inspect their new "promised land" estate. For days a select few have been preparing the "heaven" for this excursion.

Father Divine's Flock Enters Land of Soda Pop, Ice Cream

By the Associated Press.

Krum-Elbow-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The children of Father Divine today entered into a land overflowing with soda pop, fried chicken and ice cream!

There was set before them a great feast that all might eat for on the morrow—

Mosquitoes Get Busy.

Chanting their cry of "peace" and wolfing watermelons, 2,000 of the colored Messiah's disciples set out from New York this morning on their journey to the promised land aboard two excursion boats.

Docking at the Milton (N. J.), "heaven," a few miles from here, the singing, shouting angels sat down to a three-hour feast amid a swarm of mosquitoes which, said one white-clad angel, "don't have no regard for holiness."

Father Divine himself, who is "god" to thousands in Harlem, presided at the picnic, smiling beginly on his followers and slapping at mosquitoes with the rest.

Test of Roosevelt.

After spending the night at the Kingston "heaven" and others among the 40-odd rural retreats established by the cult, the pilgrims intend to inspect their new property tomorrow.

Howland Spencer, who sold his ancestral acres and home to the divine angels, said his reason for disposal was "to test the theories of Roosevelt against those of Father Divine."

Divine intends to establish a self-sustaining colony of 3,000 men and women on the Spencer estate.

"I just want to see what will happen when the two systems are tried out in farming this land and the land across the river," said Spencer, who is not one of the President's warmest admirers.

Coast Guard Finds Missing Schooner

Unreported since last Tuesday, the Ida May, an 85-foot schooner, with four persons aboard, was located yesterday by the Coast Guard cutter Calypso safely berthed at Drum Point, near Solomon's Island in the Chesapeake Bay.

The schooner, which has been chartered by Capt. Kenneth McRay, of Washington, for excursion cruises, left Baltimore eight days ago. Residents near Drum Point stated the craft had been anchored off the Point since Saturday, where it is awaiting favorable winds before completing the trip to Washington.

$53,000 Theft From Inventor Blamed on Heir

Va. Man Accused of Taking Bonds From Benefactor; Lost Will Dispute.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Henry J. Watkins, jr., 58, of Front Royal, Va., on charges of grand larceny, larceny after trust, and embezzlement for allegedly taking $53,000 in cash and bonds from the late Ernest G. Fischer, inventor of the tide-predicting machine, who died in Garfield Hospital, September 23, 1935.

The indictment was returned although the scientist, who was 82 years old at the time of his death, would under ordinary circumstances have to be the principal witness for the Government. In his absence, John J. Wilson, assistant United States attorney, said other witnesses and documentary evidence would be used.

The prosecution charges that Watkins took 27 Associated Gas and Electric Corporation bonds, valued at $1,000 each and 15 Manchester Terminal Corporation bonds, valued at $1,000 each on August 14, 1935, and $11,808 in cash on August 21, 1935.

Fischer was at one time chief of the instrument division of the Coast and Geodetic Survey and his famous tide-machine took the place of 69 men. He had been decorated with the Potts Medal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia for outstanding contributions to science.

After Fischer's death, three wills were found. That bearing the latest date left everything the aged scientist had to Watkins. According to Mr. Wilson, a jury held the will had been procured through undue influence and set it aside. Watkins was then asked to turn the property covered in the indictment back to the Fischer estate but he declined, according to Mr. Wilson, because he had, he said, been given the securities and cash prior to Mr. Fischer's death.

is a stout boy of 12, who usually can be found in New York's lower westside playground when a game of stickball is on. Up to a few years ago he was timid, his athletic prowess was limited and other boys jeered at his excessive weight. Recently, he was chosen from among hundreds of boys for the George Lane award for sportsmanship, which carries with it two weeks at a camp. Further traits of Dante's character came out when he announced he would like to transfer the vacation to a friend's brother who was underweight and whose parents were unable to send him to camp. Dante had two reasons, he said—he had never been away from home and wanted to stay right in New York with his friends.

ALLOYS MAKE ALUMINUM
STILL MORE USEFUL . .
By investing millions in efficient plants and in research it has been possible to get the bulk price of raw aluminum down to 20 cents.
ALUMINUM ALLOY 1 POUND
ALUMINUM 1 POUND
Cheap aluminum is the beginning of low-cost aluminum alloys. Their strength is what makes aluminum useful to everyone.
A FACT ABOUT ALUMINUM TO TELL YOUR NEIGHBOR
The aluminum you use around the house is so light that you may have wondered how a railroad train built of it can be so strong.
The reason is that other metals can be mixed with aluminum to make it hard and strong. The resulting new metal is called an alloy. Some aluminum alloys are as strong as structural steel, although only a third as heavy.
When industry has a broad new use for aluminum, research scientists find an alloy exactly suited to the purpose. This has been going on so long that we have a large number of alloys, so that industry can make almost anything of aluminum. The United States yields first place to no other country in the knowledge and use of aluminum alloys.
Because of their lightness, strength, resistance to corrosion and cheapness, aluminum alloys are saving industry a great deal of money.
This research to create new aluminum alloys has cost millions of dollars, but it has been well worth while because it has enabled us to sell more aluminum.
That is the American way — to get ahead by helping everyone to get ahead. We have grown by making aluminum more useful.

Gov. Chandler Admits Defeat; To Aid Barkley

Senator's Lead Increases to 60,000 as Rival Pledges Support.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—Renomination conceded, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley tonight had a lead of more than 60,000 votes over Gov. A. B. Chandler as additional returns from Saturday's Democratic Senatorial primary were tabulated.

Gov. Chandler from the mansion at Frankfort conceded his defeat in a congratulatory telegram in which he pledged his active support to Barkley in the November general election. The Senator, at Paducah, replied thanking the governor for his message.

Mrs. Chandler at Frankfort in an interview charged her husband's defeat was due to Federal money promised or spent" in Kentucky.

118 Counties Complete.

The latest unofficial tabulation from 4,058 precincts out of 4,313 in the State with 118 of the 120 counties reporting complete, gave:

Barkley, 274,131.

Majority for Barkley, 60,331.

The usual slow count in Jefferson County (Louisville) showed Barkley continuing his tremendous gains. With 384 of 621 precincts counted, Barkley had 30,847 votes to 10,487 for Chandler. Tabulation was stopped at 5:30 p. m. for the night.

Only a few precincts had been counted when Breathitt County took a recess until tomorrow. The count was delayed because of the killing of one election official and the shooting of two more—one also an election officer—in pre-primary gunplay.

Haswell Leads Republicans.

In the Republican Senatorial primary John P. Haswell, backed by the State G. O. P. organization, had a big lead over his opponents on the basis of unofficial returns from 2,160 precincts. Haswell had 16,050 to 4,558 for his nearest rival, Andrew O. Ritchie. Tabulation in 65 counties was complete.

From unofficial returns it was apparent all incumbent Representatives, eight Democrats and one Republican had been renominated.

In Washington Senator Burke, Nebraska Democrat, who frequently has opposed the Administration, suggested Barkley's victory "put him in the running as one of the contenders for the Presidential nomination in 1940." Burke added to reporters, however, "But I am for (Vice President) Garner. I have just one choice."

GHA Physician Fights Medical Society Ouster

contracts with any organization "under conditions which make it impossible to render adequate service to the patient;" section 2, requiring members to submit any such contract to the society for approval, and section 5, providing that "no member shall engage in a professional capacity with any organization group or individual engaged in medical practice" which has not been approved by the society.

The expelled physician revealed in the brief that he attempted to resign from the Medical Society three days before joining G. H. A., that his resignation was not accepted, that subsequently he submitted for approval his proposed contract with G. H. A. and that the society took no action on the contract.

Furthermore, he declares, G. H. A. is not "engaged in the practice of medicine" and consequently section 5 of the society's constitution is not applicable "even if found to be a valid rule" enforceable by the society.

As for the rule requiring approval of all contracts, Dr. Scandiffio claims many members of the society are engaged in contract practices without previously having secured approval from the membership.

The final point in the brief is a reference to the case of Group Health Association vs. Moor et al., decided in District Court July 27, which classifies G. H. A. as a "legal organization not engaged in the practice of medicine."

On the basis of this decision, Dr. Scandiffio claims "the society acted illegally in attempting to regulate the professional relationship of the appellant where such relationship is with a legal organization" and where it is not charged that such relationship is "unethical, illegal or immoral."

The physician's expulsion March 16 by a majority vote of the society's membership followed a five-week hearing. The "sole issue involved," according to the official announcement at that time, was "whether Dr. Scandiffio has violated certain rules of the society that have been in effect for many years, concerning the eligibility of physicians for membership."

Meanwhile President Roosevelt's view that health is a "public problem" was stressed last night in a radio address by Oscar L. Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior and member of the Interdepartmental Committee to Co-ordinate Health and Welfare activities.

Chapman, on a national broadcasting network, reviewed discussions at the recent National Health Conference, in which divergent viewpoints among medical and other groups were expressed in discussion of a technical committee study looking toward an $850,000,000 a year program.

"You may have seen this national health program referred to as 'socialized medicine'" Chapman remarked. "I do not know just what 'socialized medicine' is. If it means the provision of better medical care for every man, woman and child in America, I am in favor of it, whatever the tag or label applied . . .

"It was evident from the discussion at the conference that public opinion was much more advanced, more prepared for action on a national front, than many of us in the Government service had realized."

Carola Goya Asks Larger Stage For 2 Groups of Solo Dancers

Dr. Kindler to Return and Lead Symphony in Season Finale; Hoogstraten to Conduct Tomorrow Night.

At its final concert in the Sunset Symphony series August 17 at the potomac Watergate, the National Symphony Orchestra will feature Carola Goya, Spanish dancer, as soloist, it was announced last night by C. C. Cappel, manager. Dr. Hans Kindler will return to Washington to conduct the symphony in its farewell performance this season.

Miss Goya will appear during the second half of the program in two groups of Spanish dances on a stage considerably enlarged. Yesterday the dancer was in Washington to check the size of the stage and lighting arrangements.

The soloist's only previous appearance in Washington was at a White House recital.

Her performance, requiring six changes of costume will include a dance from De Falla's "La Vida and the intermezzo from "Boyescas," Breve," Albeniz's tango in D major, Granados' "Rondalla Aragonesa," Lecuona's "Malaguena Gittanilla" and Retana's "Fado Blanquita." The orchestral numbers are to be announced.

The next concert at the Watergate will be tomorrow night with the Dutch conductor, William van Hoogstraten, as guest leader in a program that includes Beethoven's "Fidelio" overture and eighth symphony; Strauss' tone-poem, "Don Juan;" Liadov's eighth Russian folk songs, Debussy's "Festivals" and three Hungarian dances of Brahms. Tickets are on sale at the Julius Garfinckel store and the A. A. A. ticket bureau.

Primaries

activity by Gov. Martin L. Davey among Ohio's old age pensioners caused the order for a hearing on whether Federal funds shall be withheld from the Ohio pension set-up.

While some doubt was expressed that Mr. Roosevelt would directly call for defeat of Senator George in his Barnesville speech it was considered probable he would make a determined plea for New Deal philosophy and objectives. Possibility that he would utilize the NEC reports in this effort to keep the entire South back of his Administration was considered strong. The report is the outgrowth of the recent meeting here of Southern industrialists, farmers and others, called by Lowell Mellett, NEC head, to consider formulae for bettering conditions throughout Dixie.

U. S. Attorney Is Rival.

George was one of the original nine members of the Senate Judiciary Committee who fought and eventually killed the President's court plan. Early talks of a Democratic Party "purge' centered around these nine Senators. However, George is conceded strength with Georgia voters, and numerous observers have expressed doubt that Camp can defeat him unless President Roosevelt should go farther than he has to date in behalf of Camp.

The primary is September 6.

Green said George had been indorsed by the A. F. of L. as having a "100 per cent labor record." The indorsement was given in a letter to the president of the Georgia State Federation of Labor, written last Thursday. However, the C. I. O Labor's Non-Partisan League has placed George on its "blacklist" for opposition to measures favored by the Lewis organization.

Amendment Bid Possible.

Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the campaign expenditures committee, indicated a Constitutional amendment will be sought, if necessary, to give the Senate adequate authority in its campaign investigating. The Supreme Court has held that the corrupt practices act did not apply to primaries, which are governed exclusively by the States.

The only weapon in the hands of the Senate, so far as primaries are concerned, is the right to refuse to seat a successful candidate if it is found he or his backers spent money excessively or engaged in other practices considered improper.

Sheppard already has hinted possibility of the present Senate committee recommending such action in the case of the Tennessee and Kentucky elections.

Silent on McClellan Charge.

The committee yesterday decided to issue no statement at present regarding charges by McClellan that Federal officials were interfering in the Arkansas race on behalf of Senator Caraway. However, its investigation will continue.

Hamilton's statement on the renomination of Senator Barkley said:

"What has happened in Kentucky can be counted only as an omen of Republican success this fall. In that Democratic primary contest President Roosevelt and the New Deal were the issue. Mr. Roosevelt personally injected himself into it. The New Deal spending agencies flooded the State with money * * * Senator Barkley's managers in the closing hours of the campaign pleaded with Democrats of Kentucky not to humiliate the President by voting for Gov. Chandler. There could be no clearer issue.

"Yet 200,000 or more Kentucky Democrats voted for Gov. Chandler. If that is the way Democrats feel about the President, it is clear that Republicans will be elected in large numbers this fall in such States as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and a dozen others where the two major parties are more evenly balanced than they are in Kentucky.

The Social Security Board's move to withdraw Federal old age pension funds from Ohio followed charges letters urging Gov. Davey's renomination had been sent to the pensioners. Davey called the move a "desperate eleventh-hour effort of our political enemies."

Board officials replied only with the assertion that "administrative discrepancies" also had prompted the move, and that the hearing would have been called even had there been no political activity.

The New Deal is a well-defined issue in the Idaho voting. Senator Pope is a staunch supporter of the President, Clark is a conservative who has opposed some Administration moves.

Gov. Clark, uncle of the Representative, is opposed by Former Gov. Ben Ross, Lieut. Gov. C. C. Gossett and W. P. Whitaker in the Democratic gubernatorial race. C. A. Bottolfson and R. H. Young seek the G. O. P. nomination.

Representative Compton I. White is unopposed in the primary, but nine Democrats and two Republicans are after the nominations for Clark's House seat.

Ohio's outstanding fights were those for the Republican Senate nomination, and the Davey-Sawyer Governorship fight in the Democratic ranks.

'Officers' Reveal Volunteer Movement During Warren Strike.

By the Associated Press

Citizens of Warren, Ohio, told the Senate Civil Liberties Committee yesterday an elaborate volunteer "army" was organized to maintain law and order during last year's strike in "Little Steel."

William A. Porteous and William C. Burbank, officers in the "army," testified, however, it was never actually mobilized because 24 hours after organization plans were completed, the Ohio National Guard had taken charge of the strike area.

Both told the committee the plan was to have the mayor deputize and bond the men as special police. Upon his call they were to assemble, bringing with them their own shotguns, the witnesses said. A few guns were provided by the leaders, they added.

The day also added to the committee's record evidence of intense activity by citizens' groups, one of them known as the "John Q. Public League" and by members of the Chamber of Commerce and a citizens' committee, directed at the "maintenance of law and order."

Witness Reprimanded.

In addition, Chairman La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, reprimanded one witness, Edward J. Mulligan, calling his testimony "very evasive." Mulligan, a worker in the Republic Steel mill, had difficulty in recalling activities during the strike, for which Republic paid him full salary and maintained him in a Warren hotel.

There was testimony, too, that Sidney J. Warwick, an officer of the "Silver Legion," attended a meeting of the "John Q. Public League" upon the invitation of Howard H. Luse of Warren, and at a previous meting of another and unidentified group held in Luse's home a speaker had predicted the assassination of President Roosevelt. Luse denied any such statement was made in his home.

Other testimony disclosed that negotiations between union leaders and the Republic mill management concerning the peaceful conduct of the strike were broken off by a riot which Sheriff Roy Hardman testified was started by men in the mill.

Tension at High Point.

When the volunteer army was formed, strike tension had reached a high point. Witnesses said some 2,000 workers, in the mill constantly for more than three weeks, were growing restless, and threatening to "march out," which meant sure trouble with the pickets outside. Moreover, they asserted the "vigilante movement" was growing. The possible consequences of a brush between pickets and nonstrikers and vigilantes were considered alarming.

After consultations with the mayor and director of safety, leaders of the citizens committee set about the organization of an army of volunteers. George Pinkerton was selected as "general." He chose colonels, who chose lieutenant colonels, who selected captains, who named lieutenants, who recruited the privates.

On Sunday, June 20, some 30 leaders attended an organization meeting. Porteous said they talked about whether the "city could obtain uniforms and arms and badges." It was finally decided that ribbons stamped "special police" would suffice and that the members would provide their own shotguns, "lending" them to the city.

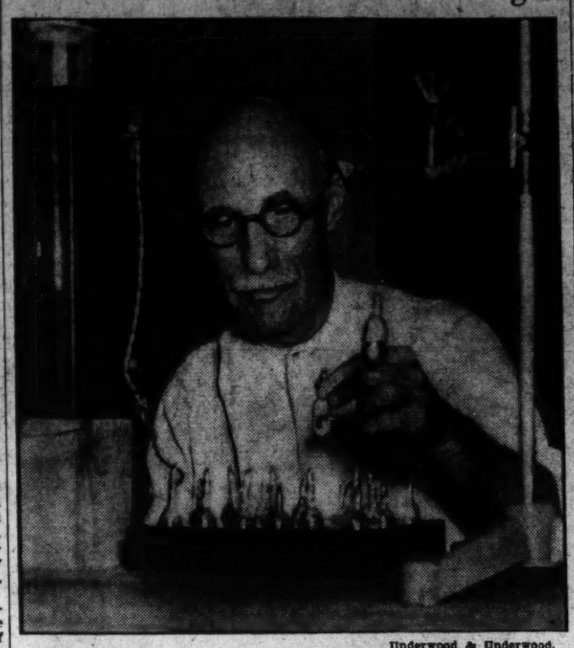
Denies Secrecy.

"There was a clamor to get into the organization," Porteous said. "And I assure you there was nothing secret about it. I was a captain and I picked two lieutenants."

Both Porteous and Burbank said reports of communistic activities in connection with the strike, rumors of dynamite and TNT being brought into the city and "anarchists from Akron," had created an unusual tension and led to a "vigilante movement."

"We thought it might stop the vigilante movement," said Burbank, "and that they would much prefer to join a special group to be used as special police."

Cools Water to -6 Without Freezing It



Underwood & Underwood.

Dr. N. Ernest Dorsey is shown in his Bureau of Standards laboratory working on his formula for producing liquid water 38 degrees below its freezing point.

Savant Finds Non-Freezing H20; 'Sno Use!

Contrary to popular belief, water does not freeze at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the so-called freezing temperature. Neither does all water freeze at the same temperature.

These are the findings of Dr. N. Ernest Dorsey, scientist of the National Bureau of Standards, who has been experimenting with 37 specimens of water taken from lakes, canals and other sources.

He cooled water until it was minus 6 degrees Fahrenheit—that is, 38 degrees colder than the so-called freezing point of 32 degrees. Yet it remained liquid.

In all cases the water did not freeze until subjected to a temperature below the 32-degree mark. Dr. Dorsey found that water, when first heated and then cooled, required a lower temperature for freezing.

Dr. Dorsey found that the temperature in which water froze depended on the motes, or particles, in the water itself. And he found that these vary.

Asked what practical value his "super-cool" water possessed, Dr. Dorsey replied, "None." He said it was cooled under ordinary methods and would not retain its coolness on picnics. Neither could it be used in air-cooling systems, he said.

TVA Aide Denies Crookedness in Phosphate Deal

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 8 (AP).—Dr. Harry A. Curtis, chief TVA chemical engineer, told a congressional investigation committee today there was "no crookedness" in the authority's purchase of phosphate lands in middle Tennessee.

Dr. Curtis, who negotiated the deal with the International Agricultural Corporation last year, testified for the third time regarding the transaction by which the company made a profit of $530,000 on an investment of $148,000.

"You will not find anything crooked about this deal as Mr. Wolverton has inferred in his questioning," Dr. Curtis declared. "I am too old to indulge in any skullduggery."

He referred to Representative Wolverton (Republican), of New Jersey, who has subjected him to vigorous cross-examination about his part in the deal.

O'Connor Says He Fought for Free Congress

Rules Committee Chairman Denies He's 100 Per Cent New Dealer.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 8.—Representative John J. O'Connor, Democratic chairman of the House Rules Committee, whose defeat is being sought by all-the-way New Dealers, told a Republican gathering tonight he had made "untiring efforts to assert the independence of Congress from inroads by the executive department."

At the same time, in a speech prepared for the Nathan Hale Republican Club formally accepting Republican support, he attacked Republican National Committeeman Kenneth Simpson as the only important New York party leader who had "been adamant against joining with all the other Republicans in the movement" for that support.

"For a reason or an alibi—call it what you will—he (Simpson) has waved, daily and nightly, a copy of a letter I wrote months ago . . . before Congress adjourned and without any thought of the election," said O'Connor.

"He has conveniently placed his own interpretation on that letter. That 'interpretation,' from his lips, mind you, is that I have been a '100 per cent New Dealer'—that I never swerved from the path of the 'rubber stamps.' Well, if he can persuade the Republicans of this district on that he is a better politician than I accredit him."

"He will have to slide over my fight against the reorganization bill. He will have to blue pencil my activities in behalf of the complete repeal of the corporate surplus undivided profits tax. He will have to obliterate from the record of untiring efforts to assert the independence of Congress from inroads by the executive department."

$2,500,000 Irish Stakes Tickets Seized on Ship

By the Associated Press.

Stephen B. Gibbons, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, announced seizure of $2,500,000 worth of Irish Sweepstakes tickets yesterday from the hold of the Steamer Capulin at Philadelphia.

Gibbons said the tickets were not manifested on the ship's Log. The vessel sailed from Hamburg, Germany, and had docked at Norfolk, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

New Air Board, Administrator Assume Offices

Headed by Chairman Edward J. Noble, members of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and its administrator, Clinton M. Hester, yesterday took the oath of office, bringing into being the first Government agency charged with the regulation of the whole field of United States commercial and private aviation.

In assuming his new duties, Noble stated aviation's rapid development and limitless possibilities require a dynamic organization, quickly adaptable to changing conditions; yet efficient, dependable, business-like.

"The Aeronautics Authority," he added, "also hopes to promote, through high safety standards, the public's growing confidence in air transportation."

Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the United States Court of Appeals for the District, who administered the oath, said the new organization is an example "of the way democratic government creates new regulatory bodies to meet changing conditions," and hailed the occasion as "significant and of historic importance."

Johnson's Work to Change.

Shortly after the conclusion of the ceremonies Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson said that some reallocation of the work of his department was under consideration. Explaining that the Bureau of Air Commerce, formerly under his supervision, is being transferred to the new authority, he said he expected to be given charge of the Bureau of Standards, now operating under Assistant Secretary Richard C. Patterson, jr.

Until the Civil Aeronautics act becomes effective on August 22, the authority will devote its time to setting up a detailed system of administering air-mail contracts, supervising commercial air lines and private flyers and studying aviation safety.

The functions of the Authority will be divided between the five-man board, making quasi-judicial decisions; the three-man safety board; and Administrator Hester, former assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department, who helped write the Civil Aeronautics Act.

In Civil Service 20 Years.

A civil servant of 20 years standing, Hester came here shortly after the World War as an employee of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Later he was on the staff of the Alien Property Custodian and then was attached to the Justice Department.

Noble, who announced his aim is to make the agency as successful in regulating aviation as the Interstate Commerce Commission has been in supervising railroads, makes his home in Greenwich, Conn., and is a nationally-known candy manufacturer.

The vice-chairman of the Authority, Harllee Branch, before his appointment was Second Assistant Postmaster General. Other members are Oswald Ryan, fromer general counsel of the Federal Power Commission; G. Grant Mason, who has been with Pan-American Airways for many years; and Robert Hinckley, WPA administrator of the Far Western States.

The agency is the first major Federal unit in which executive control has been separated from a regulatory board. Some of President Roosevelt's advisors hope the experiment may prove feasible for use in reorganizing various other independent offices and commissions.

Nazi Ocean Plane To Wait for Balbo

Berlin, Aug. 8 (AP).—The projected flight of a Focke Wulff airplane from Berlin to New York was postponed today until next week to permit Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of Italian Libya, to witness the take-off.

Balbo, who led a transatlantic flight of 24 Italian planes from Italy to Chicago in 1933, is scheduled to arrive tomorrow for a visit of several days at the invitation of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

The route is by way of Lisbon and the 24-passenger plane will be in command of Capt. Henke, of the Lufthansa Air Line. There will be four crewmen and no passengers.

Adirondacks Storm Wrecks Power Lines

Chestertown, N. Y., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Hail stones reported "large as hens' eggs" fell in this Adirondack village late today in a storm which felled power and telephone lines.

Heavy rain and wind accompanying the hail washed out several roads and blocked others with uprooted trees.

Residents described the storm as the worst in the village's history.

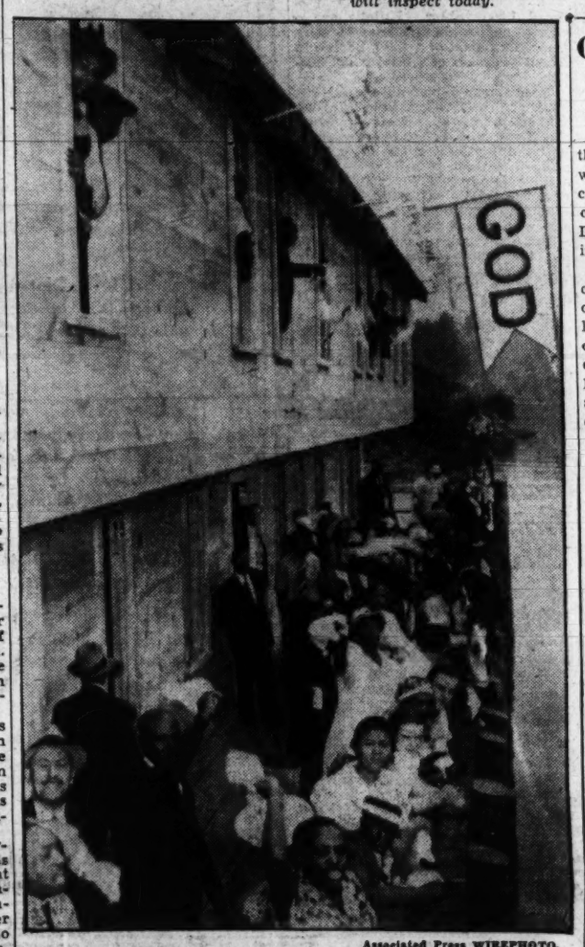
Father and Mother Divine Sit Down to Heavenly Feast

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Father Divine rings a dinner bell to signal his followers it is time to feast at the Milton "heaven" at Milton, N. Y. Seated next to the Harlem cult leader is Mother Divine. Father Divine and 2,000 followers stopped at Milton en route to their new "Kingdom of Heaven" at Krum Elbow, N. Y., which they will inspect today.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Followers of Father Devine are shown as they awaited the arrival of the Harlem cult leader and two boatloads of the faithful coming to Krum Elbow-on-the-Hudson to inspect their new "promised land" estate. For days a select few have been preparing the "heaven" for this excursion.

By the Associated Press.

Krum-Elbow-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The children of Father Divine today entered into a land overflowing with soda pop, fried chicken and ice cream!

There was set before them a great feast that all might eat for on the morrow—

Mosquitoes Get Busy.

Chanting their cry of "peace" and wolfing watermelons, 2,000 of the colored Messiah's disciples set out from New York this morning on their journey to the promised land aboard two excursion boats.

Docking at the Milton (N. J.), "heaven," a few miles from here, the singing, shouting angels sat down to a three-hour feast amid a swarm of mosquitoes which, said one white-clad angel, "don't have no regard for holiness."

Father Divine himself, who is "god" to thousands in Harlem, presided at the picnic, smiling begginly on his followers and slapping at mosquitoes with the rest.

Test of Roosevelt.

After spending the night at the Kingston "heaven" and others among the 40-odd rural retreats established by the cult, the pilgrims intend to inspect their new property tomorrow.

Howland Spencer, who sold his ancestral acres and home to the divine angels, said his reason for disposal was "to test the theories of Roosevelt against those of Father Divine."

Divine intends to establish a self-sustaining colony of 3,000 men and women on the Spencer estate.

"I just want to see what will happen when the two systems are tried out in farming this land and the land across the river," said Spencer, who is not one of the President's warmest admirers.

Coast Guard Finds Missing Schooner

Unreported since last Tuesday, the Ida May, an 85-foot schooner, with four persons aboard, was located yesterday by the Coast Guard cutter Calypso safely berthed at Drum Point, near Solomon's Island in the Chesapeake Bay.

The schooner, which has been chartered by Capt. Kenneth McRay, of Washington, for excursion cruises, left Baltimore eight days ago. Residents near Drum Point stated the craft had been anchored off the Point since Saturday, where it is awaiting favorable winds before completing the trip to Washington.

$53,000 Theft From Inventor Blamed on Heir

Va. Man Accused of Taking Bonds From Benefactor; Lost Will Dispute.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Henry J. Watkins, jr., 58, of Front Royal, Va., on charges of grand larceny, larceny after trust, and embezzlement for allegedly taking $53,000 in cash and bonds from the late Ernest G. Fischer, inventor of the tide-predicting machine, who died in Garfield Hospital, September 23, 1935.

The indictment was returned although the scientist, who was 82 years old at the time of his death, would under ordinary circumstances have to be the principal witness for the Government. In his absence, John J. Wilson, assistant United States attorney, said other witnesses and documentary evidence would be used.

The prosecution charges that Watkins took 27 Associated Gas and Electric Corporation bonds, valued at $1,000 each and 15 Manchester Terminal Corporation bonds, valued at $1,000 each on August 14, 1935, and $11,808 in cash on August 21, 1935.

Fischer was at one time chief of the instrument division of the Coast and Geodetic Survey and his famous tide-machine took the place of 69 men. He had been decorated with the Potts Medal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia for outstanding contributions to science.

After Fischer's death, three wills were found. That bearing the latest date left everything the aged scientist had to Watkins. According to Mr. Wilson, a jury held the will had been procured through undue influence and set it aside. Watkins was then asked to turn the property covered in the indictment back to the Fischer estate but he declined, according to Mr. Wilson, because he had, he said, been given the securities and cash prior to Mr. Fischer's death.

is a stout boy of 12, who usually can be found in New York's lower westside playground when a game of stickball is on. Up to a few years ago he was timid, his athletic prowess was limited and other boys jeered at his excessive weight. Recently, he was chosen from among hundreds of boys for the George Lane award for sportsmanship, which carries with it two weeks at a camp. Further traits of Dante's character came out when he announced he would like to transfer the vacation to a friend's brother who was underweight and whose parents were unable to send him to camp. Dante had two reasons, he said—he had never been away from home and wanted to stay right in New York with his friends.

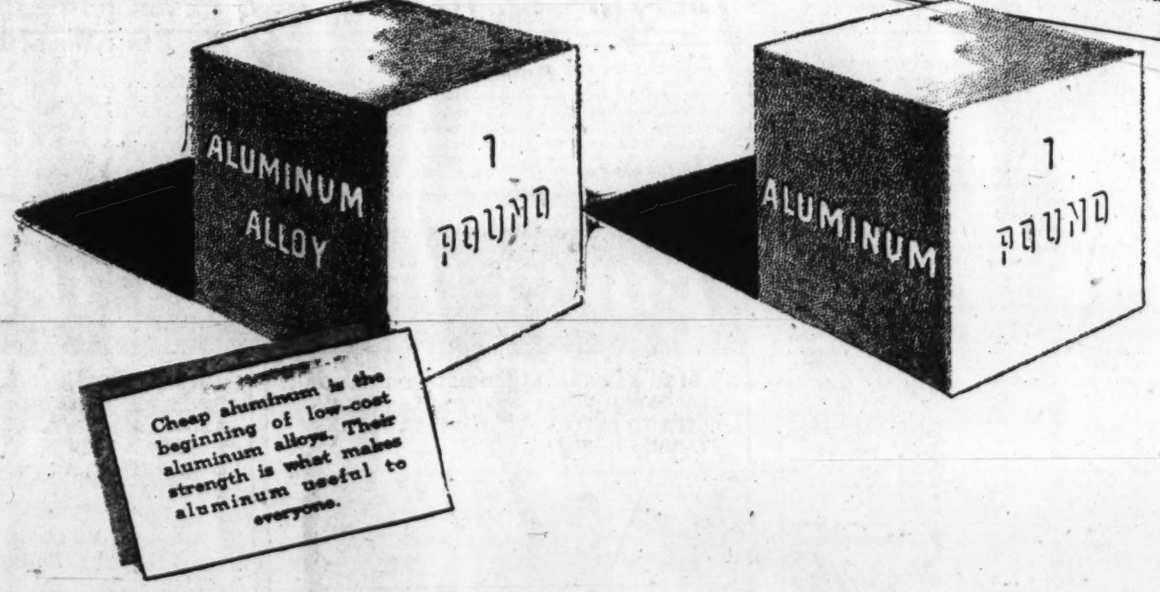
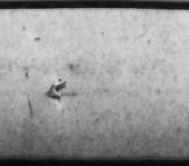
ALLOYS MAKE ALUMINUM STILL MORE USEFUL . .

By investing millions in efficient plants and in research it has been possible to get the bulk price of raw aluminum down to 20 cents.



Cheap aluminum is the beginning of low-cost aluminum alloys. Their strength is what makes aluminum useful to everyone.

A FACT ABOUT ALUMINUM TO TELL YOUR NEIGHBOR



The aluminum you use around the house is so light that you may have wondered how a railroad train built of it can be so strong.

The reason is that other metals can be mixed with aluminum to make it hard and strong. The resulting new metal is called an alloy. Some aluminum alloys are as strong as structural steel, although only a third as heavy.

When industry has a broad new use for aluminum, research scientists find an alloy exactly suited to the purpose. This has been going on so long that we have a large number of alloys, so that industry can make almost anything of aluminum. The United States yields first place to no other country in the knowledge and use of aluminum alloys.

Because of their lightness, strength, resistance to corrosion and cheapness, aluminum alloys are saving industry a great deal of money.

This research to create new aluminum alloys has cost millions of dollars, but it has been well worth while because it has enabled us to sell more aluminum.

That is the American way — to get ahead by helping everyone to get ahead. We have grown by making aluminum more useful.

Refugee Quarter and Power Plant Attacked; Public Buildings Burn.

By the United Press.

Canton, China (Tuesday), Aug. 9. Twenty-five Japanese planes bombed a power plant and the Saikuan residential district today. Casualties were believed to number at least 200 killed because Saikuan, heretofore not bombed, was crowded with refugees.

Bombs fell within 500 yards of Shameen foreign quarter, causing foreign residents to run for shelter.

Scores of Chinese were killed or wounded yesterday when more than 20 Japanese planes bombed the heart of the city between the main power station and the French cathedral for half an hour.

Damage was heavy along Waisun and Yutduk streets.

Later three squadrons bombed government buildings, many of which were partly wrecked. Two bombs hit the main gates to the French cathedral grounds, killing at least 20 persons in the vicinity. Scores of power plant workers had fled into the cathedral grounds to obtain protection of the French flag. About 60 of them were injured.

Police threw a cordon around the area and ordered newspaper correspondents outside. There were heavy casualties around the vegetable market and many government buildings were in flames at sunset.

Japanese planes on Friday dropped leaflets informing the government that Canton would be bombed daily for ten days. It was believed the bombing was connected with efforts to force the military governor, Gen. Yu Han-mou, to declare his independence of Hankow and make separate peace with Japan.

Shanghai (Tuesday), Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Capt. Evans F. Carlson, U. S. M. C., a military observer for the American Embassy, returned to Hankow after three months with Chinese guerrillas and Red army soldiers in North China. He reported that the Chinese were administering the bulk of the territory within the so-called Japanese occupied areas and that the Japanese were holding only strips of territory along the railways.

In Shanghai American missionaries and some business men joined Chinese organizations in telegraphing President Roosevelt protesting against a plan of the Shanghai municipal council, government of the Anglo-American areas of the International Settlement, to prevent the council from delivering to the Japanese army "for certain execution" groups of "young Chinese patriots" arrested for terrorism.

Regarding the military situation around Hankow the Chinese said their reorganized "God of War" battalion was holding fortified positions 30 miles west of Kiukiang. Guns from the Lion Hill forts had been salvaged and were being used against attacking Japanese. Planes of the "Iron Bird Squadron" were co-operating with the battalion and had "smashed" a Japanese attempt to land infantrymen near Wusueh.

Foreign military reports from north China said units of the Chinese Red army and some regiments of the old Nanking armies were attacking many Japanese garrisons throughout Shansi Province. To the southeastward about 100,000 Chinese guerrillas were harassing Japanese communications 11in es around Suchow-Fu where the East-West Lung-Hai Railway crosses the North-South Tientsin-Pukow (Nanking) Railway.

Unknown Plague Ravaging Slavs

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Belgrade, Aug. 8.—An unknown epidemic disease has broken out in Stari Beces, in northern Yugoslavia and the surrounding districts which puzzles not only local doctors, but also specialists called from Belgrade.

In the last two weeks more than 500 persons, mostly of the peasant class, have been afflicted by it, and it is still spreading. The death rate is comparatively high. Many patients die after six or eight days of high fever, accompanied by strong pains in the sinews and intestinal tract.

England Reports Employment Rise

London, Aug. 8 (AP).—For the first time in months, the ministry of labor tonight reported an increase in employment in the United Kingdom and a reduction of persons on the dole.

The report said that on July 18 the number of employed in British industry, exclusive of agriculture, was 11,371,000. This figure was 38,000 more than in June, but 300,000 less than a year ago.

The number of registered unemployed on the same date was 1,773,116, a reduction of 29,796 from June but 448,000 more than last year.

20,000 population. After a few political speeches, our 'Under Fire Dramatic Troupe' stages three or four hours of anti-Japanese plays, demonstrating the atrocities committed by the Japanese and the ways in which farmers can help the guerrillas in fighting the invaders."

The village newspaper and news bulletin are other important propaganda media. The bulletins are posted at almost every village and crossroads, and the guerrillas are publishing 38 daily newspapers in central Hopeh alone with a total circulation of 26,000.

By far the most permanent form of propaganda is the mass education movement. The guerrillas operate 4,200 schools with enrollment of 190,000 children, according to the director of education here. The parents are taught the anti-Japanese propaganda through their children.

The Chinese classics have been eliminated from the curricula, and "Chinese nationalism" is taught in their stead. Every boy of eight is expected to know by heart the principles of guerrilla warfare, the program for national salvation, and the record of alleged Japanese atrocities in North China.

A final strategy of propaganda in the mass movement is the close cooperation between the guerrilla soldiers and the peasants who provide their food. During the plowing season last March all the guerrilla cavalry horses and more than 40,000 soldiers were sent to assist farmers, and during the wheat harvest in June 55,000 guerrillas spent two weeks in the fields.

A political commissar in the guerrilla army was asked whether the Communist leaders had any other purpose here besides the defeat of Japan.

"We are using this war," he replied, "to introduce a form of democratic government in rural China. The people can control their own army and government by united action.

"We are not teaching Communism, Socialism, or any other 'ism.' We merely give the people free speech and free assembly rights for the first time in their history, and hope they will evolve their own democratic form of government."

bridled, incited mobs."—Editor's Note.]

In a Prague newspaper, the nephew of Eduard Benes, president of Czechoslovakia, wrote that, if war breaks out between Germany and this country, Lord Runciman's final task would be to witness for the British crown which country was the aggressor, "and his word will be good enough."

These two incidents are minor in themselves, but they may be important if, repeated in coming weeks, they tend to break the self-control which has been apparent since Lord Runciman's arrival. For if there is yet no evdience here that he will be able to settle the dispute his presence in Prague has done much to calm the atmosphere.

Many observers here believe he will be able to keep the situation fairly quiet for a month or two. The way he is working indicates he is going to take his time. Lord Runciman intends to do more than just study the material presented to him by both sides. In a week or ten days he will make a personal tour of the Sudeten land, along the German frontier, and perhaps he will make more than one trip. He intends to study, also, the other minority questions in this state, the status of 700,000 Hungarians and 100,000 Poles, and he may visit their areas.

Rebels Crush Loyalist Flank On Ebro River

Moors and Foreign Troops Annihilate Six Brigades in Counter Attack.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 8.—The entire northern flank of the government's 15-day-old offensive along the Ebro Valley boundary of Catalonia collapsed today, insurgent dispatches reported, as rebel Moors and foreign legionnaires annihilated six brigades of loyalists.

A counter offensive, ordered by Generalissimo Francisco Franco, was reported to have taken a toll of nearly 4,000 governmentt dead and to have placed the Moroccans and legionnaires under Gen. Juan Yague firmly on the west bank of the Ebro along a nine-mile sector 45 miles inland from the Mediterranean east coast.

The Ebro drive has cost the loyalists an estimated 12,000 men.

42d Division Decimated.

Government advices from Barcelona admitted the powerful counter offensive between Mequinenza and Fayon along the Ebro and said the peak of Alto de Auts of Fayon had been abandoned "in order to avoid unnecessary casualties."

The famous loyalist Modesto 42d division, composed of Catalonian extremists, was said to have been decimated before retreating before the insurgent drive.

Fourteen miles from Fayon, where the spearhead of the government offensive is close to the insurgent base of Gandesa, foreign volunteers of the government's international brigades and the Enrique Lister division stubbornly held their positions despite the collapse of their right wing.

Gandesa Wedge Holds.

The Gandesa force, already suffering because of poor communication lines across the Ebro 18 miles to its rear, faced the threat of a flank attack by the Moors and legionnaires driving down from Fayon on the north.

The Gandesa arc, which threatens insurgent-held Saragossa province and cripples Franco's drive on Valencia to the south as long as it is held by the government, is 28 miles long and 12 miles deep.

Loyalist communiques said the insurgents attempted several times in the day to break the Gandesa wedge but without result and the counter-offensive appeared to have lost its force tonight.

Franco's Sragossa base reported the capture of 1,000 prisoners between Mequinenza and Fayon, bringing to 3,000 the number of loyalists who have fallen into insurgent hands within 48 hours.

British Send the Hood.

Barcelona Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The loyalist east coast cities of Valencia and Alicante were badly damaged by insurgent tri-motor bombers from the Balearic Islands today.

A squadron of six insurgent bombers dropped 100 explosives on Alicante, following a raid on Valencia in which the Nazaret port district was heavily bombed. There was only one British merchant ship in the Valencia port at the time of the raid and it escaped damage.

The British battleship Hood arrived today at the British-operated port of Gandia, between Valencia and Alicante, where insurgent planes have made several destructive forays in recent weeks.

resentative each from Japan and Manchoukuo).

The foreign office released a partial text of conversations in Moscow between Foreign Commissar Litvinoff and Shigemitsu, disclosing the diplomats agreed fighting should cease immediately but disagreed on the manner of stopping it.

It was expected here Shigemitsu would continue peace talks in the Russian capital attempting to reach a basis for arbitrating the border dispute which started July 11 when Soviet troops began fortifying the Changkufeng heights which Russia claims as hers under an 1886 treaty defining the border between old imperial China and Russia.

Bitter fighting broke out July 29 when Japanese forces captured the hills, which Japan asserts are part of Manchukuo.

It was considered a foregone conclusion in Tokyo that the crisis was past, even though fighting continued, and that it was unlikely to be aggravated into a major war. The public was relaxing and newspapers no longer gave the Siberian border news first play.

Army headquarters said Japanese correspondents were not being permitted to publish news of the situation freely because the army did not wish for the public to become aroused.

The army explained that "the people may interpret this to mean Japan fears to fight, but our whole military and diplomatic policy indicates only a desire for peaceful settlement."

Split on Status Quo.

In the conversations between Litvinoff and Shigemitsu as reported by the foreign office, two points appeared to be the basis of friction. These were:

1. Litvinoff insisted that the disputed Changkufeng area be returned to the status quo of prior to July 29, when the Japanese recaptured it, while Shigemitsu demanded it be returned to the status quo prior to July 11, when Soviet troops occupied and fortified it.

2. Conflicting interpretations of the 1886 treaty between Russia and China fixing the Manchukuoan-Siberian border.

Asserting "Japanese troops already have withdrawn outside the border as a result of attacks made by Soviet troops," Litvinoff said that "if the Japanese will suspend artillery bombardment, the Soviets will do likewise."

Japan "On Defensive."

Shigemitsu replied to this that "Japanese troops are only defending the border and have never taken the offensive." He said that if the Russians cease their attacks, "the Japanese will feel no necessity of attacking the Soviets."

"Therefore," he added, "suspension of attacks by the Soviets is a necessary condition."

The Japanese envoy next proposed the dispute be referred to peaceful negotiations by agreeing to suspension of hostilities "with the status quo maintained" and also "by agreeing to settlement of the question of border redemarcation."

Litvinoff said he could not promise "to suspend hostilities so long as Japanese soldiers remain inside the borderline mentioned in the map attached to the Hungchun treaty," and that "redemarcation of the border is acceptable only subject to conditions mentioned" in the Hungchun map.

140 Red Planes On Border, Two Deserters Say

Fugitives Bare Russian Power to Japanese at Changkufeng.

By the Associated Press.

With the Japanese Army on the Siberian Border (Tuesday), Aug. 9. Two young Soviet deserters who reached the Japanese lines before dawn yesterday, said more than 140 Russian warplanes are in the Korean sector.

Soviet air strength based at Spassk, 350 miles north of Changkufeng and near Lake Khanka, consists of 45 heavy TB3 bombers, 45 SB medium bombers, 50 pursuit planes and an unknown number of squadrons of reconnaissance craft, they said.

Four Soviet divisions are massed on the front, the deserters said, including one cavalry brigade and two brigades of tank corps.

Wrestling none too skillfully with chopsticks and eating Japanese food, the younger infantryman who appeared to be in his early 20's, said he deserted because his father was a kulak, who recently was taxed 1,500 rubles. Kulaks are a class of well-to-do farmers who were made the object of a Soviet drive in recent years to collectivize agriculture.

"Our slogan is defend the fatherland of liberty, but how can we soldiers defend such a system when the cows, horses and even their barns are taken from them," he said.

He related that he was among new troops at Chatsufeng, north of Changkufeng, where a new offensive was opened yesterday morning.

Three comrades started to desert, but the others were wounded or killed, he said.

Alleging junior officers usually drop behind during charges, he declared the officers led good lives while the soldiers never have enough to eat.

"If we have soup there is no meat," he explained. "If there is tea there is no bread."

"We all say we are fighting for freedom," he declared, "but when charges are made many drop behind."

Chamberlain Ends Holiday; Air Pact Rumors Revived

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Aug. 8.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's unexpected decision today to interrupt his fishing vacation in Scotland and return to London to undergo treatment for nasal catarrh, aroused much speculation among observers here, who expressed the opinion Chamberlain's illness was due to political and diplomatic reasons.

The news of his return revived suggestions that Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, aid of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, might pay his long deferred visit to London this week to talk about a pact for qualitative limitation of the air fleets of Britain, Germany, France and Italy, as well as the Sudten German problem.

Chamberlain is due in London tomorrow morning. His foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, will come down from Yorkshire tomorrow or Wednesday to spend a day in Downing Street. They are expected to discuss the German, Spanish and Palestine problems.

"Safest Place on City Streets"

IN the 56 months of its existence there has not been a single accident fatal to a passenger on Capital Transit street cars or buses.

In that time Capital Transit has carried 960,852,000 passengers. Its cars and buses have travelled 132,483,000 miles, many of them through the maze of city traffic.

Every precaution is taken to make the millions of rides we furnish each year safe for every passenger, young or old. Rules that are the result of long experience guide operators. Men are carefully selected and trained, subject to constant supervision.

Equipment is inspected every day; overhauled on schedule.

There are nearly 600 men in the shops, car houses and garages whose job it is to see that rigid standards are lived up to. Safety devices are placed on cars and buses to supplement the work of men.

Truly it may be said: "The safest place on city streets is in a street car or bus."

That is worth noting. Worth putting into practice too, when you or those dear to you, go about on your daily errands.

DORIS DECEIVES THE DUKE—But no harm done!

I'M SO NERVOUS, LARRY. I'M NOT USED TO ENTERTAINING NOBILITY.
DON'T WORRY, DORIS. THE DUKE IS VERY DEMOCRATIC.
AH, MY FAVORITE BEVERAGE! DID YOU KNOW I AM CONSIDERED A BEER CONNOISSEUR, AN EXPERT?
I BELIEVE YOU'LL LIKE THIS.
NO I DIDN'T, YOUR HIGHNESS.
WHAT A COMPLIMENT, MADAME! YOU SERVE ME THE MARVELOUS DRY BEER OF MY OWN COUNTRY. FRANKLY, I FEARED IT MIGHT BE A SWEET-TYPE.
I'M GLAD YOU APPROVE.
WHY-UH-AH-YES IT REALLY IS DRY AND BEERY.

WHY, DID YOU DECEIVE THE DUKE ABOUT THE BEER, DORIS?
AFTER HE SAID HE WAS A BEER EXPERT! COULDN'T CORRECT HIM. BESIDES, YOU SAY YOURSELF, THAT THE EXPENSIVE IMPORTED BEERS AREN'T A BIT DRIER THAN GUNTHER'S!

MR. ONCE-IN-A-WHILE BEER DRINKER, PERHAPS YOU'RE MISSING SOMETHING

Can you take your beer or leave it?

Do you try an occasional glass that doesn't give you all the pleasure real beer drinkers get from good beer? Can't you understand all the poems and songs written in praise of good beer?

Perhaps you're missing something! Maybe you haven't yet tried the beer that suits your taste. For there really is a world of difference in beers. The experts say so.

We make a beer that is dry, light-bodied and beer-y because we think it's the best kind. Not even the expensive Bohemian beers are drier or lighter.

As a once-in-a-while beer drinker you'll probably be interested to know that in direct contrast to the dry, light-bodied beer is the sweet, heavy-bodied type.

Ours is definitely not of that type! Never! It is always dry and beer-y because it's a "Special Dry Lager" and it's the only one made around here. That is why it will never dull your taste, never quickly give you a "filled-up" uncomfortable feeling. It's dry and beer-y and man it's good!

Over a thirst-quenching stein in the cool brewery one of our experts would tell you of the traditional care, skill and patience necessary to make dry, beer-y beer. He'd explain the important aging process, and especially about the choice Bohemian hops. We use an unusually high percentage of them because domestic hops alone won't give the flavor we must have. You'd appreciate that description as you enjoyed the marvelous dry, beer-y beer.

So, to repeat, if the beer you've tried hasn't tasted as good as you think it should—give yourself another chance. Try our beer—Gunther's Beer. It's dry and beer-y and we're mighty proud of it. We think you'll like it fine!

Farley Appeals For Hard Work By Democrats

Postmaster General Says 'New Deal on Trial' Next November.

By the Associated Press.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 8.—Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight called upon Democrats to work hard to keep the New Deal in power in the November elections, and criticized the Republicans for finding fault with the New Deal program.

He said "the New Deal is on trial" in the fall elections throughout the country.

Farley, at a banquet, declared, "The Republican leaders are seeking desperately to win in the 1938 State elections in order to build up an organization to defeat the Democratic Party nationally in 1940."

"No Democrat who has any regard for the future of the party will give the Republican leaders any aid in this plan," he asserted. "Democrats will be asked to leave their party and to vote Republican to save the State from Communism. It is peculiar that Republican leaders have never in this State asked Republicans to vote Democratic to save the State. They want the Democrats to do all the saving.

"The Congress to be elected in November will determine whether the program of recovery inaugurated by Franklin D. Roosevelt is to go forward to completion or whether it is to be hampered and delayed by Senators and Representatives unsympathetic to the President's liberal and progressive ideas and by those forces of reaction who believe that the only hope of the Republican Party and its allies is to bring the country back to the old system of special privileges," Farley said.

He said the Democratic Party, under Roosevelt's guidance, saved the Nation during a period of financial stress and depression.

He blamed business for the recent recession, contending that business "took advantage of the progress we have made to retain more than a wise share of the profits."

Farley spent much of the day conferring with party leaders of the State. At a press conference, he said he had pledged full support for the Minnesota Democrats nominated in the June primary, headed by Thomas Gallagher for Governor.

Refugee Aid Head To Sail Tomorrow

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 8.—George Rublee, Washington lawyer recently elected permanent director of the Intergovernmental Committee for Political Refugees, will sail for Europe Wednesday aboard the Queen Mary to begin the work of the organization. Rublee passed most of today in conference with James G. McDonald, former League of Nations commissioner for refugees, studying reports on the preliminary meeting of the committee at Evian, France.

The committee, organized by 27 nations, is to be permanent, with headquarters in London. Its chief problem at present is to arrange resettlement for some 650,000 political and racial refugees from Germany and Austria in the next five years.

G.O.P. Chief Sees California Victory

William F. Knowland, Republican national committeeman from California, asserted yesterday that, "Not only will we increase the Republican representation in the House of Representatives from California, but we have an excellent chance of electing a Republican to the Senate."

His statement was issued by the Republican National Committee after he conferred with John Hamilton, national chairman. He predicted Republicans would make substantial gains in Oregon and Washington, as well as in California.

"Bitter factionalism is tearing the Democrats asunder in those states," he said. He also said, "The New Deal recently has lost considerable ground in the Pacific Coast states."

Dentist With Orchestra Eyes Utah Senate Seat

Salt Lake City, Aug. 8 (AP).—Dr. Arthur C. Wherry, former president of the American Dental Association, set out today with a bag full of orange songs on a tuneful trail he hopes will lead him to the United States Senate.

Wherry, a Republican seeking the office to which Democratic Senator Elbert D. Thomas is seeking reelection, believes "music hath charm" at the polls, and accordingly took along a cowboy orchestra with him on a State-wide political tour.

Community Center Department, and Miss Sibyl Baker, playground director.

Although the District's accident toll continued to drop yesterday, two more children were injured in mishaps. Otho Barber, colored, 7, of 2222 Eleventh street northwest, suffered a fractured ankle when struck by a truck near his home.

Lansdel Jenkins, colored, 9, 1224 Twentieth street northwest, received major lacerations and bruises when knocked down as he ran into the street. Neither driver was held responsible.

To call city-wide attention to current efforts to save lives, Hazen proposed that the District print thousands of safety circulars for distribution to every motoris—local and visiting.

Discussions of this suggested move, he said, will be taken up at Friday's meeting. He proposed the printed notices be worded as warnings to drivers and an appeal for co-operation.

"We are going to be harsh in our methods of dealing with this problem," Hazen said, "and we don't intend to tolerate any lack of co-operation."

Thoroughfares in various sections of the city recommended for play streets were listed by Maj. Brown as follows:

First Precinct: Myrtle street northeast, from North Capitol to First streets; DeFries street from North Capitol to First street northwest.

Fourth Precinct: I street from One-Half street to First street southwest; M place between Third and Fourth streets southwest, and Union street between N and M streets southwest.

Tenth Precinct: Kenyon street between Georgia and Sherman avenues northwest;; Center street from Ogden to Oak streets and Marlboro place from Third to Fourth streets northwest.

Other precinct commanders are completing lists of available streets and will submit their reports to Maj. Brown within the next few days.

Spy Trial Lawyer Rebuked by Court

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 8.—Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, of Texas, temporarily sitting in the United States District Court today adjudged George C. Dix, attorney for Johanna Hofmann, one of the defendants allegedly implicated in a German spy ring, guilty of contempt of court, reprimanded him and told him to condut himself in the future as "becomes an ethical practitioner of the law."

Dix was brought into court on a show-cause order obtained by John W. Burke, of United States Attorney Lamar Hardy's office, following a statement made last Monday in court by Dix that Senta de Wanger, a Government witness, now in protective custody, had told him Lester C. Dunigan, assistant United States attorney, had refused to release her from custody, saying: "If you don't like that, you will have to go to jail. I have a Texas judge sitting here who will do anything I ask him to do."

Crowd Sees 2 Die In Gas-Filled Mine

Minersville, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP).—Two men were asphyxiated by mine gas today about 12 feet from the mouth of an abandoned shaft near here. One man had taken refuge in the pit from a storm and the other had tried to rescue him.

The victims were Joseph Foran, 45, and Edward Woll, 32, who went down the mine shaft against the warnings of experienced miners.

Woll, equipped only with a mask such as firemen use to go through smoke, died within view of a crowd gathered to watch him try to bring the older man to the surface.

Quints Recovering From Sore Throats

Callander, Ont., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The Dionne quintuplets probably will be recovered sufficiently from the throat infection they contracted over the week-end to allow them to be wheeled out on the porch of the Dafoe nursery for fresh air tomorrow, Keith Munro, their business manager, said today.

Munro said the quints were annoyed because it was found necessary to segregate Emilie, who became ill first.

Huge Vote Seen For Chaco Treaty

Buenos Aires, Aug. 8 (AP).—Chaco conference delegates tonight predicted an overwhelming majority for ratification of the Bolivia-Paraguay arbitration treaty in both countries Wednesday.

Diplomatic information received by the neutrals indicated a large majority of Bolivians and Paraguayans are supporting ratification of the treaty, signed here July 21 to end the century-old dispute over the jungle-like Gran Chaco, where three years of war ended in 1935.

The neutrals speeded plans to have the final boundary settlement ready by October 10, as prescribed by the pact.

The husband, L. J. Taylor, traveling salesman, said he discovered the tragedy when he returned home from his day's work.

Dewey Calls Four Before Jury on Eve Of Trial of Hines

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 8.—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey took four witnesses before the grand jury today in a last-minute effort to place additional testimony on the record prior to bringing James J. Hines, Tammany leader, to trial next Monday on charges of having run the city's policy racket with the late "Dutch" Schultz.

One of the witnesses was Morris Selk, attorney in the office of Joseph Shallock, of counsel to Hines and his manager for the last 30 years.

A second witness was James Noonan, lawyer, of Albany, who was chief counsel for Schultz during his successful defense at two up-State trials for alleged violation of Federal income tax regulations.

British Head Asks Peace in Palestine

Jerusalem, Aug. 8 (AP).—An appeal to Jews and Arabs to end the "ruinous campaign of murder and sabotage" sweeping the Holy Land was broadcast tonight by Sir Harold Alfred MacMichael, high commissioner of Transjordan and commander in chief of Palestine.

"I make this appeal for patience and appeasement as a step toward the peace for which we all pray," Sir Harold said.

He did not mention the secret two-day visit to Palestine which Malcolm MacDonald, British colonial secretary, concluded yesterday. After MacDonald's departure officials here said his visit had no political motive and that Britain still adhered to her partition policy, to which both Arabs and Jews are hostile.

N. Y. Holds Nudist For 'Observation'

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Patrolman John Pfeufer, of Central Park detail, tonight observed an attractive young brunette striding through the park in the rain. His curiosity was aroused. She wore only a smile.

"What's the idea?" he asked.

"Nothing at all," she replied. "I love to walk in the rain—just this way." She carried her clothes in a bundle.

Pfeufer threw his raincoat over her when she refused to dress. At the police station she gave her name as Ann Evans, 21, and was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Florida and Head Of Pension Board Pass U. S. Grants

By the United Press.

The Florida Industrial Commission yesterday unanimously approved an agreement between Gov. Fred P. Cone and Frank Bane, executive director of the Social Security Board, for resumption of Federal grants for administration of the State unemployment compensation laws.

The Social Security Board will meet today and commission members were confident it would accept the settlement and immediately make the delayed $53,000 grant for July, August and September, providing salaries for 80 employes who have been without pay for three weeks.

Under the agreement the commission will investigate alleged "leaks" in examination papers prepared by the Social Security Board as a basis for merit system appointments in the commission's unemployment compensation division.

Commissioner E. T. Lay said those who are found to have benefited by advance knowledge of questions and answers will be disqualified.

Wheat Loan Rule MayBe Broadened

Officials yesterday said the Commodity Credit Corporation may announce soon a revision in its wheat loan program which would make some No. 4 winter wheat eligible for loans.

The announcement, they said, probably will extend the loan provisions to No. 4 wheat which meets the grade qualifications of types to which loans now apply, but does not meet the weight requirement.

Small Tropical Storm Heads Toward Georgia

A tropical disturbance of slight intensity and small diameter was reported from San Juan, Peurto Rico, last night to be 50 to 70 miles north of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, the Weather Bureau announced.

The storm was moving northwestward or north-northwestward. If it continues in its present direction it may hit the Georgia coast. No high winds have been reported in connection with the disturbance, the bureau said.

Gannett Would Accept '40 Nomination, He Says

London, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Two London newspapers, the Daily Express and the Evening Standard today referred to Frank Gannett as a United States Presidential possibility in 1940 upon arrival here of the chain-newspaper publisher for a holiday.

They quoted Gannett as saying: "I have never sought office, but should accept the nomination and fight because it would be my duty. No American could refuse nomination for the Presidency."

Court Test Sought On Aerial Wedding

Los Angeles, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Superior Court was asked today to rule on the validity of a marriage performed by the captain of an airliner 3 miles above the earth and 3 miles off the coast.

Mrs. Jane Webster von Glatte filed suit after she and her husband, Eduard von Glatte, returned from a Michigan honeymoon to find that the county recorder, acting under a ruling from the county counsel's office, had refused to record the ceremony.

They were married two weeks ago by Capt. Richard Bowman, airline pilot.

3 Army Bombers To Leave Colombia

Bogota, Colombia, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Maj. Vincent J. Meloy, commander of the three U. S. Army bombers that flew here nonstop from Miami, last Friday, tonight delivered to President Eduardo Santos a message from President Roosevelt.

Santos, who was inaugurated yesterday for a four-year term, gave Meloy a reply which the Army officer will carry with him when the planes begin their return flight tomorrow.

The bombers will take off from Techo Airport at 10 a. m. for France Field, Canal Zone, en route to their base at Langley Field, Va.

Chandler Is Called To 'Poison' Inquiry

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP).—Commonwealth's Attorney Merit O'Neal said tonight Gov. A. B. Chandler and two others stricken ill in a hotel here during the Barkley-Chandler senatorial campaign, had been asked to appear before a special grand jury to investigate reports the three were poisoned from drinking water.

O'Neal said he had written "courteous letters" to the trio, but had not issued subpenas for them. Early in the night Criminal Judge Loraine Mix had called the special grand jury to meet Monday.

Wallace Adheres To Tobacco Quota

Atlanta, Aug. 8 (AP).—Secretary Wallace today advised Columbus Roberts, Georgia agriculture commissioner, that it did not appear that conditions now exist which would justify suspending the marketing quota for flue-cured tobacco sold in Georgia in the 1938-39 marketing year.

Roberts and others had asked Wallace that the quotas be suspended.

Only 100 Republicans Greet Davey in Ohio

Chardon, Ohio, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Gov. Martin L. Davey (Democrat), seeking renomination, came here for an eleventh-hour speech today and not one Democrat heard him. His audience—100 Republicans—greeted him when, on his arrival, it was discovered that the county Democratic organization had made no arrangements to entertain him.

Spine Cord Illness Held Death Cause Of Horlick Heiress

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, heiress to a malted milk fortune who died here July 6, suffered from a chronic disease of the spinal cord technically known as "progressive muscular atrophy," according to a report filed today by Dr. Eric Linell, University of Toronto pathologist.

Dr. Linell emphasized his examination was limited to the brain spinal cord at the portion of the ulnar nerve which is part of the spinal system, and made it clear his findings at present did not enable determination of the exact cause of death. He said he was still working on the case and had not yet made a final report.

The examination was filed in connection with discontinuance of inquest proceedings into Mrs. Sidley's death sought by executors of her estate.

Soviet Dooms Five For Sabotage Plot

Moscow, Aug. 8 (AP).—Frustration of a plot to wreck the coal mining industry in the Donetz Basin was reported today by the Ukrainian newspaper Socialist Donbass, which said five ringleaders were sentenced to death.

The defendants were convicted of deliberately disorganizing coal transportation and planning cave-ins and mine explosions which caused a number of casualties.

Canadian Ship Strike Averted by Contract

Montreal, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Settlement of a dispute that almost led to a strike of 1,000 seamen aboard 50 Canadian Steamship Lines' vessels was announced tonight.

A joint statement issued by J. A. Sullivan, Canadian Seamen's Union president, and T. R. Enderby, company managing director, after day-long conferences said working conditions and wage scale had been "adjusted to the satisfaction of both parties and an agreement has been entered into which will be effective until April 1, 1940." Details were not disclosed.

"Common Sense And Justice."

Negroes fighting what some of their spokesmen term "economic slavery" have won an important victory in New York City. Retail merchants in the Harlem area have agreed to give at least one-third of their white-collar jobs to members of this race. Mayor LaGuardia has fitly described the arrangement as "a tribute to common sense and justice."

The news has a particular interest for Washington because it was here that an earlier victory was won which apparently paved the way for the action in New York. Five years ago the New Negro Alliance, an organization of Washington consumers, picketed several local stores, whose customers were principally Negroes, with the slogan: "Buy Where You Can Work." The strategy had been tried before in other cities but it remained for the Washington group to win the fight. Recently the Supreme Court gave retrospective approval by ruling that this boycott was constitutional under the Norris-LaGuardia Act.

The outcome of the issue in Washington doubtless had an influence on the Harlem merchants. However, another considerable factor in the New York agreement can be fairly presumed to have been the very reasonable attitude of the Negro leaders. They stipulated that no white worker should be displaced because of the new plan, preferring to wait for natural vacancies before a Negro should be given employment. Furthermore, they have agreed to refrain from boycotting stores not participating in the agreement until after a joint arbitration committee, with plenary powers, shall have investigated.

The constructive outcome of this delicate issue must be partly ascribed to the high caliber and tactful conduct of the organizations directing the new consumer campaign. Coming at a time of intense unemployment, when the charge of discrimination against competent Negro workers has received all too much substantiation, this type of agreement is particularly welcome. Through such settlements the economic aspect of the Negro problem is receiving the thoughtful attention which its importance demands.

Maryland Tobacco.

Like many other groups, the tobacco growers of Southern Maryland are inclined to blame their troubles on the Government. If Congress would reduce the tax on cigarettes, they say, a larger number would go up in smoke, the demand for tobacco would increase and prices to growers would advance. Most of the emphasis at recent meetings of tobacco growers in the area adjacent to Washington seems to be placed on this proposed remedy.

The six-cent tax on a package of cigarettes is undoubtedly high. That does not necessarily mean, however, that it has greatly retarded consumption. Not since 1919 has the rate of this excise been changed. The difficulties of the Maryland growers appear to be of much more recent origin. Moreover, the consumption of cigarettes has moved sharply upward under the present tax. In spite of depression the demand is still increasing.

Should cigarette smoking continue to increase, it is by no means certain that Maryland growers would be substantially benefited. Some of their tobacco is used as a blend in cigarettes. But cigarettes in which this particular blend is used are said to contain only about 2 or 3 per cent Maryland tobacco. This suggests that a lowering of the Federal tax, if it did increase consumption, might redound chiefly to the benefit of other growers who seem to be less in need of aid.

The Department of Agriculture reports that only an average crop of Maryland tobacco was harvested in 1937. It is that tobacco which is now moving to market. The AAA concluded that the situation did not warrant the proposal of quotas for this particular crop. Since the supply does not seem to be abnormal, it would seem to be the shrinkage of demand for their tobacco which has brought Maryland growers to their present plight.

A few years ago nearly half of the Maryland crop was sold abroad. Now the foreign market takes only about one-fourth. There has been complaint about the quality of Maryland tobacco supplied to foreign customers. Experts assert that obsolete curing and marketing methods are at least partly responsible for this loss of foreign markets. That difficulty can be remedied only by the growers themselves.

Much more rapid progress might be made if the growers would give first consideration to modernizing their methods, instead of seeking tax relief that would increase the deficit and probably be of limited value for the objective sought.

Paradoxical.

When Gov. Martin L. Davey attempted to make political capital out of the old-age benefits distributed in Ohio he was doing, in effect, what many other candidates for re-election have done in recent months. But the Governor attempted to use the wrong agency. He carelessly ignored the fact that by soliciting support through the State's old-age assistance division he would have to reckon with the Social Security Board.

This mistake may be costly for Gov. Davey and his lieutenants, for the Social Security Board will tolerate no political encroachments upon its program. In every old-age pension plan drafted by the States to take advantage of funds provided through the Social Security Act is a provision that benefits must be distributed without partisanship, and that the State administrator must remain aloof from politics. Without such guarantees on the part of the States, their petitions for pension contributions would not be accepted by the Federal board.

Actually the board's disciplinary measures in the Ohio case are not aimed at Gov. Davey. The Governor misused the old-age pension rolls for solicitation of political support. But that is not the crux of the issue on which the Social Security Board has ordered hearings. Rather, it is the pamphlet in praise of Gov. Davey sent out to pensioners, along with that official's letter, by Henry J. Berrodin, chief of Ohio's old-age pension division. Apparently Mr. Berrodin has flagrantly violated the agreement to keep out of political contests.

Since Mr. Berrodin is directly responsible to Gov. Davey, however, the latter must expect to bear the brunt of the criticism. If the board's complaint jeopardizes his chance for renomination today, Gov. Davey will have only himself to blame. By sending its investigators to look into alleged irregularities in the administration of Ohio's old-age pension system the board was merely carrying out the spirit of the law. It could not reasonably be expected to delay the exposure of abuses because an official is seeking renomination.

While this is the first case in which the board has had to act against State officials for making political capital out of old-age pensions, Illinois and Oklahoma have both been disciplined for padding pension rolls. The board is evidently determined to act vigorously to keep the social security program free from either corruption or political abuse.

Between this commendable attitude and the political statements of WPA Administrator Hopkins there is a wide gulf. Some candidates are undoubtedly drawing support from the WPA. When Congress refused to ban politics from the administration of that agency, and when Mr. Hopkins himself set the precedent of indorsing a favorite candidate, it was inevitable that WPA should become a hunting ground for politicians. The paradoxical result is that some candidates may safely play politics with human misery while the Government cracks down on others for what is in effect the same offense.

A more consistent policy is obviously needed. There is no question, however, as to the direction which it should take. The policy of the Social Security Board points the way toward the effective improvement of governmental social service. The pursuit of political objectives with the aid of funds appropriated to relieve human want, on the contrary, is the most certain way of breaking down governmental systems of social betterment.

Taplash.

What has become of all those pretty little homilies we used to hear at the luncheon clubs about the unwisdom of trying to prove the virtue of your own product by disparaging the product of a competitor? Come to think of it, that was mostly back in the twenties, when the struggle for survival was not quite the grim and grisly business it has since become. Still, even when the going was roughest, you never heard the daily press say a word against, for instance, the Encyclopaedia Britannica or James Henry Breasted's "The Conquest of Civilization." Did you, now?

So it was not without pain that we found the monthly Almanac of the Princeton University Press working itself into something like a bad temper over the fact that, among other supposed shortcomings, the "typical American family" spends "60 times as much for newspapers as for books." "We suppose," says the Almanac, "it is cheering to know that these millions stimulate their brain cells with something anyway, even if it is mostly taplash."

Taplash, indeed! That, we submit, is a downright unfriendly word, meaning, as all our readers know, the dregs of very small beer. We were about to get into something of a temper ourselves when we were again dismayed to discover that the austere New York Times has been having its sarcastic little say about the kind of books that are written by teachers ambitious for promotion and published, presumably, by university presses. "Avoirdupois," observed the Times, "is an important factor in the scale of excellence. A two-pound book is often considered twice as valuable as a one-pound book."

This, as you might suspect, greatly ruffled the feelings, if not the dignity, of the boys at Morningside Heights. Putting on its highest rhetorical collar for the occasion, the bulletin of the Columbia University Press made this riposte: "What a scholar thinks and writes about may not appear conspicuously useful or even ultimately worthwhile to an editor of the New York Times, but it ought to. There is much that a daily newspaper prints which to some of us appears useless, or at least of dubious value."

Dear; Oh, Dear! Can't we settle all these little differences of opinion peaceably inside the trade? No use tempting customers to say, "A plague o' both your houses." After all, there is really no reason why people should not read newspapers and books, in that order.

Cholera In Shanghai.

For sheer effrontery the latest charges made by a Japanese army organ at Shanghai against the International Settlement municipal and health authorities are hard to beat.

Japan has prosecuted her undeclared war against China with unparalleled savagery. As a result of the destruction involved, millions of Chinese are now homeless, hungry and an easy prey to plagues which are encouraged by that collapse of their normal life for which Japan is alone responsible. Now, to their undoubted concern, the Japanese militarists are discovering that these disease germs are no respecters of persons, that they are capable of taking their toll among Japanese as well as Chinese.

The Health Section of the League of Nations recently announced that an epidemic of cholera is spreading very rapidly in the central, western and southwestern provinces of China. Responding to the League's appeal, various foreign governments and private agencies have rushed aid. The American Red Cross, for instance, immediately dispatched 3,000,000 doses of cholera vaccine. The National Christian Council of China is now making an urgent appeal for six doctors from the United States to engage in combating epidemics among the refugees, and it seems probable that funds to support them will be forthcoming.

But all these remedial efforts are a drop in the bucket in comparison with China's need. Much more must be done to check the ravages of plague in China and to prevent the epidemics from spreading. Cholera is already rampant in Shanghai. And it is because of alarm over this development that the Japanese high command finds a scapegoat in the municipal and health authorities of the International Settlement. According to Shanghai Nippo, an organ of the Japanese army, the foreigners have failed to take adequate measures to fight the epidemic. They are, therefore, in the opinion of this journal responsible for Shanghai's present plight.

It may be that this attack on the settlement authorities is merely part of the campaign to extend complete Japanese control over the area reserved to foreigners by treaty. But if so the technique of Tokyo is unusually inept. Japan's fundamental responsibility for the epidemics now rampant in China is something that cannot be alibied away.

Protecting Children.

Although the appalling slaughter of young children in the streets of Washington seems to have subsided in the face of an aroused public opinion, District officials are well advised in proceeding with a special safety program. The horror of the nine deaths recorded since June will wear off in time and once again youngsters will need all available protection.

The new plan is promising. Instead of trying to curb children's activities, it emphasizes greater use of playgrounds and calls for supervision of children going to and fro between these safety oases and their homes.

The hope is, of course, that the public will not permit itself soon to forget the dangers which even a slow-moving automobile represents to heedless children. More than remembering this, adults can co-operate in a constructive manner. The police are endeavoring to discourage playing in the streets. In this every one, autoists and pedestrians alike, can and should co-operate. Children seen romping in or near an open thoroughfare should be dissuaded even if it means a moment lost to the passerby.

It is reported the clothing trade is optimistic because figures show that practically all clothes in the hands of consumers are about worn out. The man who is broke and down to his last pair of pants, however, isn't so cheerful.

A Losing Game.

From L'Illustration, Montreal.

The Hon. Mr. Dunning, minister of finance, alleges that the present American "recession" has something to do with the manner in which United States "reciprocity" hits Canada so hard.

When it was not the "recession" it was something else, for we have always been losers each time that we have made a commercial agreement with our big southern neighbors. As long as an agreement with Canada was good business for them, the neighboring republic held to it; but as soon as it might prove unfavorable to it, it denounced the agreement without warning. Not satisfied with the disastrous results which the accord of 1936 has had upon us, the King-Lapointe regime now desires to extend its terms to hundreds of other articles. One can imagine what a bitter pill our economic body must swallow, for one can understand that the American government will not hesitate to compensate itself at the expense of our commerce and our industry for the unfortunate results of its own internal policy of crazy expense, waste and extravagance . . .

Our commercial history proves that if we have always been the losers with the United States our commerce with British countries has always been favorable. It is still the latter that offers us the greater advantages and stability. It is that which should be most favored, cared for and developed.

New York's "Thing."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your paper indicates there is some uncertainty at the Central Park Zoo in New York about whether to call the new guest a liger or a tigon or even a tilion, but I note that the New York Times, as though there were no two ways about it, calls it flatly a tiglon.

Of course, almost any combination of syllables is possible, especially if one is permitted to use the scientific names of the parent beasts, "leo" and "felis tigris." Thus "feleo" which you will agree is quite euphonius; "leoti," which conveys the idea of the bar sinister; "leofelist" which, I think you will admit, does convey the idea of belonging to some rare category, and Sir Git-el, which, of course, is an anagram.

However, after a good look at the picture in The Post of August 7 and remembering what the doughty cisalpine farmer said on beholding Hannibal's elephants, I am inclined to prefer the English and to call it simply "lier."

BONAVENTURE GINSBERG.
Washington, Aug. 7.

What He'd Do.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Coleman is right in charging I'm a 100 per cent anti-New Dealer. The Deal's unfolding has made me that. But he misses the point: I "voted Roosevelt" in '32, thinking he was "the man." I was willing to be shown. I'm still willing—and waiting. If Mr. Coleman believes I accused him of being 100 per cent New Deal, apologies are proffered. I'd make no such awful charge against any human.

I take it we're both too mature to be deluded by mere partisan political bunk. But Mr. Coleman, I'm sorry to see, adopts the old New Deal standby: You find fault. What'd you do in place? (This challenge covering any of a hundred deal fatuities). Well, a full answer would ride me through Pegler's preserves!

I'd drop such "controlled scarcity" programs as brought cotton pickers and farm hands to the city to go on "uncontrolled" relief, and endanger foreign markets. Drop off the list as number one claptrap the one about "vested interests," whose co-operation, political statement to the contrary, has been fulsome. I'd give up expecting co-operation from industry after backing up the rabid labor leaders in the disgraceful cooked-up messes of 1937. I'd stop somewhere in this imposing the government on business. I'd drop the mask as "savior of the great mass of unemployed," the valuable vote fodder. I'd come out with a courageous plea for building wages under those now stagnating the industry. I'd have the guts to speak clearly on railroad wages, instead of deploring necessity of cuts—whose great crime would be increasing employment.

The trouble is the "vested interests" are small businessmen like myself. The crime of it is we're raring to go. We seek no extravagant profits, in most cases not enough to offset risks—I mean this—but a decent living, and activity. Twelve million workless in this country is a crime; I'd blame no political entity for trying to palm off blame. I'd expect it to do just that, but I'd refuse to be duped.

This again merely skims the surface of what I might say.

E. BARR.
Washington, August 5.

"Loose Language."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reply to your editorial of August 2, entitled "Loose Language," we would like to point out that the use of the phrase "urban lynching" at the meeting against police brutality on July 31 was based on sound facts. Lynchings are acts of violence against an individual based upon an accusation, causing his death, without giving this individual any right to be heard. We feel that the use of the gun by the armed force of the law against Washington Negroes is in most instances a warning to them that they must accept the iniquities they suffer from in the Capital.

The difference you draw between the Keys case and the Warde case, to us, holds no water. You are evidently misinformed or are trying to misrepresent facts on the Keys case and therefore feel justified in saying that the statement at the meeting that a Negro in Warde's place "would have been shot" was an exaggeration. Keys was not armed with a butcher knife and did not endanger the lives of others.

The last statement in your editorial that the criminal record puts the local policemen up against it is, to us, a poor apology for police killings in the District. Can these records be accurate when nightly Negro men are roped in on trumped-up charges, held incommunicado several days, and are released when insufficient grounds for their retention exist, yet leave "criminal records" behind them?

CALVIN COUSINS,
Chairman, Negro Commission,
District 34, Communist Party,
Washington, Aug. 5.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of August 2, captioned "Loose Language," has running through it a fear of serious trouble resulting from speeches made at a recent mass meeting against police brutality. The threat of serious trouble will always hang over us if the cause of the threat is not removed or remedied. The cause cannot be removed by "soft-soap" methods. That has been tried, with no results.

The remarks made by speakers at the mass meeting in question did not come from loose, imaginative minds without any forethought. They were made after years of careful observation and study. No intelligent law-abiding citizen would make any such remarks against the law-enforcement agency of his community without a just cause.

No one denies the fact the Police Department of Washington have their hands full in keeping crime at a minimum. But this does not necessitate the shooting of unarmed suspicious persons, or insulting peaceful citizens who speak up for their rights. Under American law a person is innocent of a crime until he is proven otherwise. A court of law is the place where punishment is decreed for a lawbreaker, not the scene of arrest.

A person, demented or otherwise, armed with a knife of any kind can harm only those within the reach of his arms. If he barricaded himself he could only harm his person. Keys, the demented war veteran, did not barricade himself so tightly that firemen could not play water on any fire he started.

Recently an elderly demented woman armed with a pistol took several shots at police officers, and was finally subdued with tear gas. Why couldn't the demented war veteran, recently slain by the police, have been subdued the same way? Did the race of the two above mentioned principals have anything to do with the methods used by the police? What would have happened if the demented woman with the pistol had been colored? This is not loose language, but intelligent questions some people don't like to be asked.

R. M. FORD.
Washington, Aug. 3.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to the fault-finding by the colored people regarding the District police, I can't imagine why the colored people, any more than the white, should take so much offense. I think the police try to do their duty by both white and colored. In fact, I do not think the police ever aim to kill, but in dealing with a crazy man or a criminal, it's whoever shoots first. Why should the innocent suffer and the guilty escape?

I would like to know the statistics of crime among the colored in comparison to the white in the District.

M. M. MAY.
Washington, Aug. 5.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am grieved at the attitude which The Post has taken in the matter of police brutality toward members of the Negro race. In your editorial of August 2, titled "Loose Language," your criticism of the remarks made by persons who have for years suffered injustices and marked cruelties is very unfair and discouraging.

It is to be expected that an outstanding publication such as The Post shall ever be above condoning brutality to the extent that it will not construe what is really figurative expression as "Loose Language." The John Warde and the Leroy Keys cases were compared as might be the strength of a lion with that of an unusually powerful man. We frequently hear the expression, "He is as strong as a lion" and readily understand the inference.

It is, however, difficult for a human being who is not a member of the Negro race to appreciate the unwarranted discrimination which our Government sanctions, in spite of the fact that Negroes are true and loyal and are taxed at the same rate as other citizens.

D. W. FRAZIER.
Washington, Aug. 6.

"Protect The Child."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When riding, you often hear the impatient remark, "People should keep their children at home."

Homes today, many of them, are apartment houses or rooming houses, with no yards or playgrounds attached. Every apartment house should have a playground for children, unless you are going to cease having children. And if you are going to do it by "scientific birth control," you will in a few years have no need for apartments—no people to occupy them.

Human beings should have preference in the matter of "right of way" over machines. The life of one dear little boy or girl is worth more than all the automobiles of your city. Let every man or woman reduce his (or her) speed and be prepared to stop instantly, if necessary. For life is sweet, so sweet, to the dear little boy or girl. This wild rush for sport and money greed and selfishness would fill a Flanders field every year.

Protect the little child. Give the child the preference, not the automobile or the automobile industry. Let every man or woman walk, if it is necessary to protect life.

Ars Longa; 3 R's Breva.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Colleges, business schools and employers complain that graduates of the District High Schools are deficient in spelling, arithmetic and penmanship.

The blame for these deficiencies is laid at the doorstep of the District Junior High Schools, since it is in these schools that stress must be laid on the above mentioned subjects. It is contended that instead of concentrating in the Junior High Schools on these important subjects, much time is spent on clubs and other activities which should play only a minor part in these schools.

It is further contended that the teachers in these schools must spend much valuable time in conducting these clubs and activities and in devising new tricks to make the clubs successful and the activities interesting. A teacher nowadays must be a human dynamo or a go-getter in order to be a good teacher instead of being one who is able to teach her alloted subjects properly, it is contended.

Are these contentions without foundation?

August Monody.

THESE are sad days for us . . . The quiet odor of yellow summer roses, the soul-maddening fragrance of the Chinaberry tree wafted o'er the fresh-washed earth on a gentle southern breeze, the chorused songs of the honey-throated birds, the festivity that is summer in the suburb of Takoma—all this—all this is as naught to us.

For nothing matters, now that Eric is gone—

Nothing.

First it was Barney (named Barnacle Bill). Now it is Eric (who, if he is named after anyone at all, must be named after that young tow-headed lad who waits upon us at supper).

Eric we loved. But no longer will we return home to our little cottage to find him greeting us with a glad look in his little black eyes. No longer will he delight us with little tricks his mother taught him. No longer will he amaze us by the extent of his wardrobe (a seagreen coat, a dark green one, a black, and a turquoise-colored one—not excluding a nodescript one that he kept for these rainy days).

We took a simple delight in his companionship. We were careful not to forget mealtimes. We even sometimes had tea ready for him when he woke from one of his frequent naps. We went to the trouble of using our car (a modest make) as a trap for flies for him. We stalked flies for him every spare moment we had or could steal. We cunningly lured the filthy insects into our home with false promises, that Eric might have a full belly.

We devised a way to serve his meals in such a wise that the service was perfect because it was in no way apparent. We chose a nice clean straw from our best broom, a straw that was forked at the end. In this fork we carefully inserted the neck of a choice fly and thus we handed up to Eric his food. We breathlessly watched him lick at the fly, chew it up with a gentle motion of the jaws, hoping to find approval if not gratitude in his manner.

On rainy days he was apt to be sullen-tempered. Then we coaxed him with a bit of sugar.

We arranged for his greater comfort a home with a very nice little garden attached—flowers and shrubbery, and really friendly ants. On days of sunshine, we took him for little excursions in the waving fields of weeds in the lots adjoining our home.

We took good care of Eric. But he—the ingrate!—he spurned all this. One bright afternoon, upon returning home, I opened the door and was on the point of calling out cheerily, "Hi, Eric, m'lad!" when I discovered that he was not on the curtain (his usual perch). Quick as a flash, though, I had a premonition as to what had really happened.

I began to search all the cracks in the walls and in the floor for Eric. I was even careful to examine the legs of all the chairs (because once before, when Eric was missed, after a long, exhausting search he was found on the leg of the morris chair very cunningly trying his best to look like the leg.)

Long and sadly did I search, knowing full well within my heart that Eric was gone forever . . . and we, behind, left to mourn.

Always now at home we step carefully on the carpets, for Eric may be beneath them only playing a little trick on us—a little trick that might well end in the tragedy of death if we took not care to step lightly, first feeling out the floor with our feet before we step (which is a damned nuisance, if you ask).

Little do we know for what parts Eric left. He may have gone hunting for big game in the woods next door; he may have departed for his distant home in Florida. Sometimes, when fear is upon us, we think that he may have unwittingly crawled out through one of the holes in our floor into the jaws of one of the hens that live beneath our house.

But wherever you may be, Eric, our little chameleon, there will always be a fly buzzing in the window for you.

Tea And The Empire.

From London comes the story of a nurse on duty in the home of a peeress who found a strange man packing up the silver at 4 in the morning. According to the British reporter, the burglar apologized. "I broke into your house," he said. "I have been vainly looking for a job. I am desperate and hungry." It is interesting, incidentally, to learn that cornered burglars talk that way outside of fiction, but let that pass. "Too bad," the nurse is reported to have said softly. "Let me make you some tea." Which she did, after calling the police.

The story is cited, not as an example of how British burglars talk or British nurses act or of the stern devotion to duty of British police. Rather is it offered as a demonstration of how a true Britisher acts in trying circumstances.

When consols go down and the debt goes up, the English broker does not hurl himself from a tenth story window to the inconvenience of the passersby. He calls for a spot of tea. The jilted lover, the condemned murderer in the shadow of the gallows, the prospective father waiting in the hospital corridor—only tea enables them to bear their agonies.

Macaulay once wrote of that sad day "When some traveler from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's" As he sketches, the sun may penetrate the fog and shine on a porcelain shard. If the New Zealander investigates, he will find the remains of a broken tea cup, the symbol of an empire that was great until it gave up drinking tea.

Fair Enough

News-Men And G-Men.

IT is impossible to deny that, as Edgar Hoover says in an article in Collier's, newspaper reporters sometimes do embarrass the so-called G-men and other police by premature publication of news which tips off criminals that the cops are close. But it is not necessarily true, and Mr. Hoover offers no evidence that the murder of the Levine boy in New Rochelle was caused or hastened by the conduct of the reporter who trapped the child's father into an admission by posing as an agent of the kidnapers in a telephone conversation.

It would seem more likely that in this case and in the Mattson case the criminals never had any intention to return the victims, and killed them as soon as they conveniently could. A captive, living child is a dangerous handicap to a criminal who knows that a murder adds little if anything to the penalty he has already deserved. Mr. Hoover, who boasts that many of his agents are lawyers and that all of them, himself included, know evidence, makes an emotional accusation against the reporters in these two instances, but does not support it with anything that even resembles proof.

• • • •

DO YOU WANT to know something about Mr. Hoover? He is spoiled. The American press has treated him as a sacred cow. His department is still talking about the glamorization of criminals long after the press took to glamorizing him and his men instead. He has been praised in proportion to the very fine feats of detection his bureau has achieved, and a little beyond, for the G-men have received entire credit for some jobs in which other agencies took part. He is a great personal press agent, and he has pet writers, or stooges with access to big newspaper and magazine circulation, who scratch his back in return for material that glorifies Edgar Hoover and the G's.

I would like to point out, too, that, as Mr. Hoover himself has indicated more than once, there are a lot of crooked police and prosecutors serving crooked politicians in various cities in this country, and that, as he failed to point out, newspaper reporters often have turned up and called irresistible public attention to evidence which local officials were trying to ignore or were too stupid to discover. The Hall-Mills case in New Brunswick, N. J., was so badly handled that it was only in response to the work of reporters that the body of Mrs. Mills was exhumed after some time to reveal the fact that she had been not only shot but almost beheaded by a knife. It was the enterprise of a newspaper that compelled the prosecution of Walter Ward in White Plains after the local authorities had dropped proceedings against the son of a millionaire in a slight case of murder. There have been many such incidents.

• • • •

AS MR. HOOVER has reason to know, the police of Kansas City are the minions of the most corrupt politico-underworld machine that this country has produced since the day in Minneapolis when several of the high-ranking police officials and even the mayor himself were sent to prison, largely through the enterprise of newspaper reporters, for doing business not merely with prostitutes but with burglars and stickups as well. Mr. Hoover knows that the Kansas City force is used to protect open gambling and prostitution in places holding the sanction of the organization, and to suppress these activities in plants whose operators do not pay their dues.

A reporter working on a big crime story in Kansas City cannot reasonably be asked to hold back or totally suppress news-evidence on the representation of such police that premature publication would be embarrassing. The police might be trying to cover up a pet criminal. Mr. Hoover has had experience with the Kansas City police. He knows that the same is true of much of rural Missouri and rural Indiana, and it has not been long since his own boss, Homer Cummings, was moved to say, apropos several inside jobs in the St. Paul Police Department, that there was something rotten in St. Paul.

He seems to need reminding, too, that his own bureau, the F. B. I., during his own service in the same, has been guilty of crooked work, with particular reference to the Harding era, when Gaston Means was a G-man and William J. Burns was chief.

• • • •

I DIVIDE Mr. Hoover's complaint against reporters by the significant fact that in his personal association with members of the craft his instinct has selected for his special crony and press agent one who is notorious throughout the newspaper business as a louse in the blouse of American journalism.

Man Sells Old Car At $25 to Pay $5 Bad-Brakes Fine

Bernard A. Weiner, of New York City, was fined $5 in Traffic Court yesterday, but he came out $20 ahead.

Traffic Policeman Clark Coleman arrested Weiner for driving a 1929 Ford with a bad hand brake, bad windshield, no tags and no permit. Judge Walter J. Casey fined him $2 for the bad windshield, $3 for the bad handbrake and took his personal bond on the other charges.

Weiner was disgusted because he came here to accept a Government position and had no use for the old car.

A policeman in the Eighth Precinct Station where Weiner was booked, offered him $25 for it. Weiner immediately accepted but warned the patrolman what happened to him for driving "that old crate."

Litvinoff Proposes Truce To Japanese Envoy With Joint Survey Of Disputed Manchukuo Border To Follow.

Following are extracts from an official communique as published in the Moscow press of August 8:

ON AUGUST 7 Japanese Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu again visited Mr. Maxim Litvinoff, People's Commissar of Foreign Affairs. Taking advantage of the occasion Mr. Litvinoff reminded the Ambassador that several days ago the latter, on behalf of the Japanese government, proposed discontinuance of hostilities and received the reply that as soon as attacks and firing from the Manchurian side have been discontinued it will be unnecessary for the Soviet side to resort to military actions in reply. Thus cessation of hostilities depended exclusively upon the Japanese side.

Unfortunately the attacks of Japanese troops upon Soviet territory were repeated the very next day. Artillery fire including shelling by heavy guns from Manchurian territory recommenced, compelling the Soviet side to return the artillery fire and to use aviation. Although the Japanese attacks were beaten off and the remnants of the Japanese troops forced out of Soviet territory one cannot but regret what happened and place upon the Japanese government responsibility for the victims on both sides.

Frontier Guards Not Supposed To Be Armed.

MR. LITVINOFF pointed out that as regards the clashes in the area of Lake Khassan one cannot speak of a frontier incident which presupposes encounters between frontier guards. Frontier guards usually do not have artillery while in this case the first Japanese offensive was undertaken with the assistance of artillery.

Apparently there was an attempt to seize Soviet territory in peacetime or even to draw Japan into war with the U. S. S. R. Herein lies the whole danger of this clash to which the Japanese government should pay the most serious attention.

Replying to Ambassador Shigemitsu's remark that Japanese troops hold only a defensive position, being obliged to defend Manchurian territory Mr. Litvinoff retorted that no one had attacked or intended to attack Japanese territory and that Japanese troops obviously have a very peculiar notion of defense if they regard attack upon Soviet outposts, shelling them and occupation of a line on Soviet territory as defense.

Ambassador Shigemitsu stated that he came to repeat his proposal for cessation of hostilities by the troops of both sides which should remain in the same position in which the agreement finds them. Thereafter in his opinion it will be possible to proceed to the creation of a commission of representatives of the U. S. S. R. and Manchukuo with the participation of the Japanese for definition of the frontier.

Commissar Demands Japanese Withdrawal.

MR. LITVINOFF pointed out that the situation on the spot may change and that both sides will try to occupy the most advantageous position at the moment of the agreement which implies continuation of the hostilities. In any case no agreement is possible if even the smallest Japanese military unit remains on Soviet territory. None is there now but some may appear if the Ambassador's proposal were accepted. If the Japanese side guarantees that attacks on Soviet territory and firing from Manchurian territory is discontinued by a certain time, the Soviet side will give similar guarantees with regard to Manchurian territory.

Ambassador Shigemitsu insisted at length upon his proposal for cessation of hostilities on the basis of the situation factually existing at the definite moment, and then advanced a proposal for withdrawal of the troops of both sides to a certain distance. For use in redemarcation of the frontier Ambassador Shigemitsu proposed the Hunchung Agreement as well as other material which may be at the disposal of Manchukuo or Japan.

Hunchung Agreement Proposed As Arbiter.

Mr. Litvinoff said that since Japanese troops had attacked Soviet territory and thus provoked the conflict one would welcome their withdrawal somewhat farther to avoid repetition of attacks and that this would be additional guaranty.

Hostilities are to be discontinued after both sides pledge neither to cross nor to fire over a definite line and to recall their troops if they happen to be found beyond that line at the moment of agreement. The frontier drawn on the map annexed to the Hunchung Agreement is recognized as such a line and thus the situation which existed before July 29, i. e., before the first intrusion of Japanese troops into Soviet territory will be restored. After peace has been restored on the frontier a bilaterial commission consisting of two representatives of the U. S. S. R. and on the other side of one representative of Japan and one representative of Manchuria will go to the frontier and proceed on the spot to redemarcation of the frontier established by the Hunchung Agreement and the protocols and map annexed thereto.

The Ambassador promised to consider the content of the conversation and to return later to it.

Northern Lights Make No 'Swish,' Scientist Asserts

The belief that singing or swishing noises usually accompany aurora borealis displays was discounted by Dr. A. S. Eve, of McGill University, yesterday in a statement published by the Smithsonian Institution.

Numerous witnesses have asserted that northern lights are accompanied by sounds like the swish of a silk dress or the whistle of wind in the rigging of a ship. Some insisted the sound swelled or diminished as the lights flared or waned.

"But it has been established," said Dr. Eve, "that the lights are at least 60 miles away in the rarified upper levels of the atmosphere where conditions are very close to those of a vacuum, in which sound does not travel at all."

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Spanish Problem.

Paris, Aug. 8.

ALTHOUGH the main point of danger in Europe is Czechoslovakia, the problem of Spain is almost as critical. It may be said that in the last analysis none of the several governments concerned has as yet been able to understand the problem well enough to make a policy that works. Thus far, every government has learned to its dismay that what it supposed would happen in the Spanish peninsula has, in fact, not happened. This is the one certain conclusion about Spain—that since 1935 Russia, Italy, Germany, Great Britain and France have found that their theories about Spain have been shattered by experience.

• • • •

THE CIVIL WAR broke out two years ago, in July, 1936. It is, I think, reasonably well established that in the preceding year Russia believed that the Popular Front government in Spain was drifting rapidly to the Left, and that Spain was approaching the condition when a proletarian dictatorship would be feasible. The Spanish Republican Propaganda today denies this, of course, but the available evidence shows, I think, that even if a Communist revolution was not imminent in 1936, there was at least an increasing disorder and a breaking down of the authority of the legally elected government. Where the Russians miscalculated was in thinking that this disintegration would lead to a Communist victory.

It led instead to a military counter-revolution assisted and perhaps even engineered from Rome and Berlin. But here again all the calculations were wrong. For there is no doubt that Gen. Franco was supposed to seize the power as suddenly and as swiftly as Hitler and Mussolini had seized power, and that all opposition was to be overcome promptly by overwhelming military force and a reign of terror. Gen. Franco and his backers did not expect and were not prepared for a civil war.

• • • •

THE UNEXPECTED CIVIL war brought the Russians, the Italians and the Germans to the position where they had either to abandon their partisans in Spain or to help them at the risk of turning the Spanish civil war into an international war. At this point Britain and France had to take a hand in the matter, their object being to prevent the international war immediately and to prevent the Italians and Germans from esablishing themselves permanently in Spain. To do this they devised the nonintervention committee. Its supporters call it a useful fiction; its critics call it a piece of blatant hypocrisy.

Whatever it is to be called, the effect of the nonintervention committee has been to allow Italy and Germany to help Gen. Franco so much that he has been able to take the offensive and conquer a large part of Spain, and yet to allow Russia with some French assistance to help the republicans enough to keep the resistance alive. So Gen. Franco has been able to win battles but not to win the war. And as long as a substantial part of Spanish territory is not under his control, as long as there is in being another army and another government, Gen. Franco's victorious battles bring him no nearer to a decision. For unless he can destroy all opposition in front of him, he is in continual danger of being overthrown by the suppressed opposition behind him.

In the late winter of this year, however, sufficient supplies and troops had been furnished to Gen. Franco to enable him to fight his way to the sea and cut the Republican resistance into two parts. At that point it was supposed not only in Rome but also in London that after all Gen. Franco was about to win a decision. On this assumption Britain and Italy negotiated an agreement, Mussolini expecting to obtain the prestige of a quick victory in Spain, Britain believing that when he had won Gen. Franco would have to come to London for financial support.

But the calculation was upset by the French, who opened their frontiers, and let the Republicans have enough munitions to keep them in the field for three months. With these munitions and with the Spanish Republican morale made firm by desperation the victory that Mussolini expected Gen. Franco to win has not been won. Moreover, in his effort to win a victory Gen. Franco has taken military risks which might yet prove to have been unjustified if the Spanish Republicans can obtain more weapons.

At the moment they cannot get many more weapons because the French have closed their frontier. But it is understood that if Mussolini should now try to intervene more strongly for Gen. Franco, the French will again open their frontier. In short, the situation is one of deliberate and intended stalemate.

• • • •

THERE ARE fairly good reasons for thinking that a military stalemate is just about what the British and French now think they want. For while sympathies are deeply divided in both countries about the merits of the civil war, there is an approach to substantial agreement on certain fundamentals. The first is that the Republicans cannot reconquer Spain and that they could not govern it well if they did. The second is that if Gen. Franco won he could not govern Spain with his own force and that he would have to depend upon the Germans and Italians. But since this would create a new hostile frontier for France and threaten the maritime communications of Britain and France, a victory for Franco is not desirable. The third is that a military stalemate offers the best chance of a constructive solution of the Spanish problem.

For once it were made clear to both sides in Spain that neither would be able to conquer the other, an armistice might be arranged. This would leave Spain with two governments, which might conceivably be persuaded to accept a federal solution, or if that is too complicated, at least to accept a truce. In either event the war would cease. In either event Spain would be neutralized because it would be too weak to take the offensive in case of a general European war. And if there is no general war a truce would give patriotic and moderate Spaniards a chance to assert themselves both in the Franco territories and in the Republican territories. For as long as the civil war continues, no moderate of constructive action is possible on either side.

• • • •

OVER ALL THIS hangs a great and ominous doubt. It is whether a way can be found to make Mussolini feel that a military stalemate and a truce are consistent with the maintenance of his personal prestige. That is the most incalculable element in a situation which has been at all times so incalculable that every statesman who has tried to deal with it has burned his fingers.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Millinery Notes.

Wives, mothers and daughters are going to be pretty hard to look at and keep a straight face this winter. Those "doll hats" (you've seen a few of 'em already) have been officially decreed as the style for fall and winter wear.

• • • •

Hats apparently designed for comedy effect are nothing new, but the latest models appear to be the answer to a practical jokers dream.

• • • •

They are literally doll hats, although even a doll never looked any too good in one. They may best be described as being too small for a hat and too large for a hair ornament.

• • • •

A preview of the new bonnets was held in New York under the auspices of the Military Stabilization Commission, Inc. (Didja ever hear of that one before?) and the things were generally approved on the ground that what America needs is more laughter.

• • • •

One of the big advantages would appear to be that a girl can wear two or three hats at one time.

• • • •

And still seem to be bareheaded!

• • • •

We can imagine the scene in a millinery department when mother pops in to get some new headgear next month:

Mother—I'd like to see something in a new hat.

Milliner—Gosh, will we have fun!

Mother—What's the style this fall?

Milliner—I haven't the heart to go into it in detal; suppose I just show you the models?

Mother (rather irritably, as she tries to brush something off her forehead—Dear me! What a persistent horsefly. You really ought to screen this place better.

Milliner—That's no horsefly. It's one of the new hats!

Mother (taking a closer look at the mirror)—I didn't even know you had put it on me.

Milliner—We have to do it as gently as possible. Pretty nice, eh?

Mother—Where's the rest of it?

Milliner—What do you mean "the rest of it"?

Mother—Why, it's so small!

Milliner—The one you have on is oversized; we are selling 'em this season ever smaller than that.

Mother—But don't you think they make me look a little funny?

Milliner (critically)—Yes, just a little. Wait! I'll dig up something that will make you 100 per cent ridiculous.

• • • •

And so on. Mom will, of course, realize that in a doll's hat she looks like the cartoonist's delight. She will put up a battle for a hat that looks like a hat and not a kindergarten design for a radiator ornament. But she will surrender as usual.

• • • •

And is pop going to be in an unusually tough place when she first inquires, "I got a new hat, Gideon. How do I look in it?"

How To Get A Job

By Mark Sullivan

The Kirkman Case.

I OUGHT to say to readers of these small disquisitions of mine that they might do better to read other authors. In any of several classics—"Gulliver's Travels," "Alice in Wonderland," Voltaire—they will find equal strangeness of situation, quite as much humor, and, of course, infinitely better writing. However, those classics deal with imagined situations, in the long past—while these narratives of mine are of today and recite facts. Moreover, the present narrative answers a current question, personal to millions of young men. It tells how to get a job, reveals an infallible method. Indeed this account does more—it tells how to draw pay without working.

I assure you the incident here recounted actually happened. I take the facts from an official document: Hearings of the National Labor Relations Board now being held at Catlettsburg, Ky., in the case of C. I. O. and the American Rolling Mill Co.—called, in the hearings, "Armco."

• • • •

GUY KIRKMAN was an employe of Armco. He was a member of C. I. O. He continues to be an employe of Armco. He is all right. It is his son, Harold, that the contention here recounted is about.

Son Harold graduated from high school two years ago. Young Harold asked Armco to give him a job. Armco did not give the young man a job.

Two years went by. Last May the National Labor Board made a complaint against Armco, charging that Armco had tried to stifle organization of its plant by C. I. O. In the complaint, the labor board, among other charges, made this.

"On or about August 1, 1936, it (Armco) refused to employ Harold Kirkman because his father, Guy Kirkman, one of its employes, opposed its efforts to stifle union organization . . ."

Upon this complaint, the labor board is now holding hearings, from which I quote. The attorney for the Labor Board is questioning one of Armco's officials:

"If a man applied for a job and you knew that the father had been disloyal to Armco, would that make any difference so far as your consideration of the applicant was concerned?"

• • • •

THERE ENSUED objection by the attorney for Armco, and some discussion of the language and meaning of the official complaint against Armco. To make the matter clear, the trial examiner asked the attorney for the labor board the specific question:

"Is it the labor board's contention that Harold Kirkman is seeking employment and the labor board is seeking an order to direct the respondent (Armco) to hire Harold Kirkman if you sustain the allegations of the complaint?"

To this the attorney for the labor board replied:

"We are seeking relief to the full extent of the national labor relations act for Harold Kirkman. We are seeking affirmative relief for Harold Kirkman because of the discrimination against him."

The attorney for Armco, somewhat surprised, asked:

"Do I understand the board's attorneys contend that they can seek an order asking this company to hire Harold Kirkman; is that it?"

The attorney for the labor board indicated that was it, and more than that. He said:

"And, if the board finds it advisable, to pay Harold Kirkman back pay for the two years he has not been employed by the company."

• • • •

THE ATTORNEY for Armco seemed rather appalled. He said:

"We can have every relative of a C. I. O. man offer a complaint he has not been employed because of his C. I. O. relative . . . Because he is a relative of a C. I. O. man we must take him, because otherwise we are discriminating against him."

That is all the record shows of this incident so far. I know nothing more of the circumstances of that case. But one can imagine future cases. One can imagine a future technique being developed. The way to get a job—or to get "back pay" without having a job, is simple. The formula for the problem before American youth is this:

Get dad to join C. I. O. Then go to dad's boss and ask for a job for yourself. Preferably, I suppose the presumed seeker for a job would be wise to make the request in such circumstances that the boss won't be likely to give him the job. Then, when the boss doesn't give you the job, go to the National Labor Relations Board and say that you were refused a job because your father belongs to C. I. O.

That, one would infer, is the way for a son to get a job—or not get a job but get pay for the job he didn't get. Whether the formula extends to nephews, cousins, or other degrees of consanguinity does not appear.

The War Season

By Barnet Nover

What The Records Show.

ACCORDING to dopesters in London, as reported recently by Joseph Driscoll, Germany will strike at Czechoslovakia on or about August 15, at which time the long-threatened European war may break out.

The very certainty of this prediction discredits it and Mr. Driscoll himself suggests that it "not be taken too seriously." Yet the fact is significant that so many people in England and on the continent do accept as valid the theory that war is just over the horizon. Right or wrong, this widespread belief reveals Europe's state of mind.

In part this psychosis is attributable to long-prevailing tensions which statesmanship has proved unable to eliminate. But a contributing factor, no doubt, is the memory of the fact that the last World War also broke out in August. August, it is popularly believed, is the month of wars.

• • • •

BUT THE records do not bear this out. Europe has been the scene of innumerable wars. Indeed, between the French Revolution and the World War practically every decade saw some kind of fighting between two or more nations on that continent. Only a few of these wars, however, broke out in August.

The most popular month for the beginning of hostilities in Europe during the past 150 years has been April. It was in April, 1792, that the French Assembly declared war on Austria, thus beginning a struggle that was to last with only occasional breathing spells of uncertain peace until Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo 23 years later. Eight years later, France having been restored to orthodoxy by the Holy Alliance, was given the mandate to intervene in Spain and put down a revolution. French troops crossed the Pyrennes on April 7, 1823.

April was also the month when war broke out between Russia and Turkey in 1828 and again when these same powers came to grips in 1877. The war between Austria and the Kingdom of Sardinia in 1859, one of the stepping stones toward Italian unification, began in April, as did the Greek war of independence from Turkey in 1821, the Greco-Turkish war of 1897 and the war between Soviet Russia and Poland in 1920.

• • • •

RELATIVELY few European wars of the past century and a half have broken out in May; June, however, has been a more sanguinary month. It was on June 24, 1812 that Napoleon's legions began to cross the Nieman for the invasion of Russia that was to prove so disastrous to the Emperor.

It was the same month of roses, 1814, that saw Napoleon's last bid for power and his final eclipse. The fighting between Prussia and Austria, allies earlier in the war against Denmark over Schleswig-Holstein, occurred in June, 1866. And June also saw the beginning of the second Balkan War (1913).

July is another month of wars. It marked the actual beginning of the Crimean War for it was in July, 1853, that the Czar's armies occupied the principalities of the Danube in defiance of Turkey and the western powers. Real fighting did not occur, however, for some months. The Franco-German War of 1870 that was to force Napoleon III into exile, make possible the final unification of Germany and establish the Reich as the dominant power on the continent occurred also in July. And it was in the same month 34 years later that Austria's declaration of war against Serbia doomed all efforts to prevent a general European conflict.

AUGUST, 1914, saw the beginning of the World War. But the only other important conflict that started in that torrid month was the Peninsular War (1808) in which Wellington gave the first serious blow to Napoleon's dream of dominating all Europe. Britain then as now was interested in Spain's fate. But that interest took a decidedly different form in those days from what it does at the present moment.

European wars have also broken out in February, as for instance, Bismarck's war against Denmark in 1866; in March, as was the case when the Milanese rose against Austria in 1848; in September, which saw the outbreak of the Italo-Turkish war of 1911; in October, when the first Balkan war (1913) occurred, and in November, the month which, in 1888, saw Serbia and Bulgaria at war.

WHAT DOES all this prove? Nothing, perhaps, except that when men are bundled up and have to hug fires to keep warm; when roads are frozen and the soil sleeps under snow, mankind stays at peace. On the other hand as the sun mounts in the heavens, as the days get longer, as the earth awakes from its winter sleep and begins to produce flower and fruit, the combative instincts are awakened or, at least, have a better opportunity to manifest themselves. And they have done so with grim regularity during these many decades.

War may and may not break out in the next weeks. The odds, all things considered, would seem to be against it even though, as the well-worn phrase has it, Europe is at the mercy of an incident. But if peace is maintained during the next months and if history is any guide that should mean peace for some months to come, at least until the spring.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Now that this column has completed a disjointed series of articles on the general theme of "There Aren't Any Jobs in Washington," E. Claude Babcock, president of the Federal Personnel Association, takes up in his publication, "The Federal Service," to say that the high cost of living makes many jobs untenable—even if you get a job.

He urges his association members to "advise friends back home not to come to Washington for the low-paid jobs if they have family responsibilities" without a full understanding of what it costs to keep a full lard tub, a roof over your head and the costs of transportation.

As a consequence, he says, many Federal employes are striving for transfers to their home States—"and the national office is trying in each case to help these members to make the necessary contacts to effectuate the change desired, but at best the procedure requires time and patience."

And to those outsiders who dream dreams of lush offices and fat Federal pay checks we commend Babcock's article, along with our own reiterated feeling that lush offices and fat Federal pay checks in Washington are few and far between.

In looking over the catalogue of recent Government publications, we find a pamphlet titled "Tertiary Noetinae." Not knowing what this means, we read the accompanying data which revealed that the pamphlet discussed "systematically all the species and genera that are referrable to the sub-family Noetinae," and so gave it up without knowing whether we have missed something by not buying the pamphlet.

Iowa Governor Is Called Enemy By Labor League

Labor's Non-Partisan League, headed by John L. Lewis, declared last night that Gov. Nelson G. Kraschell of Iowa had "forfeited the backing of labor throughout his State" by using the National Guard to force a settlement of the Maytag strike at Newton, Ia.

E. L. Oliver, executive vice president of the league, issued a statement asserting such use of armed force "should be a warning to the American people" and declared Congress would have to deal with the problem.

By his use of armed force to settle the Maytag strike, the league continued, Kraschel "classified himself automatically as an instrument of the financial interests which had become alarmed at the prolonged, successful stoppage of operation of the Maytag plant through the strike."

Lost Pilot Hunted In Alaskan Wilds

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 8 (AP).—Aerial photographers and other pilots scanned a vast wilderness of interior Alaska today for Pilot L. Frank Barr, a Canadian, missing since Thursday while air-ferrying gasoline to an isolated mine, in the region between Big Delta and Jackwade.

Six years ago Barr's plane was forced down on a frozen lake 150 miles from Atlin and wrecked by a blizzard. For six weeks, with only an unchinked cabin as shelter from 38 to 50 below zero cold, Barr repaired his plane, cutting gasoline tins into patches for the wings; trimming an ax handle into a strut, and cutting down one end of the propeller to make it balance the broken tip, in order to limp back to Atlin.

Stretching Upward Best Way to Reduce Waistline

Reaching Upward Against Wall, Twisting or Using Broomhandle Will End Settled Appearance—If You Have It.

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE "RULE of thumb" will decide the question of whether or not you still have a neat and tidy waistline. Place the hands on the waist at either side and pinch yourself in. If you can pick up more than half an inch of waistline between the thumb and forefinger, that settles it—you're not streamlined.

While you still are holding these tucks in the waist look at yourself in the mirror and see how slim you would look with that extra inch or two sheared off the waistline. Well, why not put those tucks in to stay? Slimming the waist is almost ridiculously easy because stretching, which takes a minimum of effort, takes the waistline down at the rate of an inch in a week.

Simple Beginning.

Begin your stretching exercises simply by reaching both hands overhead, as if you expected to place the palms on the ceiling. That's more slimming than bending down to place the hands on the floor? When you are as tall as you can make yourself and feel a definite pull on the arm sockets, see if you can't stretch a little more in the middle. Pull up with the waist and tummy muscles until you are taut and slim. And to put the finishing touch on this stretch, move the arms slowly backward. During this exercise hold the arms straight and the chin level. When you have stretched all you can, slowly relax and begin over.

Now for a side stretch in this business of getting your waistline down to its proper size. Stand with your side to the wall and reach upward, sliding your hand up the wall until you feel the tug on the muscles at the side. Relax slowly, repeat five times and turn around and give your attention to the other side.

For Flat Stomach.

To strengthen the tummy muscles as you stretch the waist slim, stand with your face to the wall, stretching both hands upward and pulling up with the trunk muscles. Finish this part of the exercise by standing with the back to the wall, and trying to touch the small of the back to the wall while stretching up.

Discipline your stretching with the aid of an old broomhandle, if you want to be sure that you are really getting the slack out of your waistline. Grasp the broomhandle near the ends, with hands wide apart, stretch upward, then bend at the waist to one side. Stretch up again, and bend to the other side. Don't let the tummy protrude as you bend sideward.

Slumping often makes the waistline appear thicker than it actually is, and these stretching routines will do away with that settled appearance. If you will stretch every day, you can be a good two inches smaller in the waist by the time you slip into your fall frock.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Well-to-Do Father Asks How to Manage Wayward Son, Now Involved With Woman of 'Low Character.'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a man of 54 and for the past 11 years I have been running a rather well-to-do firm, in which my son is employed. My problem centers around this boy of 21. Some two months ago he began keeping company with a young woman of the very lowest type. I have met this girl and my wife is of the same opinion as to her character as I am.

* * * *

I told the boy that I did not think he should continue to associate with her and he told me that he would not. However, about three weeks ago I found he was drinking heavily, which I attributed to the influence of this woman, who is a habitual drinker. I spoke to him again, and cautioned him that if he continued to be seen with this woman I would fire him and see that he got no other position.

* * * *

His conduct became worse and his drinking heavier. I learned that in defiance to my warning he still kept company with the girl until about a week ago, when he suddenly broke off his association with her. I was pleased, of course, but during the week that followed I never once saw him when he was not completely and disgustingly drunk. I told him to stop drinking or I would carry out my threat. He said I would not; that I wouldn't dare.

* * * *

Then he told me that this girl would soon become a mother and that he would be the father of the child, although the girl had no proof of it. This, then, explained his week's absence from her company. He said he wasn't going to have anything further to do with the girl. I never felt more like killing anyone in my life. I realize the girl must be considered, but her habits are so vicious that I want nothing to do with her. What should I do? R. A. C.

Program of Reclamation.

DEAR R. A. C.: Since neither you nor your son feel any genuine sympathy for the girl, and since each of you wishes to have as little as possible "to do with her," I suggest that you personally retain a lawyer to guide you in the matter of seeing that justice is done the girl and your son. Get a good lawyer, one of scrupulous ethics and honorable repute, a man who can be trusted to serve the interests of all parties dispassionately, and a man who will act only in the light of the true facts and all the facts.

* * * *

Your son's story and the girl's representations (or misrepresentations) should be checked against the facts. It is within the realm of possibility—and perhaps it could be established—that the girl's pregnancy already existed at the time she made your son's acquaintance and that she fixed on him as a youth sufficiently gullible to be hung for the crime, as it were: as a greenhorn who could be involved in carnal knowledge of her to the extent—and to the end—that the child's paternity could be pinned on him.

* * * *

If it should develop that the girl was a person of notoriously loose character prior to her association with your son, his status in this situation is, from a legal standpoint, somewhat less censurable than it would be if it were established—or could be made to appear—that he had seduced an erstwhile innocent girl under promise of marriage. However, regardless of the girl's character and reputation, if all evidence indicates that he is the father of her expected child (and he submits that he is) then he has an inescapable moral and social obligation not only to support the child but to provide the mother with adequate prenatal care. But these are matters on which your lawyer can advise you in more authentic detail.

* * * *

Now, as to what general course of action to adopt in attempting to transform your son from a potential candidate for the penitentiary into a useful member of society, that is not so easily outlined. It is a responsibility which can hardly be delegated to another. To begin with, his insolent assumption and retort that you would not execute your threats of parental chastisement against him because you "dare not," suggests the existence in his make-up of a potentially self-destructive defiance of all recognized social authority. It suggests that he may be a rascal at heart; a person of irretrievably vicious character, who is not to be saved from the eventual disastrous consequences of his own willfulness by any amount of parental assistance, protection and intervention.

* * * *

However, as the person who begot his existence, you have a duty to make every constructive effort to correct his waywardness and to restore him, if possible, to a life of usefulness. And you are not performing this duty in the right manner when you threaten punishment of a kind that amounts to actual persecution. For instance, you admit having "cautioned him that if he continued to be seen with this woman (you) would fire him and see that he got no other position." Such a threat reflects no credit on your character or intelligence.

* * * *

Discharge him from the firm of which you are an executive, and of which he is an employe, on the grounds of incompetence or gross neglect of duty (just as you would any other nonproducing employe) if you like and if such grounds exist. But don't be so vicious as to attempt to make him a burden on society, or a menace to society through taking steps to deprive him of all means of self support.

* * * *

It is just possible that you have always been too high-handed, too much the tyrant-dealing-with-dependent-slave, in your dealings with your son. Maybe you are in no small measure directly responsible for his badly warped character. Maybe you have alternately spoiled and bullied him. Maybe you have never set him a consistent example of generously fair play and scrupulously honorable dealing. Maybe he has never known enough wholesome freedom of action and freedom of spirit to be able to develop good judgment and sound character. All too often, it is the repressed children of domineering parents who cheat and lie and evade during adolescence and eventually "go wild" on attaining their majority.

* * * *

It is possible that the denouement of his association with this girl will prove to be a turning point for the better in his life; and that out of your collaborative efforts to solve this problem, a finer father-and-son relationship may develop. I advise you to discard your blustering, bullying, outraged attitude toward him; to get him sobered up; and thereafter to talk to him as man to man—as a wise and kindly judge of the courts might talk to a young offender brought before him, whom he was about to give another chance, of the most promising sort; and with whom he wished to discuss, in every detail, the program that the one was to undertake with the other's guidance and help.

* * * *

Call him son. Invite his confidence. Take hours for the conference, if necessary, and get him to give you a clear picture of his life's story in retrospect, as he sees it. Ask him if you have failed him—and if so, when and in what ways. Tell him that for your sake, as much as for his—because he is your son and because his happiness means so much to you—you want, if possible, to get him back on the right track; and that you are prepared to do your part, and more in this crisis, if he is willing to meet you half way.

* * * *

Instead of trying to keep him under your domination, professionally or parentally, offer him a chance or a choice of branching out, with your assistance and blessing. If drink is becoming a fixed habit with him, get him to see a psychiatrist, because alcholism is merely an escape mechanism—an attempt to get away from intolerable realities.

* * * *

Tell him: "Between us, we're going to do the best we can toward fixing up this situation with this girl; and after that, we're going to do the best we can toward getting you back on your feet. Anybody may make a mistake; but only a fool won't learn from experience. Drink and loose women spell damnation for any man—but I guess you've already had your fingers burned on that score, and I don't want to preach. The question before us now is this: How much can I count on from you? And what can you count on from me?"

* * * *

And then get down to brass tacks. Find out what his hopes and ambitions and secret aspirations, if any, are. See where you can fit into the picture of helping him bring them to pass. Work out some sort of program designed to restore his self-respect (for self-respect is the mainspring of character: destroy it and you destroy the man); to invest him with some responsibility of a manly sort; and which will give him interesting objectives of an attainable kind to aim at in the days to come. Having worked out the program, pledge yourselves as man to man to discharge your respective contributions to it. If your son has the right stuff in him at all—as a result of inheritance and/or training—and if you play an honest-to-God father's role in this crisis, it should, as I have already said, prove to be a turning point for the better in his life. M. H.

'Robe-de-Style' One Mode Immune to Time's Whims

HERE is an example of the robe de style, which Mme. Jeanne Lanvin predicts will be the one enduring feminine fashion of Western civilization. This gown was designed by Madame Lanvin for her daughter, Comtess Jean de Polignac to wear when dining with the Duchess of Windsor. It is of white faille with flowers embroideted in black paillettes. The clinging bodice and billowing skirt of this type of gown are universally becoming to women, Mme. Lanvin maintains, as they give grace to the figure and suggest femininity and romance. Glamour women of all periods have preferred this style of dress, she says. The sketch is from the designer's Paris workroom.

Famed Designer Finds It Has Survived Greece's Glory and Expects Future to Define It as Typical of Today.

Which feminine dress styles will live, and why? Do the fashions of the family album always return? What types of dress have the glamorous women of the ages preferred? Mme. Jeanne Lanvin, noted French designer and one of the foremost authorities of the world on costume history, answers these questions and others in the following article:

By Mme. Jeanne Lanvin.

I have often discussed with my confreres here in Paris this curious fact: How seldom history repeats itself in fashion.

The casual world is fond of talking about "fashion cycles," about the revival of this or of that style. But in actual truth, fashion is—don't you agree?—an art of infinite variety that seldom reaches into the part of inspiration.

MME. LANVIN.

For my own part, I am sure that 2,000 years from now, when archeologists reconstruct the remains of what we now call modern civilization, there will be only one "typical" costume for women which will be found to have appeared again and again through all the centuries since Queen Elizabeth ruled in England and "modern" history began. That is the tight-bodiced, full-skirted, floor-length gown—that we in the twentieth century call the robe-de-style.

Yes, I am sure that historians of the future will visualize the woman of western civilization dressed in the robe-de-style, just as they designate Greek civilization by the classic draperies of Helen of Troy, and the Roman world by the sophisticated drapery of the delicious ladies of Tanagra, and the dress of the Middle Ages by the slim, sexless garments of Dante's Beatrice.

Favorite Design.

Considering this formidable background of tradition and the fashion's equally impressive future, it amuses me always—while it makes me very proud—to find myself so often referred to as the "originator" of this type of dress.

It is true that the robe-de-style is by far my favorite type of creation, and that the curtains have never parted once upon one of my collections in which many such gowns have not been included.

But for centuries before my epoch, beautiful women all over Europe were emphasizing their charms by means of the clinging bodice rising above a billowing skirt of rich or dainty fabric. Queen Elizabeth, according to history records, had very few physical charms which she could honestly call her own, yet by the sheer magnificence and volume of her garments, she dazzled the world as a symbol of glamour and, as a woman, brought a succession of adorers to her feet.

Would a Queen Elizabeth in a shirtwaist dress have held such power? I cannot believe it.

Fascinators' Garb.

In our own time, however severe may be her tailleurs by day, the true woman, setting out for an evening in which she has placed her heart, instinctively dresses herself in a way to bring out her perfect allure. And that almost invariably is in a lovely bouffant gown.

I love designing a romantic dress. I suppose I have designed thousands of them, but I am never tired of it.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay,

Out for Dinner.

"What are you going to have?"

"Oh, I don't know—I suppose maybe a salad——"

"Salad! That's no meal! No wonder you're sick all the time."

"I'm not sick all the time. Anyway I'm not hungry——"

"Say, you can't tell me that! All the trouble with you is you're afraid you'll take on a pound."

"No, really——"

"I know you! You women are all alike. Starve yourselves so you can look stylish."

"I'm not starving myself——"

"Say," you ought to weigh at least 20 pounds more. Then you'd look like something. You know what you're going to wind up with if you don't eat? Tuberculosis!"

"Oh, all right, I'll take a dinner."

* * * *

"What you need is to put a good steak under your ribs."

"All right then, a steak—well done——"

"All right then, medium. And some tomato in aspic—"

"Don't you want any fried potatoes?"

"Well, they're so heavy——"

"Afraid you'll gain a pound, are you? Well, of course, if you want to be like all those fool women in Hollywood and get down with pneumonia——"

"I'll take mashed potatoes."

"I tell you it doesn't pay—all this reducing. A woman looks 100 per cent better if she's got some flesh on her bones. Now you could stand at least 30 more pounds. Say, we forgot the soup!"

"I thought I'd take a fruit cup."

"That won't do anything for you. Say, here's some turtle soup. Let's try that . . . oh yes, and some crab meat. What about some crab?"

"Oh, that's so much—"

"Go ahead and order. I'm paying for this. Eat a real meal for once in your life."

"All right then."

* * * *

"And say, bring some scalloped eggplant and buttered corn on the cob and lima beans and——"

"Oh, that's enough — with the salad."

"All right then—what about dessert? I see they've got apple pie a la mode——"

"Oh let's wait."

"All right. Well now as I was saying, women are making a great mistake in starving themselves into bean poles."

"I'm not a bean pole."

"Well you're the next thing to it. You ought to weigh—well 40 pounds more. I tell you one thing, you'd look a lot better."

"Say, if I weighed 40 pounds more you'd divorce me."

"That's what you think. It just shows how little you know about men. No man likes a skinny woman."

"Well, I'm not skinny—say, who on earth are you smirking at?"

"I'm not smirking. I was just speaking to Miss Nimp over there."

"The one all the men think is so good looking?"

"Yes, don't look now, but she's over there with Miss Booch."

"Which is Miss Nimp—the one in blue?"

"Heavens no! Not that fat slob! The one in white."

"The skinny one? O—I—see!"

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Aug. 8.

THE SLIGHTLY mysterious Mrs. Helen Wills Moody came in on the Europa the other day, and was greeted by the usual large group of slightly puzzled press. For all the years she has been in the public eye as the top girl of American tennis, even her closest students haven't been quite able to figure that belle out.

ALICE HUGHES.

Her cucumber-salad coolness has always proven completely baffling. The old nickname of "poker-face" is well deserved—no one knows whether she has kings back to back, or just a soiled deuce. Of course, none of us ever asks La Moody anything about tennis. She exhibits that game on the world's courts, and very convincingly. The one set of questions always launched at Helen's classic Grecian head concerns the historic "feud" with her sister-Californian, Helen Hull Jacobs, and when it comes to those potatoes, you might just as well ask the Statue of Liberty how it feels up there. No give.

Helen Wills Moody is a girl of flawless girl, in a way. She always looks just as cool as her voice and manner. Her personality can hardly be called winning, but it serves her well. Implicated to some extent in the "rag business," as insiders call the fashion racket, her excellent clothes completed the picture of perfection. Her dress was a varicolored print on black. Her hat, over one eye, bore pink and blue flowers, and her shoes and gloves were black suede. She was a very handsome picture of calm, reticent good taste. An admirable girl, this genius of the courts. Yet for all her sleek perfection, it is hard to conceive her rousing anyone even to a modest pitch of enthusiasm. Helen just says it with a tennis racquet—and says it very clearly.

We hear from Paris that when Queen Elizabeth of England travels, her clothes designer, Norman Hartnell, of London, goes along in the entourage—no doubt with a mouthful of pins. Didn't you think, from the newsreel shots of her Paris visit, that Her Majecty has smartened up in the matter of dress? I did. If it's so, we shall have to give the bouquets to Norman.

End-of-Summer Influx Heralded by Ghiraldos

Argentine Legation Counselor and Wife Sail Tomorrow From Havre, First to Be Returning to Capital; Mrs. Keyes, La Saignes to Leave.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
The Post Society Editor.

Endless arrivals and departures—always characteristic of the Capital scene—traditionally reach their climax in August when residents start flocking home from Europe and resorts, and countless summer visitors leave. Up to now, virtually every ship steaming out of New York harbor has been loaded to the "gunnels" with holiday Washingtonians, and every train pulling in has brought shoals of vacation visitors. Come the middle of this month, however, and the seasonal order will be far more residents returning than leaving, and far more out-of-towners departing than coming in.

HOPE R. MILLER.

For example, there are the Counselor of the Argentine Legation, Hector Ghiraldo and Senora de Ghiraldo, who sailed for France late in June and have been the guests of Senora de Ghiraldo's grandparents in Paris for the past few weeks. When the Normandie noses away from Havre tomorrow, bound for this country, the Ghiraldos will be on board. Meanwhile, Senora de Ghiraldo's mother and sister, Mme. La Saigne and Mlle. Suzy La Saigne, who have been popular additions to Washington society through the torrid season, will be packing their bags, preparing to sail this month for their home in Rio de Janeiro.

They arrived in Washington in mid-May and left soon afterward for an extended trip to the West Coast. Soon after they returned, the middle of June, Senor and Senora Ghiraldo were off to Europe, leaving their apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street open for the La Saignes, who have made it quite a social center. Pretty Mlle. La Saigne and her equally attractive mother have been widely feted during their Washington sojourn and their going will leave quite a gap in social circles. According to present plans, they will leave Washington in time to meet Senor and Senora Ghiraldo in New York and the quartet will remain there for a week before the La Saignes sail.

I have been told their home in Rio de Janeiro looks out over the bay and is one of the show places of the city. It is next door to the residence of Oswaldo Aranha, former Brazilian Ambassador to the United States and now his country's foreign minister.

Frances Parkinson Keyes Off to Europe

One of the few Washington residents departing for Europe this month is Frances Parkinson Keyes, who will sail tomorrow night on the Batory for a sojourn in Poland, Germany and France. Since the death of her husband, former Senator Henry Wilder Keyes, early this summer, Mrs. Keyes has been at her home, Pine Grove Farm, in North Haverhill, N. H.

Accompanying her on her European trip will be Miss Jean Darling, of Newbury, Vt. The two will land in Gdynia and go from there by motor—Mrs. Keyes is taking her automobile along with her—directly to Danzig. The first part of their time abroad will be spent in Poland and East Prussia, but later they will motor to Berlin, and from there to Paris. Mrs. Keyes has hopes of spending at least a few days in Lisieux, where a couple of years ago she gathered material for one of her most successful books, "Written in Heaven."

Mrs. Keyes had planned to complete a companion volume for this book—a biography of Bernadette of Lourdes—but the popularity of her most recent novel, "Parts Unknown" has caused her to change her mind. Her next book will be a novel, and she will gather material for it on this European tour. She expects to return to Washington the latter part of October.

British Student Aviators Arriving Tomorrow

While the Capital tomorrow turns its attention to Douglas Corrigan, a trio of British student aviators will be focusing attention on the Capital. Group Capt. G. C. Pirie, Air Attache of the British Embassy, will go to New York today, returning tomorrow accompanied by Colin Cadell, Leonard Pankhurst and Francis Swain, who are vacationing in this country and also visiting a number of flying fields and factories.

Since their schedule in and around Washington is extremely indefinite, Capt. Pirie has not yet been able to complete plans for entertaining them here. He hopes, however, to have an informal party for them Wednesday evening at the Chevy Chase Club and a small cocktail party Monday. Meanwhile, they plan to spend several days this week at Langley Field, Va., returning to Washington Sunday. Early next week they will go to Baltimore and to Bolling Field. While the trio is visiting here, another group of student aviators will be inspecting the airplane factory in Dayton, and flying fields in Buffalo and Ottawa, Canada. They may come to Washington later. Incidentally, a young man in the first group—I've forgotten which—held a world altitude record until last year.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Miss Eleanor Virginia Neill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Neill, of Washington, who has been spending the summer at her farm near Middleburg, Va., has gone to Bar Harbor, Me., to be the guest of Mrs. W. S. Moore and her son, Richard Moore. Miss Neill is expected to return to Washington early in September . . . Ricardo J. Siri of the Argentine Embassy left yesterday afternoon for Bluemont, Va., where he will spend several days as guest of the Chilean Ambassador, Manuel Trucco, and his daughters, the Misses Marta and Rebeca Trucco . . . Senor Siri is expected back in Washington on Sunday . . . A. F. H. van Troostenburg de Bruyn, of the Netherlands Legation, sailed Saturday from his homeland on the Niev Amsterdam, and is expected in Washington the latter part of this week . . . Mme. van Troostenburg is remaining in Holland for several weeks and will return in late September or October.

Recently Arrived From Pennsylvania

Hessler Studio.

A popular visitor is Miss Barbara Gillette, of Scranton, Pa., who is the guest of Mrs. Gordon H. Austin (circle), wife of Lieut. Austin, of Bolling Field. Miss Gillette has been widely feted during her stay.

Diana Rowland Off to Maine

Home From European Tour, She Will Join Mother at South Bristol.

Miss Diana Rowland, who recently returned from an extended sojourn in Europe, has joined her mother, Mrs. Henry C. Rowland, in South Bristol, Me., where they will be for several weeks before returning to Washington.

Arriving in Europe six months ago, Miss Rowland went first to Munich to study for several weeks. Later, she went to Paris to visit her cousin, Mme. Walter Waddington, wife of the late Gen. Waddington. From France, she went to London to visit her godmother, Lady Gleichen who, before her marriage was Sylvia ay Edwardes, maid of honor to Queen Victoria and to Queen Alexandra. The former Miss Edwardes became the bride of Lord Albert Edward Wilfred Gleichen in 1910. He died last December after having just completed his "The Life of a Guardsman." This book, recently published, includes a chapter on the United States and mentions, among other Washingtonians, Alice Longworth and the Misses Patten.

Upon concluding her visit with Lady Gleichen at the latter's home in Catherine Place, Buckingham Gate, Miss Rowland returned to Paris for a brief stay. While there she was invited to the reception in honor of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

MacCrackens Plan To Take New Home

Benton Place Residence Prepared for Them.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. McCracken, who with their son and daughter, Lewis and Nell, and Mrs. McCracken's mother, Mrs. Sim Lewis, will spend most of their vacation in Aurora, N. Y., will return to a different home from the one they recently closed on S street. In early autumn they will move into a residence they have purchased on Benton place.

The house is now being done over by Wolcott Clarke Waggaman, who will turn most of his attention toward remodeling the interior. An especially attractive feature of the place is the garden, with its trim hedges and spreading trees.

Ropers Are Back From Their Brief English Vacation

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper returned to Washington yesterday afternoon after a brief vacation in England. They arrived in New York early yesterday on the Queen Mary and came directly to the Capital.

Also on the Queen Mary were William A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States; William Waldorf Asot, member of Parliament; Mrs. Karl Boy-ed, of Berryville, Va., and her daughter, Miss Virginia Boy-Ed, and Mgr. Michael J. Ready.

Rita Kelliher Wed to Ohioan

Becomes Mrs. Chester Rosenlieb in Simple Church Nuptials.

The rectory of the Nativity Catholic Church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock was the scene of a quiet ceremony that united in marriage Miss Rita A. Kelliher and Chester A. Rosenlieb. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. D. D. Courtney, of Washington, and the bridegroom is the son of John B. Rosenlieb, of Akron, Ohio.

In the presence of a few friends and relatives of the couple, the Rev. Thomas Sullivan performed the nuptial service. The former Miss Kelliher was gowned in a white marquisette redingote, trimmed in lace and worn over white taffeta. Her shoulder veil was held in place by gardenias, and she carried an ivory prayer book from which hung a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Margaret M. Kelliher, the maid of honor, wore a frock of aqua net over aqua taffeta, trimmed in peach ribbon, and her headdress was of aqua flowers and peach ribbon. A colonial bouquet of pastel blossoms completed her ensemble.

John D. Kelliher, brother of the bride, was best man. There were no ushers. Immediately following the ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride's mother, where only members of the immediate families were guests.

Shortly after the reception the couple left on their honeymoon trip. The bride wore a black and white print frock with white accessories.

Lady Chilton To Tour West

Wife of Britsh Envoy to Spain Arrives in New York on Queen Mary.

Lady Chilton, wife of Sir Henry Getty Chilton, formerly Minister-Counselor of the British Embassy here and now British Ambassador to Spain, arrived in New York yesterday on the S. S. Queen Mary. With her were her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard O'Brien, who will accompany her on a tour through the West.

Later, Lady Chilton may come to Washington where she has many friends. Before her marriage in 1906, she was Miss Katherine O'Brien. Her late father, Thomas J. O'Brien, was one time United States Ambassador to Japan.

Wherever Lady Chilton travels, she has a host of acquaintances. Since her marriage, her husband has served in diplomatic posts in a number of countries, including the Argentine Republic, Chile, Italy, Austria, Denmark, Belgium, Germany and Holland. He was in Washington from 1918 to 1920.

James Roberts Weds Miss West

Quiet Ceremony Is Held at Douglas Memorial.

In a quiet ceremony yesterday afternoon in the parsonage of the Douglas Memorial Church, Miss Eleanor West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. West, and James Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roberts, were married.

Relatives and close friends witnessed the wedding at which the Rev. Clarence H. Corkran officiated. The bride wore a frock of blue lace, cut on simple lines and set off with white accessories and a bouquet of gardenias.

Miss Ruth Camp, the maid of honor, was gowned in dusty rose lace with white accessories and a shoulder corsage was of yellow roses. Arthur Donahue, of Washington, was best man.

Following the wedding, there was a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Roberts, the hostess, stood with her son and daughter-in-law to receive the guests. Her frock of powder blue lace was worn with a corsage of pink roses. The bride's mother was gowned in yellow lace, also worn with pink roses.

Immediately after the reception, the couple left for a 10-day wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, and Atlantic City. The bride's traveling costume was a tailored shantung dress with white accessories. Upon their return to Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will make their home with the bride's parents.

Miss Gartrell, L. L. Lightcap Wed in Virginia

Couple Leave Middleburg for Honeymoon at Beach Resort.

Yesterday in Middleburg, Va., Miss Winnie Gray Gartrell became the bride of Leonard Lawrence Lightcap. The former Miss Gartrell is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gartrell of Middleburg, and her husband is the son of Mrs. R. L. Lightcap and the late Mr. Lightcap, of Hazel Green, Wis., and Washington.

The Middleburg Methodist Episcopal Church was the scene of the high noon ceremony at which the Rev. John R. Hendricks officiated. Gladioli, ferns and roses decorated the church and banked the altar. Mrs. Frank Brittlebank and Miss Lucille Lewis, both of Washington, presented the music, Miss Lewis singing a solo and Mrs. Brittlebank playing the wedding march.

Wore Wedding Gown Belonging to Mother

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in an empire satin gown worn by her mother at her marriage 26 years ago. With a long train and fitted bodice, it was finished with a fingertip length veil caught at the sides with orange blossoms. A bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley completed the ensemble.

George Richard Koonce, of Washington, was best man, and ushers included D. Tanner Link, of Hillsboro, Va.; Preston K. Gray, H. D. Gray, jr., and David J. Lee, all of Middleburg.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, and the couple left immediately afterward by motor for a Chesapeake Bay resort, where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride's traveling costume was of navy blue lace over navy taffeta and navy accessories.

Couple to Live In Washington

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Lightcap will come to Washington to make their home. The bride attended Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, and Strayer College here. Her husband went to State Teachers College, Platteville, Wis., before attending the Washington College of Law, where he is still a student, and where he became a member of Sigma Delta Kappa, legal fraternity.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Lightcap, mother of the bridegroom; Miss M. Lylia Cook, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. James Brown and Mrs. Alice Harris of Brookeville, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Davis of Towson, Md.; Mrs. Webb Herspberger, of Poolesville, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Riggs, of Rockville; Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Gray of Leesburg, Va.; Mrs. H. D. Gray of The Plains, Va.; Col. Robert H. Gray and Dr. and Mrs. James King Gray of Thurmont, Md.

Restaurants Give Kamala Bhagvat, of Bombay, A. A. U. W. Fellowship Winner, Biggest U. S. Thrill

Studies Laboratories, But Cafes Interest Her Most on Tour.

To Take Nutritional Course in Cambridge, England.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Kamala Bhagvat, of Bombay, who was recently awarded an international fellowship by the International Federation of University Women, is a guest of the A. A. U. W. clubhouse during a few days' stay in Washington. She came to Canada and the United States to see the countries and visit scientific laboratories here before going to Cambridge, England, where she will continue her research in the field of nutrition.

Answering the question of what impressed her most in this country, she declared without hesitation: "The cafeteries." In no other country has she seen them and her dark eyes sparkled as she said she thought they "were wonderful." She has enjoyed the scenery, both in this country and Canada and particularly likes American people, but nothing provided the thrill that the cafeterias did.

Miss Bhagvat wore her native costume, a blue georgette sari, an Indian print with a delicate design, over a blouse of hand-woven material in a burnt orange shade. Her sandals had flat heels and straps across the back, much like those worn by the modern American girl. These were a "westernized" version of the real Indian sandal, she explained, and graciously showed a heelless pair which she admitted she wore with more comfort. These were hand made and were held on by a strap which came between the toes.

Long Sari Serves As Dress and Hat

Her sari was only 6 yards long, but usually in Maharashra the women wear them 9 yards in length. The length and the manner of wrapping them varies in different sections of India.

Pillbox hats, doll hats and merry widow styles may come and go from Paris without causing a ripple in the life of the fashionable women of India. When the sun is warm and they require a head covering, they simply reach back and slip one end of the sari over their hair and they have it. It is as artistic as it is simple.

The native costume has the added advantage of not having to be ironed. All garments are washed daily and are hung so they are smooth when dry.

Miss Bhagvat enjoys badminton and tennis, among other games, and plays in her long sari and sandals. Observing the clinging folds of her dress, one wondered what would happen to an American tennis enthusiast if she were obliged to play in such a garment.

She wears her native dress except for motoring on her present tour, which she is making with a party of friends. For traveling she wears slacks, which she has chosen as more suitable than the short skirts of the American girl, although she acknowledged that her family would be shocked if they could see her.

Miss Bhagvat's father is a chemist and she is following in his steps although her research is in the field of nutrition and his in that of industrial chemistry. She has two sisters, one an artist and the other engaged in research in folk lore, and one brother who is studying medicine. She is a graduate of the University of Bombay and carried on her research at Bangalore Institute.

To Return to India After Year of Study

Her experiments were chiefly in the chemical treatment of cow's milk and buffalo's milk in an effort to make them more digestible to infants. The high rate of infant mortality in India is attributed partly to improper nutrition and, following her year's work at Cambridge, she expects to resume her work in this field.

The "fellowship crusade international fellowship" of the university women, which Miss Bhagvat has been awarded, is made available by the association through pooling the interest on both its national and international fellowships. In the meantime the fund is being increased so eventually there will be five or six international fellowships.

The international relations committee of the American Association of the University Women forms the link with the International Federation. Dr. Esther Brunauer, who is acting as hostess to Miss Bhagvat while she is here, is associate in international education, and it is through her office the contact is maintained. Mrs. Ruth Tryon, of A. A. U. W. headquarters, is secretary of the fellowship endowment committee which raises both the national and international fellowship funds. Mrs. Lucy Madiera Wing is local chairman.

Madame Chairman

MRS. FREDERIC L. RANSOME, a member of the national council of the National Woman's Party, has returned from England and Scotland, where she represented the party at two international meetings. Mrs. Ransome attended the sessions of the International Council of Women at Edinburgh and of the Open Door International at Cambridge.

She spoke at both conventions on the subject of equal rights. The Cambridge meeting was opened by a former woman mayor of the city, who wore her full regalia, making an imposing figure. A garden party given by the Duchess of Kent was one of the interesting social affairs in connection with the sessions.

Lady Aberdeen, credited with being founder of the International Council of Women, was the center of attention at its convention.

Mrs. Ransome is now on her way to California after having spent a day here at Alva Belmont House, headquarters of the Woman's Party. She divided her interest between giving reports of the international meetings to members of the party who were there to greet her, and giving orders in the garden as to the care of the shrubs and roses.

Mrs. Ransome is as ardent a gardener as she is a supporter of the cause of equal rights and whenever she is here the grounds of Alva Belmont House receive her personal attention. This time she gave directions to men whom she is trusting to do the work, but last season, when she was here for a longer time, she donned garden clothes and went at it with her own spade, trowel and pruning shears. Much of the beauty of the garden now enjoyed by members of the Woman's Party and their friends is due to her expert planning and planting.

Striped Chimunk Watches and Wonders.

He gains respect who does his best,
Though he may fail to pass a test.
—Old Mother Nature.

Striped Chipmunk possesses much shrewdness in that pretty little head of his. Yes, sir, there is much of shrewdness there. He had long regraded Farmer Brown's Boy as a friend, one who could be trusted. When he had been living under the Old Stonewall, on the edge of the Old Orchard, Farmer Brown's Boy had visited him almost every day, bringing him nuts and other tidbits, so that they had become the best of friends, and Striped Chipmunk had not hesitated to take food from the friendly hand offering it.

Of Sue and Sammy, he had for a time been uncertain. Being uncertain, he had taken no chances. Often he watched them when they had no idea that they were being watched. Now he had made up his mind; they were friends. They were to be trusted. So one morning, when Sue took out a handful of melon seeds and stooped to put them where she was sure that Striped Chipmunk would find them, he suddenly appeared and, sitting up a few feet from her, looked up in her face with snapping, merry, black eyes that fairly danced with mischief.

Slowly Sue extended her hand with the seeds. Striped Chipmunk darted back under the ferns, turned and peeked out at her in the sauciest way. Then he stole out, advancing a few steps, hesitating, darting back, only to return. Finally he put his two fore paws on that friendly hand and, reaching in, began to stuff his pockets with seeds. Sue knew with the touch of those tiny feet that friendship had been established. She tingled all over with the thrill of it.

Striped Chipmunk's cheeks began to bulge. He was beginning to look as if he had the mumps. One cheek swelled faster than the other. Then the other swelled to equal size. The pocket on the inside of each cheek was stuffed until it could hold no more. He looked too funny for words as, with those cheeks swollen until his head seemed wholly out of shape, he disappeared in the shrubbery. Sue looked over the doorway of his underground home, but she didn't see him enter it. Did he know she was watching? Had he hidden those seeds elsewhere, to be taken home when he was sure he wasn't being watched? It seemed that way, for here he was, back for more seeds.

After that Sue fed him every day at that same place. In town she bought some peanuts for him, and Tommy gave her some hickory nuts. It was fun to watch Striped Chipmunk with those. Always he carefully bit off the sharp point at one end, so that when he stuffed the nut into a cheek pocket it would not prick the tender lining.

"Is that instinct?" Sue wondered.

"It could be," replied Tommy, but I like to think of it as intelligence, the result of experience. But perhaps it is just instinct, and nothing more. Have you some of those peanuts left, Sue?"

"Plenty," replied Sue.

"Hold on to them, then," replied Tommy. "I'll want to use some of them presently."

He brought two large stakes, with the bark still on. They were about 6 feet long. These he drove into the ground for about a foot, so that they stood solidly. They were about 10 feet apart. Between the two he stretched a stout cord, fastening it to each post, about a foot from the top.

"What is that for?" demanded Sammy.

"You'll see pretty soon," replied Tommy.

From the middle of this cord he suspended a peanut, using common white string. The peanut hung a few inches above the ground. On each side, about a foot from the center of the cord, another peanut was suspended. One of these was a little higher than the middle one, and the other was a little higher still. A couple of peanuts were dropped on the ground beneath. "Bait," said Tommy, and grinned. Then he added, "If that scamp gets all those peanuts, I think you will agree with me that it will be through more than mere instinct." The others agreed that it would.

Outing Planned By Clubwomen In Alexandria

Business, Professional Group to Take Boat Trip on S. S. Potomac.

The annual summer "out-meeting" of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will be a boat trip down the Potomac to be held this evening. The club members and their guests will have supper aboard the S. S. Potomac at the wharf, with the river trip following.

The Alexandria Club, of which Miss Corinne Reardon is now president, was organized in the spring of 1921. Mrs. Gelina Bowman, of Richmond, then president of the Virginia Federation of B. and P. W. Clubs, assisted in the organization and Miss Mary Monroe was the prime mover in it.

Fifty women were present at the first meeting, May 17, 1921, at which Miss Monroe was elected temporary chairman. She declined to accept the presidency, however, and first officers were Miss Lucy Graves, president; Mrs. Esther Paul Jones, vice president; Miss Elizabeth M. Remey, recording secretary; Miss Katherine C. Waller, now Mrs. Luther H. Dudley, prominent in the Alexandria Woman's Club, corresponding secretary, and Miss Eleanor H. Watkins, treasurer.

The meetings were held the second Tuesday of each month in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, then located at 131 North Fairfax street. Supper was served and the club was divided into groups which took turns in preparing and serving it. The membership was limited to 100 and for several years was maintained at that number, but is now reduced to about 65. The meetings are dinners held at the George Mason Hotel.

The club early started a student loan fund and has helped a number of Alexandria girls further their education. In June each year girls finishing the seventh grade are entertained with a program and speaker, designed to encourage them to continue into high school.

The club has also sponsored the Red Cross roll call which has gone "over the top" every year.

Charter members who are still on the club roster include Miss Bertha Allison, Miss Irma Coleman, Miss Winnie Cox, Mrs. Lillian Stubbs Ellmore, Miss Kroes Ficklin, Miss Lucy M. Graves, Miss Marie Greene, Miss Alice Gronau, Miss Catherine V. Johnson, Miss Mary Monroe, Miss Mary E. Moore, Miss Elizabeth M. Ramey, Miss Corinne T. Reardon, Mrs. Helen V. Reed, Mrs. Dolly Peyton Shepperson, Mrs. Alice Strauss, Miss Lelia V. Thompson, Miss Alice H. Whitton and Miss Edith M. Whitton.

Of this list those who have served the club as president are Miss Cox, Miss Graves, Miss Ramey, Miss Reardon, Mrs. Shepperson and Miss Alice Whitton.

Leaves for Dominican Republic

MISS DORIS STEVENS, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, who has been invited to visit the Dominican Republic as the guest of the president in appreciation of her work for the women of the country.

Women Fliers, Here to Welcome Corrigan, to Attend Tea Today

An informal tea will be given this afternoon in the garden of Alva Belmont House, headquarters of the National Woman's Party, from 5 to 7 in honor of women fliers coming to Washington to participate in Corrigan welcome ceremonies tomorrow. Heads of other organizations interested in the achievements of women will be among the guests.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, a member of the national council of the party as well as of the District of Columbia committee, and Mrs. Louise Pote, vice chairman of the District committee will be among the women at the airport to greet the visitors when they arrive at 11 o'clock this morning from New York.

Miss Viola Gentry, who began her career as a pilot about the time of the World War, is flying her own plane from Floyd Bennett Field and is bringing with her Miss Clara Adams and Mrs. Victor Bruce, who is founder of the Women's Areonautical Association of America.

The three will be guests during their stay in Washington of Mrs. Jack Stearns Gray, who began flying as copilot with her husband, George Gray, in 1913. Mrs. Gray is chairman of the Pioneer Women of the Air.

Mrs. Gray is planning a busy program for the women today, as tomorrow they will devote themselves, with the rest of Washington, to paying tribute to Corrigan. This afternoon they will visit the Smithsonian Institution to see the section illustrating the development of aviation. After the tea at Alva Belmont House, they will be guests of honor in the evening at a musicale to be presented by Mrs. John Simmons

Doris Stevens Leaves Today For Dominica

Feminist Leader to Be Official Guest of Island Republic.

Miss Doris Stevens, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, leaves today by plane for the Dominican Republic, to make an official visit at the invitation of the President of the republic.

The invitation was transmitted to Miss Stevens by Don Andres Pastoriza, Dominican Minister to Washington, with an expression of appreciation for her work for women and the assurance that her visit would be helpful to those of his country. Despite the heavy work which she is now doing, incident to the preparation of the commission's report to be made to the Inter-American conference which will be held in Lima, Peru, this year, she arranged to accept the invitation.

On July 29, Miss Stevens was presented a medal by the Argentine Suffrage Association in recognition of her "constant and unchanging battle in defense of the rights of Hispanic-American women." The decoration was sent by the secretary of foreign affairs and the presentation was made in New York City by Miss Minerva Bernadino, feminist leader of the Dominican Republic, in connection with an international broadcast. That evening, Miss Stevens was guest of honor at a dinner given in New York by the Union de Mujeres Americanas on the fourth anniversary of the organization's founding.

She is a member of the council of the National Woman's Party and author of "Jailed for Freedom," an account of the struggle for woman suffrage.

Miss Stevens will leave at 9 this morning, arrive in Miami tonight and in Trujillo City tomorrow afternoon, aboard a Pan American clipper.

She has been working on the ratification of the women's treaties entered into by American governments during the Montevideo conference in 1933, and arrangements are being made for her to confer on these and other relevant matters during her visit.

700 Will Open 4-H Sessions In Md. Today

Week's Course at University Will Begin With Official Welcome.

With 600 boys and girls from every county in Maryland registered at close of registrations yesterday for the twentieth annual 4-H Club week at the University of Maryland, extension service officials sponsoring the course, predicted at least 700 would attend opening ceremonies this morning.

Frederick County led the 23 counties in registrations yesterday, with 31 girls and 25 boys signed up. Montgomery County was second among the counties with 30 girls and 13 boys, and Baltimore County was third, with 16 girls and 9 boys.

At least 100 additional registrations are expected before the opening session of the week-long course is called to order this morning.

The 4-H Clubbers will be welcomed this morning by two university officials, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University, and Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service. The farm boys and girls will reply through Pauline House, 4-H Clubber from Allegany County.

Three lectures are scheduled for this afternoon's meeting of the group. Dr. E. L. Kirkpatrick, of the American Youth Commission, will speak on the basic values of rural and urban life, and how they may be realized by young people. Talks will be made by A. F. Vierheller, of the university, and Miss Edna Gardner, recreation specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Maker of Candles For World Figures Dies, Leaves Secret

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Antonio Ajello, 78, one of the world's leading candlemakers, whose clients included Enrico Caruso, Col. Charles Lindberg, Mussolini and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, died today at his home.

In his workshops here were preserved many of the craft secrets of the medieval guilds, including the arts of timing candles, perfuming them and sculpturing them.

It was estimated Ajello had supervised the making of more than a billion candles since he founded his business in 1889. He came here from Italy at the age of two.

When Caruso died he built a candle 18 feet high, 5 feet in circumference and weighing a ton. It cost $3,700 and is burned one day a year in a church in Pompeii, Italy.

Ajello is survived by his widow, three sons and six daughters.

Yeggs Try 2 Safes Over Week-End; 1 Yields Them $137

Safecrackers over the week-end, according to police, broke open a safe in a Southwest liquor store and were unsuccessful in another attempt.

Tony Astore, proprietor of a liquor store at 236 Fourth street southwest, discovered his safe had been opened. Three watches, two rings and $27 in cash was taken, Astore said, putting his loss at $137.

Unable to open the safe in the office of the H. J. Heinz Co., 2101 Fifth street northeast, the yeggs stole change amounting to $8 and food.

Showman Held As Dope-Ring Aide

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—William Weber, 39, theatrical booking agent arrested Saturday in Philadelphia, was held in $3,000 bail today on the accusation of assistant U. S. Attorney Abel Smith that he headed the largest narcotics ring in the East. U. S. Commissioner Garrett Cotter, who heard the complaint, denied Smith's request to set bail at $15,000.

The Government, Smith said, will present evidence to the grand jury here indicating that Weber operated on a wholesale basis in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, screening his activities behind the booking office.

Two Men, 60, Die In Suitors' Quarrel

Beaver, Okla., Aug. 8 (AP).—The love of two 60-year-old men for the same young woman resulted today in the slaying of one and the suicide of the other, Sheriff Ford Householder said.

Householder said Ben Bogue, a hotel proprietor here, shot and killed Tom Angleton, feed store operator, because of jealousy over a 30-year-old woman, whose name was not revealed.

A coroner's jury, headed by County Judge Otto C. Barby returned a verdict of "murder and suicide."

Auto Kills Pedestrian On No. 1 and Overturns

Charles S. Smith, 65, of Altoona, Pa., was killed instantly yesterday while walking on U. S. No. 1 highway one mile north of Triangle, Va. Police said he was struck by an automobile operated by Roy Ross, of Richmond, whose car overturned following the accident. Ross was treated at the Marine Hospital at Quantico for lacerations of his hands and face.

Police said Smith was on his way to visit a brother at Renther Glenn, Va. Coroner E. H. Marseller, of Prince William County, will hold an inquest tomorrow.

121st Engineers Try Bombing In Hills Near Camp Ritchie

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 8.—Thundering sounds from the hills surrounding camp this morning gave evidence the 121st Engineers had entered into their field training in earnest.

Companies of the First Battalion spent their training periods in the use of explosives for demolition purposes. Also included in their training were the establishments of watering points and the erection of camouflage structures.

At the same time the parade ground was filled to capacity as the Fifth Battalion Marine Reserves, 121st Engineers and 104th Medical Regiment each took over their respective sections for infantry drill and exercises.

Marines Inspected.

The Marine organization, except for those on watch, turned out for formal inspection by the commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller.

With three bands, one for each regiment, now here, music fills the camp from dawn till dusk. Each musical organization plays for reveille at 5:30 a. m., spends most of the morning practicing and in the evening plays for parade and formal guard mount. The 121st Engineers' Band has played a concert every evening since arrival.

Hygiene Lecture Given.

The Marines spent the majority of their training period today at drill and listening to lectures by Lieut. Col. Miller and the battalion surgeon, Lieut. Comdr. Don S. Knowlton.

Further training by the two engineer battalions included the use of assault boats, field fortification and the bridge construction.

Joseph Buzzell Leaves $176,500

An estate valued at $176,500 was left by the late Joseph Monroe Buzzell, formerly of 25 Logan Circle northwest, when he died July 17, it was shown yesterday when a petition for the probate of his will was filed in District Court.

Mr. Buzzell had been retired from the firm of Woodward & Lothrop only a few years after more than half a centry of service. His will directed that a sister, Mrs. Cynthia H. Dexter be given 500 shares of common stock of Woodward & Lothrop and a like amount is to go to a nephew, Samuel H. Greene. A brother, Henry Alden Buzzell was given $15,000 outright and the remainder of the estate is to be held by the National Savings & Trust Co. for the benefit of Mrs. Dexter.

'Inventor' Given 240 Days in Jail

Convicted on four charges of false pretenses, Hobart R. Everett, 39, of Baltimore, was sentenced by Police Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday to 240 days in jail, 60 days for each charge.

Everett was accused of telling each of four local patent attorneys he had discovered a process for transforming cellophane into a hard material similar to tin. He allegedly presented false credentials from a prominent industrialist. Everett was said to have persuaded each victim to cash a check for $5.

Two other charges against Everett were nolle prossed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 8.—Duncan Draper, 39, failed in a suicide attempt this morning, according to the police, because of two transcontinental telephone calls. Draper made the first call to a brother, in California, announcing his intention of taking his life.

The second call came from the brother in California to the New York police. Six patrolmen rushed to Draper's apartment at 400 East Fifty-second street and found he had slashed his right wrist. He was treated and sent to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital.

Draper, police said, also called his wife, in Rockville Centre, Long Island, and told her he was going to kill himself. She also called the police.

Threats to Kill Him and Mother Made Dwyer Plead Guilty to 2 Killings, Carroll Jury Told

Carroll

sheriff who guarded Dwyer pending the trial, was the "real slayer" of Dr. Littlefield and intimidated Dwyer into confessing the crime.

Dwyer also has accused Carroll of murdering the physician's wife, but the ousted law officer has not been charged with the second murder. Though he originally confessed that slaying, too, Dwyer was never tried for it.

Shortly after the afternoon session began, the jury and Carroll were taken in buses to the field on Turkey Ridge Hill where Dwyer said Carroll strangled Mrs. Littlefield. They then visited New Gloucester, 26 miles away, where Dwyer allegedly shifted Mrs. Littlefield's body from the front seat to the tonneau of the death car before proceeding to North Arlington, N. J., where he was arrested last October 16.

Because of the lateness of the hour, court did not resume and was declared adjourned until 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

The day's principal witness, Attorney Abbott, testified Dwyer "broke down and cried" and told him the "true story" of the murders for the first time some time last November.

Afterwards, he said, Dwyer was taken to the jail by Deputy Sheriff Carroll. That night, Abbott said, he was called to the jail and Dwyer told him "not to believe the story that he told me that afternoon."

After Dwyer pleaded guilty December 2, Abbott said, he told High Sheriff Fernando F. Francis "he'd better investigate Francis Carroll." Abbott said he later spoke "several times" to Francis about Carroll.

Francis, the first witness this morning, already had told the jury that his suspicions as to Carroll's possible part in the murders first were aroused on the day Dwyer pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Another deputy sheriff, Sidney Verrell, told him substantially the same story that Dwyer since has told the court, Francis said.

Subsequently, Francis said, Carroll caused "some trouble in the way of drinking." Re removed Carroll from regular duties, Francis said, but gave him "work that would take up his mind and keep him where we could watch him."

The day's other witnesses corroborated minor details in Dwyer's testimony last week concerning the murder of Dr. Littlefield October 13, and that of his wife some 30 hours later.

Police Charge 2 Men Possess Numbers Slips

Two colored men were charged with the possession of lottery slips yesterday when police seized them in the 1800 block of Oregon avenue northwest. More than 50 new numbers books were confiscated with a quantity of slips containing plays, according to Sergt George C. Deyoe, of the vice squad.

Wanted, a Hare For School Race With a Tortoise

You'd think it would be easier to find a hare here in the District than to find a tortoise. Young habitues of Carberry School Playground, 412 Fifth street northeast, have found the reverse true.

The children, supervised by Howard Boote, had planned a hare-and-tortoise race for last Friday. Boote scoured the vicinity of his Greenbelt home and found several tortoises (turtles to you). But there wasn't a hare (alias rabbit) in sight.

Friday's race had to be postponed until yesterday because of rain anyway. Yesterday's race has been postponed indefinitely because of the rabbit shortage.

But Boote and his young playmates still are enthusiastic about the idea of the race. Most of them are betting on the tortoise because they've seen a newsreel of a similar contest, which ended with the rabbit still at the starting line, paralyzed by stage fright.

All that is needed is a hare. Any rabbit fancier who can supply the deficiency is asked to call Boote at the school. The rabbit will be returned in good condition, whether it wins the race or not.

JUST BETWEEN COUSINS

TR: So you've been away fishing again, eh?

FDR: Yes. If you were President today you'd probably go off to Africa two or three times a year.

Teddy Roosevelt. . . . tiger hunter. sorta inherited him.

TR: Some of your governors are acting like a bunch of Mexican generals.

* * * *

FDR: Well, I

* * * *

TR: How about Mayor Kelly in Chicago—is he a good New Dealer?

FDR: Oh, just so-so. I have to take the good with the bad.

TR: And Senator Berry down in Tennessee—does he believe in the Abundant Life?

"—who was your Vice President?"

FDR: Try one of these trout . . . They're better than your bear steaks.

TR: Now, a chap like this Pendergast out in Missouri—he must be a tower of strength to you.

FDR: Huh? . . . Say, what kind of a Vice President did you have—was he a fellow you could count on?

* * * *

TR: Let me see—who was my Vice President? Let me think—the first three years I got along without a Vice President . . . But I'd swear I had one the last four years, and I can't remember for the life of me——

FDR: Now, Teddy! Remember, you got your start as a Vice President.

TR: Tell me, Frank, did you ever find a big stick in one of the closets at the White House?

* * * *

FDR: Oh, was that your big-stick? I had it whittled down to a yardstick.

TR: So that's what the TVA boys are playing with—my big stick! . . . Say, you're lucky to have all your boys grown up while you're in the White House.

FDR: I don't know. It might be simpler if they were still children.

* * * *

TR: I often like to think what a President I'd have made if I'd had the radio to play with.

FDR: Yes, but your enemies can use it, too.

TR: Fireside chats, that's the stuff! Campfire chats, that's what I'd have given 'em.

FDR: Bully! . . . Say, how do you feel about the third-term tradition?

TR: Well, my advice would be to pick out some likely young fellow who thinks the way you do——

FDR: You mean somebody like Bill Taft, eh?

* * * *

TR: Well, maybe . . . And then after four years, if he's bungled it——

FDR: Then run again, the way you did in 1912? . . . You know, I sometimes wonder whether I shouldn't run for the Senate or the House in 1940, like John Quincy Adams . . .

TR: It would be a tidy gesture. Adams did a good job in the House.

* * * *

FDR: I don't know if I could live on the salary . . . But it would leave me in good shape for 1944 . . .

TR: Let's measure and see if your fish is as long as my tiger . . .

FDR: O. K.; but no fair stretching that tail . . . Let's see; didn't you once make your generals ride a horse 90 miles before promotion? Maybe I should make my admirals row a boat from Washington to Mount Vernon . . .

Wesley E. Holden Found Dead of Gas

Wesley E. Holden, 37, was found unconscious in the living room of his home at 2630 Adams Mill road northwest yesterday afternoon by neighbors who noticed an odor of gas about the house. Efforts to revive him proved fruitless. The Fire Rescue Squad reported all the jets on the kitchen stove were open and the windows of the house were closed.

Holden was a route agent for an afternoon paper.

River Outing Planned By Irish War Veterans

To condition themselves for the Corrigan welcome tomorrow, the Irish War Veterans and the Military Order of the Cootie will embark on a joint moonlight cruise on the Wilson liner S. S. City of Washington at 8:30 tonight. The boat ride is also intended to raise funds for welfare activities.

Edward M. Flaherty is chairman for the Sons of Erin, while chief cootie for the evening's fun is Joseph Perron. William Cronin will conduct the Cooties' Overseas Band, and Dan Mahoney will direct the Jug Band of the Irish.

City Lets Irish Off to Cheer For Corrigan

D. C. Heads Free Celt Employes to Swell the Welcome.

Lone Flier to Land at Airport at 11:30 A. M. Tomorrow.

District Building employes of Irish descent have received unofficial assurance that their working day will end about 4 p. m. tomorrow in deference to "Doug" Corrigan, Ireland's favorite son-of-the-moment, it was learned yesterday.

The "wrong way" flier will visit District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen tomorrow afternoon to receive the mythical key to the District and the official greeting. Word was bruited about that all municipal workers who can claim an Irish great-grandmother may leave their offices and join the reception in the Commissioner's office.

Parade Route Given.

Corrigan is expected to arrive at the Washington Airport tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. He will be met by William Payne Meredith as chairman of the District Commissioners' committee for the reception, James Conlon as president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, a group of prominent women fliers headed by Mrs. Jack Stearns Gray, a number of Boy Scouts and a delegation of Baptists.

The procession will cross the Arlington Memorial Bridge to the Lincoln Memorial plaza. The parade route from that point will be as follows: Constitution avenue to the Capitol, around Capitol Hill, through the Botanic Gardens, Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street northwest, Fifteenth to F street and thence to the Willard Hotel.

Press Club Party.

The young aviator will be the guest of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at a luncheon at the Willard, scheduled for 1 p. m. At 2:30 he will visit the State Department and later the Commerce Department. After the call on Commissioner Hazen, he probably will visit Mt. Vernon before being entertained by the National Press Club late that afternoon.

Plans for the reception were discussed at a luncheon held yesterday at the Willard, attended by Meredith, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Fire Chief Charles E. Schromm and a dozen other members of the committee.

Corrigan Plane Back.

New York, Aug 8 (AP).—That "crate" got back today—the one Douglas Corrigan flew to Ireland with a teacup of gasoline and a grin—and frankly, it didn't look like much.

It was in the No. 2 hold of the S. S. Lehigh, of the Oriole Line, bereft of its wings and lashed down so no harm could come to it. Corrigan was very specific on that point. It must not be scratched.

Waiting, on the pier, were a couple of trucks to cart it to Roosevelt Field to be assembled. Corrigan will fly it Thursday just to be sure it is all right. Steve Reich, the flier's friend, supervised the unloading.

Acclaim in Baltimoe.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 8.—Great doings were in preparation tonight for the wrong-way flier, Douglas Corrigan, who will arrive as a hero tomorrow where once he slept on a couch in his brother's home.

Harry Corrigan and his wife returned today from New York by air liner to prepare their home for his one night stay, this time in a bed. Mrs. Corrigan carried with her, besides an assortment of trophies, a leather coat worn by "I-thought-I-was-in-California Corrigan" which she said "he bought especially for our wedding 18 months ago and wore it there."

The trophies brought by the Corrigans in a cardboard crate included a silver loving cup presented by the City of Dublin; a silver fruit bowl and platter presented by the "Men with Wings," of New York, a compass, medals and a poem written by Mayor Adrian Levy of Galveston.

The man who flew a $900 "crate" to Ireland will be met at the airport here at 4:15 p. m., when he arrives in a special plane of the Pan-American Airways, and proceed to City Hall with a parade, where he will be called on for a speech. From there he will go to the exclusive Baltimore Country Club to be feted by aviation and Irish societies. He plans to return to his brother's home in Dundalk to spend the night before flying to Washington.

Brutal Cow Thief Cuts Rear Quarter Off Living Animal

A brutal form of cattle stealing was employed early yesterday by a Fairfax County thief who first stunned a cow and then sawed a hind quarter from the living animal.

The mutilated cow was discovered at 5:30 a. m., still trying to walk on its three remaining limbs, by its owner, Walter D. Dowden, a Baileys Cross Roads, Va., dairy farmer.

Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, said last night an intensive search was under way for the person responsible but denied earlier reports that bloodhounds would be used.

Dowden destroyed the cow, a prize Holstein. He said the animal had been stunned by a blow with a sharp instrument or shot between the horns with a small caliber rifle. The leg bone was sawed off just below the hip joint.

Pharmaceutical Laboratory Here Establishes Standards

Post Staff Photos.

The white marble temple at 2215 Constitution avenue, just northeast of the Lincoln Memorial, has been called the "symbol of professional pharmacy in America." But it is much more than a show place, this chaste home of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

In the basement of the building the association has set up its own research laboratories for establishing and improving uniform standards of purity, quality and strength for official drugs and preparations used in the prevention and treatment of disease.

Here, in an atmosphere of tubes, filters and bottles, experts are working out a number of problems—that of cherry syrup, for example. Cherry syrup is used as a flavoring agent in a great many medicines. However, there are a variety of cherry syrups, some pleasant to the taste and others not so pleasant.

The experts of the American Pharmaceutical Association are seeking a cherry syrup worthy of being designated as a standard. Fresh cherries are brought to the laboratories, stemmed, crushed and made to give up their juice. Then this juice is tested for its acid content and otherwise analyzed. Cherries from different parts of the country are used in the process. Some day a standard cherry syrup will be achieved, and the art of pharmacy will have made another gain.

The experts also are trying to develop a chocolate syrup with, say, a 5 per cent fat content. At present the fat content is much below this. If it can be increased, the result will be a richer, more pleasant chocolate syrup.

Tests are being made, too, with glasses of greater insolubility. In some preparations the dissolved glass has a detrimental effect on the medicine itself, and the experts are trying to determine which types of glass are most desirable.

When the Institute of Pharmacy was planned in 1930 (the building on Constitution avenue was dedicated May 9, 1934), provision was made for research laboratories. First, however, an experimental research program was begun two years ago in the laboratories of the University of Illinois College of Pharmacy. This has now been transferred to the laboratories in the Constitution avenue building, which were opened last June.

The research work begun two years ago already has contributed much to the improvement of official medicines. It has suggested a new, more effective formula for calomel ointment used in various skin infections and in the treatment of syphillus, a new formula for antiseptic solution N.F., used as a mouth wash and gargle, and has yielded many reports on colors, flavors, ampul medication, ephedrine sprays, preparations of mandelic acid, camphor ointment, calamine lotion and other pharmaceuticals.

The experimental program embraced 123 problems, of which 87 have been completed, 3 are incompleted and 33 are as yet unassigned. The work of the experts deals only with standards of quality and in no way invades the medical field.

Since the earliest days of Federal and State food and drug laws, the Government has officially recognized standards set by physicians and pharmacists who serve jointly in the publication of the United States Pharmacopoeia and by the American Pharmaceutical Association in the publication of the National Formulary. When the standard of a drug is determined, that standard becomes official under the provisions of these laws and the drug must meet the requirements whenever produced or used.

Both official books are revised every ten years, and supplements and interim revisions are issued as made necessary by the introduction of new drugs or the establishment of improved standards. The Pharmacopoeia was first published in 1820 and the National Formulary in 1888. They are intended for use in every pharmacy of the United States and in every plant where drugs and preparations are manufactured.

The research program that has now been transferred to Washington is under the direction of Dr. E. N. Gathercoal, chairman of the National Formulary revision committee and president of the American Pharmaceutical Association. Dr. Roy K. Snyder is in charge of the laboratories and associated with him are Emerson C. Beeler, Karl B. Rosen and Kenneth L. Kelly.

1,000 Attend Catholic Action SummerSchool

8th Session Here Is Opened for 6-Day Program; 16 on Faculty.

Introductory courses yesterday opened the eighth session of the Summer School of Catholic Action, meeting at the Washington Hotel.

More than 1,000 students from all parts of the country, including many from Washington, have registered for the six-day course, supervised by 16 faculty members.

Lectures in Afternoon.

The morning sessions yesterday were devoted to inspirational services. Father Lord led a group discussion, "Our Catholic Culture Must Be Maintained." In the afternoon sessions the students attended those lectures for which they had registered.

The Rev. George A. McDonald, associate director of the school, outlined various co-operatives for Catholics. Father McDonald announced he would discuss co-operative medicine later.

The school recently completed its program at Ursuline College, New Orleans. Following the close of sessions here Saturday, the school will move to Boston College, in Boston, Mass., thence to Chicago and St. Paul, Minn.

Varied Courses Offered.

A variety of courses is offered both to the lay students as well as to priests and religious groups. Among the courses are; projects in student government; teaching of religion; recreational methods; mental prayer and vocations; theology of Catholic activity, and supernatural grace.

The complete faculty: Daniel J. Lord, S. J.; J. Roger Lyons, S. J.; George A. McDonald, S. J.; Edward Dolwing, S. J.; Herbert O'H. Walker, S. J.; Aloysius J. Heeg, S. J.; Dorothy J. Willmann, M. A.; Martin Carrabine, S. J.; Francis Deglman, S. J.; Gerald Ellard, S. J.; Francis P. LeBuffe, S. J.; William T. Molloy, former president of the Catholic Rural Life Association; George Nell founder and director of Co-op Parish Activities Service; Samuel H. Ray, S. J.; E. J. Weisenberg, S. J., and Marian Prendergast.

Apartment Workers Strike Over Dismissals

Thirty-six service employes of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments walked out yesterday, leaving only engineers and firemen on duty, James Kimbro, president of Building Service Employes Union, Local 82, said last night. The management declined to comment.

According to Kimbro, the employes struck after an elevator operator and a bellboy were discharged for alleged union activities. While firemen operated the elevators, Kimbro said, the building was picketed by porters, janitors and garagemen. He said a conference between A. F. of L. representatives and officers of the real estate company yesterday reached no understanding.

Edgewood Gladioli Grower Wins Woodridge Sweepstake

M. E. Granger Takes Seventeen Firsts Out of 54 Classes; Falls Church Man Exhibits Best Single Specimen.

M. E. Granger, of Edgewood, Md., won the sweepstakes in the twelfth annual gladiolus show of the Woodridge Garden Club last night at Sherwood Presbyterian Church, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. He scored the greatest number of points with his exhibit in 51 classes for gladioli.

Mrs. M. C. Kissinger, of Woodridge, took top honors in the 35 classes for other flowers and artistic arrangements. There were 40 exhibitors from Maryland, Virginia and the District with 400 entries, 225 of which were gladioli.

Va. Man Winner.

The best gladiolus was exhibited by H. E. Middleton, of Falls Church, Va. George Marshall, of Brentwood, Md., was runner-up in the gladiolus section with 53 points, and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, of Idlewood, Va., was runner-up in the section for other flowers with 58 points.

Marshall took sweepstakes for the show with 91 points in all classes. Frank H. Goetzger, of Mount Rainier, Md., was chairman.

Decorative Type, Specimen Bloom.

Class 13, white, cream or blush—First, G. Marshall; second, M. E. Granger; third, F. C. Bair.

Commissioners To Plan Ways to Clean Potomac

Seek Md. Co-operation in Ending Pollution at and Below D. C.

With a $4,000,000 sewage disposal plant already doing its imperfect best, the District Commissioners will meet today to discuss ways and means of cleaning up the Potomac at and below Washington more adequately.

The District has done and will do its share toward ending pollution of the river, said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, "but, of course, the river is located in Maryland as well as in the District, and we will gladly co-operate with the Maryland officials in taking what steps may be necessary to bring about an improvement in the cleanliness of the water." The District's plant at Blue Plains, he said, while not completely efficient, "is more than anybody else is doing about it."

Hazen would not say if he would ask PWA Administrator Ickes for another $4,000,000 to increase the plant's capacity. Ickes has indicated his willingness to work with the District as well as with Maryland and Virginia in cleaning up the river.

When the disposal plant was built the District had available $8,000,000 for the project but only requested half that. Hazen said he could not see his way clear at present to further burden District taxpayers with the cost of an enlarged plant.

Boy, 10, Drowned Fleeing the Heat; More of It Coming

Ten-year-old James Williams, colored, of 2 Wonders Court southwest, was drowned yesterday while he was swimming in Airport Basin in an effort to escape stifling heat which will probably continue today.

Williams, with several other boys, dived overboard from a boat anchored in the basin, and failed to reappear. Police said he apparently struck his head on a submerged rock.

The thermometer rose to a high of 90 degrees yesterday at 1:10 p. m., from 74 at 6 a. m. In late afternoon, as Government offices were emptying their thousands of workers into the streets, humidity stood at 65 per cent.

Employes of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board really got it as air conditioning apparatus serving half the building at First and D streets northwest remained out of order all day.

Asked about today's heat and humidity, the Weather Bureau gloomily replied, "More of the same." Clouds, however, may afford some relief.

Girl, 12, Takes Poison as Her 'Mates Dance

Boys and girls together danced in the streets of Washington last night in the light of the silvery moon.

The Ellipse resounded to the cheerful strains of a WPA orchestra—but in a dingy three-room apartment only a few blocks away, a little girl lay on her bed writhing in pain from the effects of iodine she had taken in despair because she had no dress to wear to the party.

Twelve years old, with sparkling eyes but emaciated body, the little girl had looked forward to watching last night's gayety. She didn't know a great deal about gayety because her father had deserted his home a year ago.

And the District's weekly grant of $15 to this helpless family of nine doesn't leave much for the carefree life every child is supposed to have.

The little girl wanted very much to go to the street-dancing, where there would be music and laughter. The rag that serves her for a dress was hardly fit to wear. She asked an older sister for a party dress—that is, one that had no rips and seams—but the sister thought the little girl should not attend the street-dance.

The little girl said nothing. With tears in her eyes and a crack in her heart, she picked up a bottle of iodine and swallowed the contents.

The doctors arrived from Gallinger and said the little girl will recover.

Child Welfare Study Is Held To 3 Subjects

Press of Time Reduces Field of Survey, Director Says.

3 Institutions to Be Reviewed in Relation to Other Phases.

Lack of time has limited a study of child welfare institutions in the District to the three "most important," Dorothy Henry, director of the review, said yesterday.

The institutions to be studied will be the Receiving Home, the National Training School for Girls and the Industrial Home for White Children. Miss Henry's report, which was to have encompassed the entire range of organized child welfare work, must be in the hands of the District Commissioners by September 15.

"Obviously," she said, "it is impossible to cover the entire field by this time when my recommendations should be in the hands of the District Commissioners for consideration of budgetary need for 1940.

Committee Approves Plan.

"The study will be focused upon these institutions and their relationship to the total child welfare program," she declared.

Her announcement followed yesterday a meeting with the Child Welfare Review Advisory Committee, which approved the outline for her review.

Miss Henry said purpose of the study is to review previous child welfare surveys and recommendations; to prepare proposals for reorganization of programs for institutional and non-institutional care of children; development of a comprehensive program for coordinate public child welfare services, including suggestions for legislation, estimates of appropriations needed, and specific proposals for such building programs as may be required.

Miss Henry was appointed by the commissioners ten days ago after months of agitation by civic and Governmental agencies interested in the social problems related to child welfare. The Children's Bureau allotted $5,000 for the study.

Previous Studies Available.

Her first step will be to review the previous studies. These include one by Ruth Bloodgood, of the Children's Bureau; one by Emma Lundberg, also of the Bureau, and one by the Child Welfare League of America, all made the last two years.

Some material will be available to Miss Henry within the next two weeks in a survey being conducted by Burdette Lewis.

Miss Henry intends to review the present Juvenile Code, as well as relations of the institutions to other public agencies.

At yesterday's meeting with Miss Henry were James E. Colliflower, chairman pro tem of the committee; John B. Colpoys; Maj. Campbell Johnson; Mrs. R. Gordon Wagenet; Elwood Street, director of the Welfare Board; Miss Katherine Lenroot, director of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, and Paul L. Kirby, assistant director of the Welfare Board.

Medical Science Takes a Hand In Shaping New "Crook" Drama

'The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse' Brings a New Approach to Screen Criminology; 'Going Native' Set for Week of Aug. 19; First Aid to M-G-M; Theater Notes.

"AMAZING. Simply amazing!" Such is the "tag" line spoken by Edward G. Robinson in the Warner Brothers-First National picturization of Barre Lyndon's stage play of "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," previewed yesterday afternoon by a full quota of the drama desks, and such, almost inevitably, must be the first line of any hurried contemplation of this unusual picture an hour after its unreeling.

BELL.

For "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" affords an entirely new approach to the producers' problem of how to give screen stories of criminology a new twist and at the same time keep them within the bounds of engrossing entertainment. "Dr. Clitterhouse" does both.

The pivotal figure in this unique treatment of professional thievery and futile police methods—they are not always so futile, at that—is, of course, Dr. Clitterhouse, a fashionable and wealthy Park avenue physician, who has entertained a long-standing ambition to conduct scientific research into the reactions of criminals while actually engaged in the tense and exciting pursuits of their illicit professions. To do this, he becomes a master thief himself and consorts with the cleverest "mob" operating in New York. As the picture opens, he is successfully "pulling" his own fourth "job" in the home of rich friends, ostensibly as a guest at a musicale. Evading the police on this occasion, he becomes further involved in the underworld while seeking a "fence" for his valuable plunder.

As their nefarious enterprises progress, the doctor makes copious tests of the effects of their adventures upon the members of the gang of which he has become the leader—disputed only by "Rocks" Valentine, whom he has deposed—with a view to surprising medical science with a voluminous treatise upon "Crime and Research." His object is almost attained, when it becomes necessary to clear the way for complete success by quietly rubbing out "Rocks" with a potent drug. Hoist by his petard, as the saying is, Dr. Clitterhouse goes on trial for murder and the picture reaches a denouement that is quite as amazing as the good doctor himself.

There are times when "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" gets pretty far back in the book in its psychiatric patter. It is upon this fact that much of its comedy is based. Dr. Clitterhouse continually is talking far over the heads of his associates in crime as well as the average audience. As an escape from his own confusion of thought, the spectator laughs uproariously at the mental discomfiture of the poor muggs on the screen!

These "muggs," by the way, have been chosen with peculiar fidelity to type in the casting of the picture and present a mosiac of predatory scoundrels it would be difficult to surpass as a group of human guinea pigs for the doctor's deliberate and minute dissection—Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins, Bert Hanlon, Curt Bois, Ward Bond, Vladimir Sokoloff and Billy Wayne, not to omit that eminent disciple of the soek and buskin—principally the sock—"Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom, who is getting to be almost as good a character comedian as he is leather-heaver. Claire Trevor, as Jo Keller, the "fence," steps nicely into the shoes once occupied by Evelyn Brent, Wynne Gibson and other hard-berled young women of an earlier day who seemed to be made of granite and ice.

Even if all the others were not so good, the film still would be worth seeing as another vehicle made to order for its star—or vice versa, as the case may be.

Word comes along, 24 hours too late, that that new issue of the March of Time, devoted to "The Man at the Wheel" and "Threat to Gibraltar," considered briefly in this space yesterday, will be an extra added attraction on the bill opening Friday of this week at RKO-Keith's. Unless "Letter of Introduction" is held over another week, the screen feature will be—but why go into that when from all present indictaions "Letter of Introduction" can't miss?

• • • •

Well, they have got around to fixing a definite date for it, anyway. I mean to say that "Going Native," sixth in the line of annual, all-local revues, will comprise the stage show at Loew's Capitol Theater the week of Friday, August 19, according to announcement made yesterday.

Dance Director Chester Hale has chosen the following as his "ladies of the ensemble: Maxine Moore, 1216 K street northwest; Barbara Bright, 1310 Massachusetts avenue; Claire Brackman, 1009 K street northwest; Anne O'Conner, 1343 Girard street northwest; Genevieve Rogers, 315 Evarts street northwest; Dorothy Schwartz, 2123 C street northwest; Vera Sturiale, 316 Fifth street northeast; Elizabeth Orr, 316 Fifth street northeast; Maizie Colwell, 1401 Fairmont street northwest; Ann Crystal, 3204 M street northwest; Eileen Ghalson, 5228 Chevy Chase Parkway northwest; Oyne Folden, 1519 Connecticut avenue; Frances Miller, 2037 Thirty-seventh street northwest; Jeanette Margolis, 151 Adams street northwest; Jane Zernia, 1 Girard street northeast and Ann Claxton, 8918 First street, Silver Spring, Md.

Rehearsals of the line-girls are to be held daily from 4 to 10 p. m., in Studio A of the National Broacasting Co., in the Trans-Lux Building, and on the stage of the National Theater. When, as and if Mr. Hale finds it necessary to be absent, the chorus will be in charge of LaVonne Gundry, for many years supervisor of all Chester Hale units.

Upon Gene Ford's return from New York today, the cast of principals will be made known. The only definite engagement, so far, is that of Lee Everett to serve as master of ceremonies.

Washington now may consider itself a part of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer costume department. Unable to secure authentic Marine Band uniforms on the West Coast for use in its production of "Sweethearts," costarring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, M.-G.-M. sent in a hurry call for help to the United States Navy Department and secured 72 complete U. S. Marine Band uniforms which reached Culver City in fast time. Manager Herbert D. Ford, of the American Air Lines, tells me that the shipment left the Capital, in charge of a Marine Band drum major, on one of his company's ships at 10:35 Saturday night and were received in Hollywood at 12:20 p. m., Sunday. The shipment—not including the drum major—weighed 576 pounds. So when you see the Marine Band in "Sweethearts," the uniforms, at least, will be on the level.

This column is indebted to W. E. S. (Willie) Wilcox, operator of the Seco Theater, in Silver Spring, Md., for a bundle of British tabloids devoted to the "art" of the cinema. I am aware of no American publication that quite matches these voluminous "books" in pictorial display and intimacy of text. They are contributed to by a considerable number of American feature writers, most surprising of the lot being Frank Capra, the famous director who made "It Happened One Night," "Lost Horizon" and a list of other ace pictures longer than you have been in town. Mr. Capra is quite a writer, who tells tales in England that expediency might prompt him to withhold in this country. And if you think the "tight little isle" doesn't go in for "leg" pictures, you ought to give a look!

Barring further deluge, there is every promise that the new Mount Vernon Open Air Theater, being constructed by E. M. Loew on the Richmond highway below Alexandria, Va., will be ready for formal dedication next Monday, August 15. More rain, more postponement. Harold Gould, Dartmouth graduate, taken into the Loew organization upon the completion of his formal schooling and now manager of the new project, is highly enthused over the local outlook, but somehow can't give the weather much! Positive date and complete details of the opening will come later.

THE SCHNICKELFRITZ BAND AND VIRGINIA VERRILL. Above—The six madcap musicians featured in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," coming to the Earle Theater on Friday to headline the stage portion of next week's program. Inset—Virginia Verrill, singing star of "Vogues of 1938," to be seen on the stage at Loew's Capitol Theater also for the week beginning Friday. In appearance, Miss Verrill is described as a "carbon copy of Myrna Loy."

New York, Aug. 9.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago, when he lived in California, Abe Lyman bought the managerial contract to Ad Wolgast, lightweight sensation of that day. Lyman, anxious to get an immediate return upon his investment, signed Wolgast to fight another contender for lightweight honors . . . Only then did he begin to realize the headaches of a prize-fight manager—for, although the fight was two months off, Wolgast wouldn't train until two weeks before the date scheduled for the bout. Two days before that date, Abe postponed the fight for two weeks . . . then two weeks again . . . another two . . . and still another—until his charge finally was in excellent condition . . . Then, when Wolgast was in perfect shape, some officials made their appearance, and hustled the now perfectly conditioned fighter off to an institution!

JERRY GOFF is one of Broadway's most promising aspirants for screen glory. Young, handsome and possessed of an excellent voice, the mark of Hollywood is upon him . . . Friday afternoon a Paramount talent scout interviewed him for a role in the next Mae West picture. "Sorry, but you won't do," was the decision. "In the first place you're blond, and so there'd be no contrast against Miss West's tresses. In the second place, you're too old to play opposite her." . . . The surprised juvenile protested: "Too old? I've reached the ripe old age of 29." . . . "That's too old, and you're blond," the movie official answered . . . Goff was about to go, wheeled and returned to the office. "I've got just the guy to play the role," he offered . . . "You have?" was the excited answer. "Quick—tell me who it is." Jerry opened the door, and shouted over his shoulder: Freddie Bartholomew!"

HARRY HERSHFIELD, overinvolved in benevolent enterprise, wrote a letter to Sam Goldwyn last week. In it he asked the noted producer to join the $10 membership drive to help to sustain the Yeshiva College. Notables of all faiths, including Jack Dempsey and George Gordon Battle, already had joined. Hershfield's letter was returned unopened yesterday. On the envelope was a rubber-stamped mark: "Refused. The enclosed is returned unopened, as Samuel Goldwyn, Ltd., does not read or accept unsolicited manuscripts!"

WILLIE RASKIN, who shamed Beethoven with such immortal lilts as "Fifty Million Frenchmen Can't Be Wrong" and "Wedding Bells Are Breaking Up That Old Gang Of Mine," is Tin Pan Alley's most irate citizen these days. Raskin, whose travels sometimes have taken him as far west as Palisades Park, devoted long hours to composing a new masterpiece of the plains and the desert . . . "And an O," it was entitled—for the refrain ran: "C and an O, L and an O, R and an O, D and an O—that's the way to spell my Co-lorr—ahhh—dooo." An eminent song publisher accepted it, and Raskin was to return the next day to receive the advance royalty. A porter employed to sweep up the publisher's offices, heard this eminent gentleman singing this roundelay—and was brazen enough to point out that the christeners of America's States somewhere had included an "A" in "Colorado." On such slight technicality, Raskin wails, is art frustrated.

NOEL COWARD went to visit Fay Compton, the actress, and listened to Miss Compton's parrot repeat: "One, two, four; one, two, four." Coward tried to correct the bird: "One, two THREE, four," but to no avail . . . The playwright became fascinated at this instruction and for a number of weeks attempted to correct the parrot's count. The poor bird, however, insisted upon "One, two, four." . . . Then, one afternoon, while Miss Compton was serving tea to Coward, the parrot spoke: "One, two, three, four—Yaaaaahhhhh!"

FREE-LANCING IN Hollywood these days is Spencer Charters, veteran Broadway actor who became famous for his role in George M. Cohan's "The Tavern." . . . In his earlier days, before he found employment in the theater, Charters rented a $6-a-week room in a brownstone house in the forties. The walls were crumbling and dirty and he decided to take sanitary measures. That afternoon, therefore, he went to a paint store, purchased 60 cents worth of paint, and returned to his room. He devoted all of the next day to painting the ugly walls, until they were newly bright and clean . . . Proud of this accomplishment, Charters invited his landlady to view his handiwork. She expressed great pleasure at the job he had done. "It's such a nice room now," she agreed, "that $6 a week is too cheap. From now n your rent is $9 a week."

Spicy Comedy Provides Gay Olney Evening

"Personal Appearance" Is Lively Item Starring Dorothy Mackaill.

By Nelson B. Bell.

—THE CAST—

Theater Manager.....Edwin A. Sherwood
Carole Arden.....Dorothy Mackaill
Gladys Kelcey.....Jean Logan
Aunt Kate Barnaby....Adelaide Hibbard
Joyce Struthers.....Margarete Wilson
Chester Norton.....Howard Ferguson
Mrs. Struthers.....Zolya Talma
Clyde Pelton.....Robert Lynn
Gene Tuttle.....Leslie Denison
Johnson.....Gordon Richards
Jessie.....Elisabeth Ray Williams

Those who remember this sprightly comedy as a touring road attraction, at the National Theater, will recall that it is a play ideally suited to the requirements of the summer theater. It is gay, frivolous, humorous and pungent in its implications, laying no heavier claim upon the spectator than a willingness to be amused and a wish to be excused from the heavier problems of the playhouse.

As interpreted in the new Olney Theater last night, with Dorothy Mackaill in the role of the temperamental young motion picture star, traveling the dusty highways of Pennsylvania on a tour of the lesser cities, "Personal Appearance" was greeted by an enthusiastic, if not too large, audience as the liveliest, most laughable and most risque play—in a discreet way, of course—of the three so far presented in Mr. Cochran's rustic tabernacle of the drama. Laughs ran high and the enjoyment of those in attendance was obvious. There were a few rough spots, to be sure, but none of sufficient duration or importance to impair the general effectiveness of a provocative evening under the oaks.

Movie Star On Loose.

It seems hardly necessary to recite that "Personal Appearance" derives its zest and its comic "punch" from the not to subtle attempt of a siren of the movies to lure a handsome young automobile mechanic away from his boyhood sweetheart at a small-town filling station near Scranton. Her methods are none too subtle and "Buddy" Norton's sales resistance" is none too strong, especially since he has invented a sound gadget that Carole Arden is sure will revolutionize the entire motion picture industry, once she has had an opportunity to take Bud back to Hollywood in her car and bring the matter to the attention of the magnate who has so seriously cramped her career by putting her under contract to star in all of his pictures over a period of ten years! The contrasting character types have been sharply, even if a little superficially, etched and the whole merry business makes for spicy goings-on.

Mis Mackaill, being a blonde and having been a picture star of the first flight, is a happy choice for the stellar role of the present production. Her best moments are those in which she abandons herself to comedy and purring seductiveness of a designing woman on the prowl. She even got to laughing herself once or twice last evening. She has costumed her part in the stunning Hollywood manner and altogether makes it a pretty glamorous figure, you may be sure.

Mrs. Hibbard Returns.

Howard Ferguson is a good-looking and natural "Buddy" and does an earnest job of "straight" playing, with Margarete Wilson an ingenuous foil in the role of his frightened betrothed. Leslie Denison, as the Hollywood press agent in charge of the expedition, could do with a bit more animation to give requisite dynamics to the character who speaks many of the snappiest lines in the play. Jean Logan and Robert Lynn provide an added fillip of comedy as the two subordinate lovers, both bitten by the movie bug. Miss Logan scores one of the individual hits o fthe three acts.

Adelaide Hibbard, returning to the local boards as the sagacious and watchful Aunt Kate Barnaby, offered one of her most effective, letter-perfect performances and was warmly welcomed by a faithful audience of admirers. She substantially ballasted the play, as she has so many others. Zolya Talma gave her best portrayal to date as Mrs. Struthers, owner of the staid old family homestead in which most of the action takes place. The others contributed adequately.

"Personal Appearance" has been well directed and staged by George Vivian and Charles Squires, respectively, and will repay the jaunt to Olney in rich dividends of fun. It might even turn out to be the hit of the season, once it gets into full speed.

In Bathing Again!

HEDY LAMARR dons a little more conventional bathing attire, than she wore as Hedy Keisler in "Ecstacy." She will be seen on the screen next in Walter Wanger's production of "Algiers."

Working Girls Are Glorified In New Movies

Hollywood is spending the summer glorifying the American business girl.

Current films indicate a trend away from out-and-out glamour girls and heiress heroines in favor of the girls who work for a wage.

Starting the pageant in Producer-Director Wesley Ruggles, who plucked brown-haired Ellen Drew from behind the counter of a Hollywood confectionery store, dubbed her the "typical American working girl" and gave her the lead opposite Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray in Paramount's "Sing You Sinners." Miss Drew plays the role of a working girl throughout the picture and wears a wardrobe without a single dress that cost more than $6.98.

Continuing the vogue for maidens in the marts of trade is Louise Campbell, who becomes associated with Ray Milland in the operation of an airplane factory in Paramount's cavalcade of aviation history, "Men With Wings." Thus she typifies the new "career girl" who manages to make a name for herself in business and yet remain glamorous.

Marie Wilson is an eccentric little waitress in Warner Brothers' "Boy Meets Girl." In Cecil B. De Mille's "Union Pacific" will be a woman restaurant owner who follows the progress of the railroad.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 8.—While making my rounds the other day before starting to work in the picture "Thanks for the Memory," I listened to a young actor who has come into prominence in the last year (success and the heat have gone to his head a bit) about how hard he had to work.

HEDDA HOPPER

I took a long breath and was just about ready to let him have it, by saying, "If you'd stop trying to add every attractive girl to your list, being seen every night at different clubs, and learn something about your business, which has put you on a pinnacle where you don't deserve to be . . ." but before I could spill this spleen, I thought better of it.

I remembered the quiet way Edgar Bergen goes about his job, and how little he complains about it. When you see him in "Letter of Introduction," remember he's playing both himself and Charlie—controlling the movements of both bodies, watching the effect they're having on the other players. While doing this, he drinks coffee during lines and uses props. And then I'm supposed to sympathize with a young punk who does nothing but project his personality, which isn't very hot in the first place. Feel cooler, now that's out of my system.

There's too much grubbing and too little glowing in this town. Wisn the casting boys would give a lift to Harry Burns, who used to run his own magazine. All he's asking is a line among the extras. How about it?

Her first day in a picture, Mrs. Ng, an extra on the set of "By the Dawn's Early Light," got an awful lot of attention. She's 79, weighs 80 pounds, has snow white hair, the sweetest smile you ever saw—doesn't speak a word of English. Warner Baxter took her to lunch.

Virginia Dabney, who's playing in "King of Alcatraz," attracted attention by lunching with an old lady who had the deepest voice you've ever heard. It turned out to be J. Carroll Naish, playing an escaped convict in the same picture, dressed as a woman.

The crew wore gas masks on the "Angels with Dirty Faces" set while trying to smoke gangster Cagney out of his apartment. He took gas and all. After two days he saw the corroded metal on the camera and said: "Gee whiz! I wonder if my lungs look like that!"

Doug Corrigan's remark when he learned about all the skull-duggery which went on among the ten percenters who tried to get his name on the dotted line, was a classic: "And some people think flying the Atlantic Ocean is a dangerous business."

Nice of Ginger Rogers to wire from Mexico City that Barbara Stanwyck be given her new dressing room to use while she's finishing "Mad Miss Manton." Barbara narrowly escaped having pneumonia.

Now guests on Donald Crisp's yacht can dive overboard and give an imitation of a seal or flying fish, for he's invented a special shark-proof net which keeps out all inquisitive intruders.

My gratitude to Frank Fitzgerald who wrote about Dr. C. Anderson Aldrich's new book called "Babies Are Human Beings," to be published this fall. Guess he beat Dr. Dafoe to the punch. I put in an order for it. Not that I need it. My baby has reached the ripe old age of 23, but I just want to find out where I made my mistakes.

The Roadside

And a good critic he is, too, besides being a most satisfactory vagabond in George M. Cohan's famed melodrama.

For the Yankee Doodle Boy is very much in evidence out on the Rockville Pike this fortnight (even if his name seems to have slipped inadvertently from the program.) His oft-repeated philosophy is the theme of what has become, in "The Tavern," a legendary play of the theater. The play was brought to him for doctoring as a melodrama full of so many stock situations that the resourceful Mr. Cohan added another, pivotal character and with a sly he-haw from his sleeve brought it forth as a burlesque.

It's a stormy night in the tavern, the hired help hear noises, several unaccountable characters turn up, to say nothing of the Governor, his suite (boasting a sweet daughter) and screams and gun shots galore. Through it all stalks the drama-loving Vagabond pointing up scenes with the zeal of an energetic theater-goer.

Messink Is Star.

Top honors must go to Paul Messink, on-stage most of the time, in the role o the Cohanesque Vagabond. He swaggered and laughed, was audience and player with such evident enjoyment and good humor that the Roadsiders must have been proud to boast a player worthy of so juicy a role. Whether Kenn Romney got more fun out of his part, the Hired Man, than his audience did is a moot question, but his bawling of the famed line "What's all the shootin' fer?" vied for Mr. Messink's honors.

Milton Freedman was well cast as the Tavern Keeper, keeping him amazed and inn-keeperish the entire evening.

Adele Gusack, another skilled thespian of the old red barn, was a superb husky-voiced lady in destress. Virginia True was the charming daughter of Lois Alexander's helpful wife to Harry Westcott's eminent Governor. Helena Cook's apparently inexhaustible vocal chords gave birth to many blood-curdling screams and Howard Wierum was her stalwart, if backward, lover. Robert M. Miller, Karl Gay, Benjamin F. Gill, James L. Howerton and Ephraim Jacobs completed Director Hardt's cast. Mr. Pearson's set was given the unique chance to be solid for only one set there is.

R. L. C.

Glen Echo Park

Dave McWilliams and his gang of 13 lucky musicians began another week's engagement at Glen Echo Park last night. This outfit has been giving the jitterbugs all they expect, and Mac's has been termed the best band so far to play in the Spanish Garden Ballroom; certainly attitude of the cash customers over the week-end at the ballroom seemed to prove something or other.

The big Crystal Pool would have to hang out the S. R. O. sign if it were not so large (accommodating 4,000 with ease) because these "dog days" are certainly bringing the swimmers.

Other attractions at the park which prospered by week-end vacationists included the popular World Cruise, the Dodgem Rides with all new streamlined cars, and the fleet of motor boats on the waterway canal. Business of course is always good on the tried and true Coaster Digs, the ageless Midway and the Whip, pretzel and merry-go-round or carrousel as you prefer. Many families shook the dust of the city from their feet for the lush grass of Glen Echo's picnic grounds over the week-end.

SPEAKING OF BASEBALL.

POVICH.

Professional football has already moved in on the sports scenes, bandying names like Sammy Baugh and Whizzer White before the reading public. And up in New York the talk is running to a lightweight championship fight between Henry Armstrong and Lew Ambers tomorrow night. And there is tennis at Seabright and Rye, and a half dozen major horse tracks are operating.

But it seems that a game called big league baseball—you remember it—is still being played. Moreover, important things have been happening in baseball. One might even go so far as to say that both big league pennants were decided last week-end. Not finally and conclusively, of course, but important trends developed which will probably leave their mark on the pennant races.

The New York Giants, for example, fell out of the National League pennant race with a thud. They may recover and reinstate themselves in their 40-odd remaining games, but that is extremely doubtful. The Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Giants two out of three to take a 6½-game lead and, barring plagues, pestilence or train wrecks, figure to breeze into the pennant.

But New York will lose only half of its traditional subway world series. Over in the other league—the American—New York's Yankees are doing very well for themselves, thank you. Over the week-end they met the only team with a ghost of a chance of beating 'em out for the pennant and if it had been a prize fight they would have stopped it after the first game instead of permitting the Yankees to massacre the Indians in all three. The Yanks, if you want all the details, are now 5½ games out in front of Cleveland and coasting.

These are indeed sorry times for Will Terry. Even "Meal Ticket" Carl Hubbell has failed Willyum. In every previous crisis when Terry needed a ball game, he'd give Hub a baseball and tell him to "go out there and lick those bums." Terry gave Hub a ball and repeated his magic sentence. But it didn't work. The Pirates, a gang of realists who don't believe in charms, knocked Hub out of the box.

But it will be perfectly all right with the general public if the Giants finish behind the Pirates. Fandom is more than slightly weary of the Yankees-Giants world series with Yankee triumphs a foregone conclusion. For two years we have had a "nickel" series between the Yanks and the Giants, but that appelation has been flattering to the Giants. The brand of ball they played against the Yankees wasn't worth a nickel.

The Yankees Are Rolling.

The Yankees, as we were saying, are doing all right. It is doubtful if Cleveland will ever recover from that crushing triple licking in their own ball yard. Red Ruffing's two-hit shut-out in the last game must have been particularly galling to the Indians. In succession, the Yankees pounded Bob Feller, Johnny Allen and Mel Harder out of the box and if the Indians can't win with those three, they can't win.

There isn't much doubt that the Yankees are rolling. Have you noticed that Joe Di Maggio is very quietly beginning to pound that ball after the worst start in his big league career. At this writing he has a .328 average. Not so much for Di Maggio, perhaps, but not bad. And he has only lately started to hit.

And have you noticed a couple of other things about the Yankees? Red Rolfe, for example. He is filling in very nicely for such of the Yankees who are in a hitting slump this season. He, too, has a 328 average. And there is young Joe Gordon, who is not exactly a disappointment. Gordon failed to hit .300 for Newark but here he is up in the big leagues with a respectable .288 average. Which includes 15 home runs. And around second base, they do say that young Gordon does everything that Tony Lazzeri used to do, plus.

The Yanks seem to be doing all right despite the fact that Lou Gehrig is hitting only .277 and George Selkirk and Tom Henrich hitting in the .260's. Red Ruffing has won eight of his last nine games and Lefty Gomez is rated as even a better pitcher than Ruffing. And whenever Joe McCarthy gets in a pitching jam and needs a fellow to go out there and win a ball game for the Yanks, Monte Pearson and Spud Chandler most always oblige. There's Johnny Murphy, too. He's the best relief pitcher in the league.

Cochrane Not Quite Stunned.

Speaking of Baseball, as we seem to be doing, we are beginning to understand the strange goings-on at Detroit where you remember Mickey Cochrane, the supposed fair-haired boy of Tiger Town, was given the heave-ho by Owner Briggs, as manager. Least surprised by his discharge, we understand, was Cochrane himself.

For some time before his release all was not milk and honey between Cochrane and Briggs, we now learn. Behind the false front of mutual regard and respect between owner and manager was growing distrust. On an occasion when the Tigers were playing the Yankees in New York three weeks ago, Cochrane, standing on the dug-out steps, noticed a tall, straw-hatted figure slip into a box seat near the Tigers' bench.

"There goes Shadow No. 2," said Mickey, simply.

Asked what he meant by that, Cochrane wasn't a bit reticent. "That's another one of those dicks. Mr. Briggs has had detectives on the trail of this ball club for weeks. It's a heluva note."

Mr. Briggs can hand it out, all right. He paid Cochrane baseball's highest salary when he gave him a $45,000 contract two years ago. But there is growing evidence that he can't take it. The first year that the Tigers fail to finish first or second, he fires his manager. He ought to acquire the philosophy of Clark Griffith and Connie Mack. Those two gentlemen know that you can't win a pennant every year. It just isn't being done.

The Unspectacular Mr. Travis.

And as long as we are talking about baseball, have you been noticing Cecil Travis. The huzzahs have all been for Hank Greenberg with his home run clouting, and Jimmy Foxx with his sensational batting splurge, but in the general excitement, young Mr. Travis has been very much overlooked.

But it seems that Travis has gone very quietly about his work and is trailing Foxx by only two points for the league batting championship. Earl Averill, of the Indians, who had a 12-point lead over Travis ten days ago, has gone into a terrific nose dive while Foxx took over the lead, but the very unspectacular Travis merely goes along getting his one, two and three hits every day and keeping his average up around the .350 mark.

We remember the day Travis broke into the big leagues, and perhaps you do, too. We mean the day when Cleveland was playing at Griffith Stadium and the ungainly kid from the Southern Association got his first chance. That afternoon Travis thumped out five hits in five times at bat.

They were all hit into leftfield. At the time they seemed to be flukey hits. A left-handed hitter didn't figure to hit to leftfield. But that day the big leagues, unknowingly, were ushering into the game a left-handed hitter who was to set something of a new batting style. His hits into leftfield were natural hits for him. He's been hitting to left ever since. He's one of the great hitters of baseball. He could win that American League batting championship this year.

3 Nat Southpaws Set For Series With Yanks

Chase, Krakauskas and Hogsett Will Be Used in Attempt to Halt Yankee Power, Harris Says.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 8.—The Nats tonight are in the camp of their oppressors, awaiting the start of a three-game series tomorrow. When Bucky Harris sends his athletes onto the field at Yankee Stadium, his athletes will be running smack into a five-game winning streak of the Yanks.

More than any other, Joe McCarthy's club has put a crimp in the Nats' first-division hopes this season. Against the Yankees, the Nats have been able to win only two of nine games between the teams thus far. They have registered only one victory over the Yanks in Griffith Stadium and only one here.

Against the league leaders, Manager Harris will toss all of his available southpaw pitchers. For young Ken Chase and the equally-young Joe Krakauskas, it will be literally an ordeal by fire—the Yankee's fire. They have each been given starting assignments with the veteran Elon Hogsett scheduled to pitch the third game for the Nats.

"I don't have a right-hander on my staff who figures to beat the Yankees, said Harris today by way of explanation. "At least the southpaws will have an edge. If we can stop Dickey and Gehrig, we might win a couple of the games here. Chase and Krakauskas have the best chance of doing that."

The Yankees, flushed by three straight victories over Cleveland, have their pitchers fresh and ready. Today, either Soud Chandler or Monte Pearson will get the starting assignment, and Lefty Gomez will be available for the third game of the series.

The Nats move into New York after winning five and losing seven in the West. But they were in a happy mood, nevertheless. Four of their victories were achieved in their last six games, and Zeke Bonura has finally begun to hit the ball in the manner in which he had been accustomed.

"If Bonura is finally out of his slump, we are a great bet to finish in the first division—perhaps third place," said Bucky Harris cautiously. "That big fellow can do us a lot of good if he keeps hitting. When he is hitting, it's a pleasure. I can assure you. He has been making the Joe Kuhel trade look pretty good."

Coincident with Bonura's return to form at bat has been Al Simmons' recent batting splurge. Since being reinstalled in the Nats' outfield, Simmons has proven one of the most useful hitters on the team.

Sheley Shuns Rams, Goes to Canada

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Aug. 8 (AP). Wayne (Scooter) Sheley, star quarterback at Augustana College here last year and one of the Nation's leading scorers, disclosed today that he will play with the Winnipeg Rugby Club this year instead of reporting to the Cleveland Rams of the National Professional Football League.

Sheley announced several months ago he had signed for $125 a game with Cleveland. The Winnipeg offer, it was said, involved $1,000, assurance of board and room expenses for the season, a paying job on the side and a scholarship in the University of Manitoba.

Widener Colt Easy Victor

Two Jockeys Are Hurt; Natty Boy Triumphs.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 8.—An easy victory for George D. Widener's favored Highscope in the thirty-sixth Troy claiming stakes and mishaps to two riders in the steeplechase highlighted Saratoga's card today.

Highscope, held at 3 to 1, came through with his third straight victory in the five and a half-furlong dash for two-year-olds after two apprentices, L. Sessa and J. Barry, had been tossed from their mounts in the jumping event.

Sessa suffered a fractured left collar bone and was taken to the hospital. He was tossed by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' 9 to 10 favorite, the Immortal 2nd. Until today's misfortune the combination had scored three times in as many attempts this season.

Barry escaped with contusions of the forehead and was treated at the track's first aid quarters. He was thrown by Big Rebel at the tenth jump, four jumps before The Immortal went down with Sessa. The race was won by Flying Falcon, a 12 to 1 shot.

Highscope, out of the money only once in six years, ran the distance in 1:06 1-5 under 116 pounds to earn $3,825.

A surprise winner turned up in each of the feature events at Narraganset Park. Natty Boy, 4-year-old from the stable of Hall and Warrender, won the 6 furlongs of the Quick Step Handicap to pay $12.70, and Mrs. Emil Denemark's Dorothy Rock came through in the Pawtucket Handicap of a mile and 70 yards at the long odds of $56.40 for $2.

Grim Reaper failed the talent in the Pawtucket Handicap. After having $21,580 wagered on him and backed down to 3 to 5, the son of Sickle could do no better than fourth as Dorothy Rock galloped home with T. P. Morgan's Liberty Flight third and Hal Price's Headley's Dah Re third.

Bala Ormont, from the Friedberg and Axton Stable, of Louisville, Ky., finally found a spot to his liking at Washington Park and captured the 6-furlong Matteson Purse. It was his first victory since the Churchill Downs meeting last May. Bala Ormont scored by a half length over Layover, with La Gata third and the favorite, Range Dust, fourth.

Armstrong-Ambers Advance Sale Lags

Betting Continues to Favor Colored Fighter; Only the 135-Pound Title to Be at Stake.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 8.—Henry Armstrong's welterweight title will not be officially on the line when he goes after Lou Ambers' lightweight crown Wednesday night, but Ambers will claim it if he wins decisively and John Q. Public probably will recognize him.

The New York State Athletic Commission has ruled that only the 135-pound diadem will be at stake, but that will make no difference to Manager Al Weill if his "Herkimer Hurricane" does the unexpected and wins.

"We'll wait until Wednesday night and see what happens," Weill said. "If it is a fast, exciting fight and Lou wins by a wide margin, he'll be the welterweight champion in the eyes of the fans who pay the freight and after all that's what will count."

Meanwhile the advance sale for the 15-round joust in the polo grounds got no better rapidly. A brief week-end spurt led Promoter Mike Jacobs to predict that "she'll hit the $100,000 mark sure," but more conservative sources estimated the fight would gross nearer the $80,000 mark.

The advance sale is now $25,000.

Betting continued to favor Armstrong at odds of 11 and 12 to 5, with little wagering. A sudden influx of Ambers money late last week was gobbled up rapidly and there has been none since.

It will be one of those unusual occasions in the fight world where the defending champion will enter the ring on the short end of the betting.

Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis flew in from Detroit today and was rushed out to Summit to watch Ambers in his final workout. Joe refused to make a prediction.

The little Negro, who will be gunning for his third ring title in less than a year, took a day off at Pompton Lakes. He failed to impress observers in his last drill Sunday, but was pronounced in tip-top shape by his handlers.

While Louis is in town, Jacobs expects to talk with him about plans for a September fight, maybe with Tommy Farr. Max Baer's mother died last night and it is not believed he will fight until the indoor season, anyway.

Another Marathon Golfer Plays 171 Holes in 15 Hours

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—It took Bill Coleman, 22-year-old Auburn youth 15 hours today to play 171 holes of golf on the 9-hole 3,154-yard layout of the Highland Golf Club course.

Coleman's score for the entire play was 734 strokes. He carded 98 pars, 12 birdies and 1 eagle, and had one 9-hole total of 35, one under par.

He began his long trek at 5 a. m. and by 8 p. m. had completed the 19 rounds for the 171 total.

Six caddies, working in relays, accompanied Coleman. He said he "felt fresh as a daisy" at the finish and exhibited a slightly blistered heel as the only aftermath of the estimated 34-mile marathon.

Coleman said he used four pairs of shoes and lost 12 pounds. He declared that he undertook the long grind "just for the fun of it."

Pirates Awarded Judge's Decision

Frank Kovacs Intimidated, Mentor Says

George Hudson, Coach of Several Stars, May Sue U. S. L. T. A.

By Henry Super.

New York, Aug. 8.—George Hudson, veteran professional at the Berkeley, Calif., Club, tonight charged the United States Lawn Tennis Association with "intimidating" his pupil and protege, Frank Kovacs, and causing a break in their tennis relations. He said he might take legal action.

Walter S. Pate, chairman of the Davis Cup committee of management, and Holcombe Ward, president of the U. S. L. T. A., denied the charges. Kovacs, vacationing at Rye, N. Y., said Hudson "didn't give me one stroke—I don't owe him anything."

Hudson's retort was that Ward and Pate naturally would not admit such charges and that Kovacs was "playing ball with the U. S. L. T. A.; to do otherwise would be suicidal as far as his tennis future is concerned."

Hudson, who claimed he had coached the 18-year-old Oakland, Calif., player for five years, said the "break" came at the recent Seabright, N. J., Tournament.

"Time to Clean House."

"Frank refused to pose with me for a Newspaper photographer," Hudson said at a press conference today. "When I asked him what the trouble was he replied that he had been told by certain tennis officials he would not be helped or supported by the U. S. L. T. A. if he continued traveling with me or accepted coaching from me.

"I am prepared to see this thing through to the end even though it might mean the end of my career as a tennis coach.

"It's about time tennis was cleaned up and I hope I may be the one to start the ball rolling."

Hudson said he had tried in vain to find out what was behind the break-up, but that tennis officials refused to give him any satisfaction. He said he heard one official had been quoted recently as "being sick and tired of these coaches and managers who attempt to capitalize on players in an amateur sport," and believed he was the first of several coaches who were being singled out.

Pate said the charges were "utterly ridiculous."

"Hudson," he said, "came East with Kovacs against the wishes not only of the northern California association, but the southern association as well. They didn't advocate his attaching himself to players like a parasite and traveling with them.

"Commercialism" Hit.

"Kovacs came to me during the Seabright tournament and declared Hudson's hanging around was ruining his concentration and that he did not need a 'manager.' Personally I think Hudson being around Kovacs smacked too much of commercialism."

Hudson declared he was not a manager and that Kovacs had asked him to go East with him but that the only request he had to make was that Hudson allow him to do his own dickering with the various clubs at which he was to appear.

Kovacs said:

"I don't owe Hudson anything. Hudson didn't give me one damn stroke. I took lessons from him—20 of them, but only because my father had paid Hudson in advance. Two years ago Hudson asked me to tell people that he was my coach, as it would help his business. I obliged him. I won't back him up in anything and don't want anything to do with him."

Hudson said that for years he had suffered insults at the hands of tennis officials, hoping for the day when he could ride to glory with a top-flight player of his own making.

The problem of making weight loomed up large and forebodingly before George Abrams yesterday as he buckled down to serious preparations for next Monday's ten-round bout with Steve Mamakos at the ball park.

According to the terms of his contract the Jewish middleweight must scale not more than 154 pounds by 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. This means that the lad, normally a 160-pounder, must peel off any strips of surplus beef on his well-proportioned frame to come in at the stipulated figure, and it promises to be a sizeable task.

Syd Fishel, Abrams' manager, said yesterday that his boy would have no difficulty with poundage, but would come in below 154 pounds without even trying. Abrams, he said, has done road work every other day since his last fight, even while vacationing in the Midwest, and was not as stale as a large portion of the population believed him to be.

Fishel added that he expected Mamakos to challenge George immediately after he arrived home, as the Greek's manager thought he might catch Abrams out of condition, as heavy as an overstuffed chair, and on a more equal plane with Steve. It was with this in mind that George was sent out on the road every morning for a couple of miles of brisk hoofing.

Mamakos, on the other hand, is trying to prod his weight to 154 pounds after scaling 147 for his fight with Ivan Nedomatsky last week. The Southwest mauler's everyday weight is around 150 or 152 pounds, and he anticipates no trouble adding five pounds to his weight.

But Mamakos isn't worried about averdupois, and judging by past performances is justified in looking lightly on the problem. His wind-

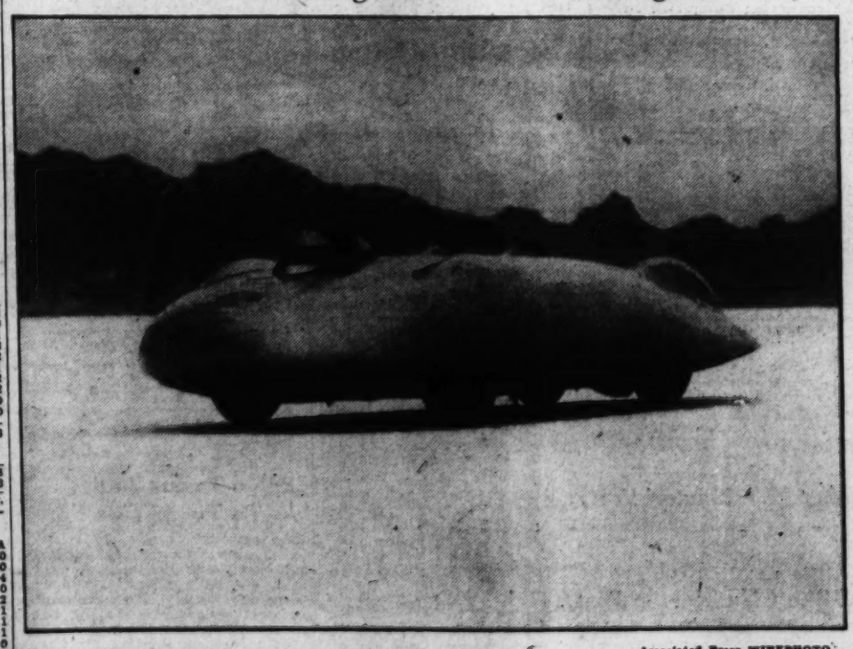
He Isn't Standing Still . . He's Hitting 250!



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

New York Cops Win.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—New York's "finest" came to bat in a driving rainstorm in the ninth inning of their annual ball game with the Philadelphia police force today and scored four runs to win, 4 to 3.

Fight Postponed.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The ten-round fight between Nathan Mann and Steve Carr, scheduled for tonight for the New England heavyweight title was postponed because of threatening weather.

Matt Raymond Wins.

10-Day Race Meeting to Open Today at Cumberland Track

Bill Ackerman on Fishing

Our stream fishing has been far better during the past several years, than it was for many years previous; and not only because most States are doing a better job of stocking, but because the great majority of anglers have learned that the State, even though aided by Federal agencies, cannot improve the sport of fishing if the anglers do not show sportsmanship in taking the fish.

ACKERMAN.

Anglers following their sport in the ocean have learned also that sportsmanship has a definite place if our fun is to continue in offshore waters. In addition they have the lesson of what continuous unregulated fishing will do to any species, regardless of how numerous and prolific it might be.

Florida, although slow in placing the black bass on the protected list, has realized the value of the great schools of tarpon and sailfish, and has regulated to some extent their taking. If more States were to follow this example with their sport fish, there need never be any thought as to how long the fishing would continue—for it would be unending. The one hurdle, hard to get over, would be with those fish rated in one State as sport fish, and in another as food fish. But even this problem isn't insurmountable, for today in many sections commercila interests are working hand in hand with sport-fishermen, for they have finally realized their interests are identical.

Which brings us to the ready acceptance of the idea by most everyone interested in the white marlin fishing off Ocean City, that there should be conservation, if regulation isn't possible, in the taking of this greatest of our sport fishes.

With the season (only the fourth, although not known then the greatest in the history of any port) scarce a week old, ways and means were being discussed to prevent the unnecessary slaughter of these white marlin. Members of the Game Fishing Association who were for reasonable conservation almost to a man, found their hands were tied to some extent, because it is hard to tell a party how many fish they should take, when they are paying their money to do just that. Their final decision was to place the catch directly upon the shoulders of the party, let it be what it might. It was a wise idea.

But to make a reasonable excuse for suggesting release of unharmed fish, we sold Charlie Jackson, acting commissioner, Bureau of Fisheries, on the idea of tagging them so that something of their habbits and migrations might be learned. He was not only interested, but so intrigued with the details of this sporty fish, that he went down personally with Dr. R. A. Nesbit, who is in charge of Middle Atlantic fishery investigations, as guests of the chamber of commerce and the Game Fishing Association to supply the captains of the charter boats with tags, and to show them how to clip them into the gill cover or tail.

That we were right in our idea, is shown in a letter to Charlie Jackson from a local barrister, E. F. Colladay, whom he met on the dock in Ocean City. Mr. Colladay says: "The marlin fishing over there is so wonderfully fine I hope you may find some way to protect it. Personally, having caught and brought ashore two of these beautiful fish, I would be willing to release all I catch in the future which are not to badly wounded to take care of themselves. The establishment of such a sporting standard might be very helpful."

The commissioner in answer says: "I want to express my appreciation of your splendid sportsmanship—of course, it is rather late in the present season, but we hope to be well under way and in readiness for next year, for there is also an attempt to launch a similar program in Florida and along the Southern coast, not only for marlin, but for other species of sport fish as well.

"I hope that before long you will have the thrill of capturing a tagged fish, which may give the Bureau some information regarding the migration and life history of the gamey white marlin."

• • • •

It is not hard for an angler like Edward F. Colladay to apply sportsmanship to his fun, for it has been inherent in his makeup, and expressed throughout his public life.

Our hope is that others might take a leaf from his book, and realize that the sport in marlin fishing lays not in boating a spent adversary only to let it die, but in the excitement of seeing his tailing on a quiet sea—the run—and as the hook is set, the prodigious jumps, one after another, until the strength in his big tail refuses to take him above the surface again, or the hook has pulled loose and he is free. What more could any angler ask for—and never forget, the angler enjoys with his sport something never given to the nimrod, the right to extend life to a defeated opponent.

• • • •

A few facts that might be of interest about the present season on marlin. The boat record of eight equals the world boat record, while the port record of white marlin caught in one day was raised from 32, also made at Ocean City last year, to 37. The total catch for the season is above 600, more than three times the record 1935 season at Montauk. As most of the fish taken on the north Cuban coast are by commercial fishermen, they are not to be compared, although it seems safe to say the sport there could be as good as at the Maryland port were it easier of access.

The smallest fish taken at Ocean City in 30 days of fishing was 39 pounds, while the largest was 114. Quite a few pounds short of the large one last year, although about that there is some question—there is still some talk about sounding leads being found in its stomach.

14 Sprinters Are Entered In Inaugural

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md. Aug. 8.—The City of Cumberland purse, opening five-eighths feature of the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting, which ushers in Maryland's fall racing season at 2 p. m. tomorrow, has attracted a sparkling field of 14 sprinters. Although a light rain fell this morning, old Sol was on the job this afternoon and tomorrow's sport will be conducted over a fast track.

Battling for the $500 purse in tomorrow's feature will be such speedsters as Washoe Valley, Titian Kiddie, Nay Nay, Ladys Favor, Patsey Begone, and Mama's Boy, all winners this year over tracks in New England, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. If the track is fast, one needn't be surprised if a new time record is established.

The ten day's racing and fair, the latter being programmed next week, will both be held under the finest possible conditions. President Harry A. Manley, has spent in the neighborhood of $100,000 remodeling this plant since last year.

Among the worth-while improvements are a modern clubhouse, installation of an electrical camera to photograph all finishes; putting the stewards and placing judges in new quarters atop the grandstand, erecting enough new barns to accommodate more than 500 horses, as well as making new quarters for the fair exhibits.

More than 40 riders are on the grounds ready to don silks. Among them are Leon Garrett, the Nashville, Tenn., flash, who topped both the recent Hagerstown and Belair sessions.

The outstanding race of the meeting is the Harry A. Manley Handicap. It will be run next week over the mile and one-sixteenth route. It carries a $600 purse, a $1,000 silver trophy, imported from England, in addition to $100 additional in silverware. The imported trophy must be won three times by the same owner before it becomes his outright property.

President Manley has arranged to play host to an opening tournout of 15,000. The daily double will be held on the first and second races.

Sandlot Pickups

Hurling records: . . . The Tex Tavern nine is boasting of two pitchers that really know how to chuck the pellet . . . Bob Kissner, a great little righthander with a fast ball, hung up his eighth consecutive win Sunday as he turned back the Super Service team, 8-2, in the first game of a doubleheader . . . In the nightcap, Ed Donaldson, a clever slab artist with a good change of pace, registered his sixth straight victory by beating the Service aggregation, 5-4.

• • • •

Hitting and hurling highlights: . . . In addition to winning his own ball game, Dick Myers, Post Circulator's pitcher, slammed five hits in five times at bat to also lead the slugging attack as the Annandale Athletic Club nine bowed, 4-3, in a fast and exciting independent engagement . . . That is first-class slugging in anybody's league . . . And how about this for applying the wood to the hide? . . . Bernie Forney, catcher, pumped a homer, two triples and a single in four attempts, to all parts of the field, as the Maryland Athletic Club boys defeated Gibson Gray's, 9-7, in the first part of a twin bill.

• • • •

Robert Melvin, Maryland Athletic Club left fielder, got three hits in three tries, one of which was a two-bagger, and even though he had to be content with second place swatting honors because Forney's feat, nevertheless, his perfect day with the willow could not be overlooked . . . Tom Sutphin pitched four-hit ball, struck out seven, walked only two, and collected two hits in three times to the plate as his club, the Wakefield Dairy Juniors, nosed out the No. 10 Police Boys' Club, 4-3, in an independent tussle.

• • • •

Sherrod Robertson, nephew of Prexy Clark Griffith, is stinging the ball hard these days . . . Playing for the District Plumbers against the Tucci Plumbing outfit, Sherrod rapped a homer and three doubles in four appearances at the plate to lead his chums to a 16-4 victory . . . Willie Schaeffer, who twirled that game and was credited with the win, got four hits in five times at bat to aid his own cause immensely . . . Don Dunlap, Washington and Lee receiver, recently played a game with the Post Circulators, and in three official times at bat he tripled three times . . . But Don complained of being a little stiff . . . The boys are wondering what he will do the next time out.

Abernathy Given Chance to Recover

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—Physicians gave Woody Abernathy, Buffalo Bisons outfielder, a chance today to recover from a fractured skull suffered when he was hit by a fast ball thrown by Johnny Gee, big rookie pitcher for the Syracuse Chiefs.

Dr. Brooks McCuen, who performed an emergency operation on the hard-hitting outfielder, said recovery is possible if no brain tissue infection develops. He emphasized it would be ten days before Abernathy would be out of danger.

10 Trotters Assured for Sulky Derby

By the Associated Press.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The Hambletonian, Kentucky Derby of light harness horse racing, is expected to draw 10, possibly 12, 3-year-old trotters to the post Wednesday for its thirteenth renewal at Good Time Park.

The owners and trainers have until 11 a. m. tomorrow to decide whether they'll shell out the additional starting fee of $250 for trotting's richest race. However, as the Grand Circuit meeting opened today ten trainers indicated they would have their charges in line when Starter Steve Phillips sends them away at 3 p. m. in the first of the two-out-of-three heats. Two other trainers said they had not made up their minds.

Heading the list are the two favorites—E. J. Merkle's Long Key, of Columbus, Ohio, with which Ben White, veteran trainer and driver, will seek his third Hambletonian victory, and Molin, from Lawrence B. Sheppard's Hanover, Pa., Shoe Farms. McLin, purchased last week from W. H. Cane for $20,000, will carry Hanover's hopes for its third victory in the "buggy whip" derby

Walper-Williams and Beach-Fitzgerald Split Pro-Amateur Honors

Al Houghton's 68 Wins Sweepstakes

Largest Field of the Season Competes Over Capital Club Course; Sharkey, Brownell Score 68's, But Partners Fail Them.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Leo Walper, Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, and Frank Williams, Washington Golf and Country Club amateur, shared top honors in the pro-amateur event at Capital yesterday with Ralph Beach, Suburban mentor, and Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, as the largest pro-am field of the season competed over the hilly Glen Echo layout.

The winning teams had identical scores of 32, 31—62, while each of the professionals was aided seven shots by their simon-pure partners, Beach and Walper scoring individual 69s.

Al Houghton, old Point Comfort, Va., professional, cracked par by two shots to win the pro sweepstakes with a 68, after an all-morning drive from Newport News, Va., where he finished second in the Virginia Open tournament that ended Sunday.

Tie for Runner-Up.

Houghton and George Borsari, of the host club, and Walper and Fitzgerald, who teamed to gain a share of the runner-up prize, tied with 63s, while Charles Betschler, Hillendale mentor, and a club member, R. Clow, were fifth with a 64. Walper and Fitzgerald and Houghton and Borsari, out in 34, each came home in 29, six under par, to gain the tie. Fitzgerald finished with three straight birdies, while Houghton chipped in from the edge of the final green.

Seven teams tied for the last prize and the amateurs split $3.00 in merchandise seven ways, that left them with a considerable deficit for the day despite scores of 65. The teams were Paul Jamison, Indian Spring assistant pro, making his competitive debut with Buddy Sharkey, the Houghton brothers, Al and Billy, of the Capital Club; Charles Betschler and Johnny Farrell. The latter holed a putt for an eagle on the tenth hole, and with his handicap was three under par for one hole.

Others in the 65 deadlock included Betschler and J. F. O'Hara, Beach and two partners, Reid Scott and Henry Hamp of Hillendale.

Bobby Sharkey and Bobby Brownell, youthful Indian Spring amateurs, each scored 68s, but their partners, the Jamison brothers, Paul and Al, respectively, were off form and only Sharkey was in the winner's circle and that was a tie for last prize. Their scores were unofficial, however, as they did not hole out on all the greens.

Houghton Over on Third.

Houghton was over on the third hole and birdied sixth to turn in 35, even par, but bettered regulation figures by a pair of shots on the back nine with birdies on 12, 16 and 18, while he was over on the fifteenth.

Walper and Beach each missed opportunities to tie Houghton as they tied for second in the sweeps with 69s. Beach was 34—35, while Walper was 37—32, his back nine being the lowest of the day. Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam mentor, was a shot out of the money with a round that included six pars, six birdies and six bogeys. Andy Gibson and Mel Shorey had 72s as 21 pros, largest of the season, turned out for the event.

Walper and Williams were only one under par for the first four holes but went three under on the next four to turn in 31. They started bad with birdies on two of the first three holes and added two more on 15 and 16 for the second 31 and 62. Beach and Fitzgerald started and finished with three consecutive birds to gain six of their eight shots under par. They added subpar holes on nine and ten.

Wee Willie Wilkin, New Redskin, Finally Arrives—All of Him on One Bus

By Lewis F. Atchison.

"Wee Willie" Wilkin (just call me Bill, friend) finally arrived in Washington late yesterday afternoon, after seven scheduled arrivals, an exchange of 30 telegrams, and after boarding two wrong buses and finally ending up in a parlor coach on an entirely different line.

There was no brass band to greet Bill, no ringing of bells, blowing of whistles or any other demonstration near the Redskins' office on Ninth street, merely a sigh of relief from a chorus of gentlemen, footsore and weary from a half dozen trips to the bus terminal—all but the last in vain, waiting for Willie.

Jack Espey, general manager of the professional football champions, ordered a lantern hung in the office window Sunday night extinguished. He also took down a sign tearfully placed in a strategic position in the window which read,

"Willie, please report now. All is forgiven.

Signed, George Marshall and Ray Flaherty."

Bill, his shirt open at the neck revealing a sunburned chest, stepped down from the bus rather gingerly apparently halfway expecting to be arraigned before a firing squad and dispatched on the spot. Prexy George Marshall spotted him first.

"Hey, Willie, where'n blazes have you been?"

"I've been riding buses," Wilkin grinned. "Gosh almighty, more buses than you ever saw."

"That's what you think," said Marshall. "I've counted 2,453 hanging around this terminal. Well, get your stuff and meet the boys here."

"You're travelling light, aren't you?" asked Marshall.

"Well, this is all I brought," Wilie said, "but my folks are shipping my stuff in a trunk." He brought a sweater along in case it got chilly.

Ray Flaherty, the Redskins' coach and discoverer of Wilkin, shook hands with him and introduced him to Harold Donovan, club business manager. Then Willie met the newspaper men and was a little nonplussed at his reception.

"Do you do this every time one of the players comes in," he asked as they shot pictures of him?

Wilkins was equipped with a good alibi for arriving a day late. It seems that his bus broke down on the outskirts of Cleveland. It was a bad clutch and they couldn't repair it or get another bus for 24 hours, so the passengers waited while the mechanics overhauled the clutch. Willie, by the way, thumbed a ride back into Cleveland and visited relatives.

"How did you get on that bus in the first place," Donovan asked. "Your ticket called for the northern route."

"I know," the big fellow said, "but I got the bus going down through Los Angeles and through New Mexico and the Southwest. I'd never seen that country before and it sure is pretty."

Wilkin spent the summer in Mexico toiling in a copper mine as a "powder monkey." These men drill holes in the ore vein, plug them with dynamite, then blast out the ore. It's not particularly tough work, according to Willie, until you have to hang by a fingernail with one hand and work the compressed drill with the other. It's the same kind of drill they've been using on E street to rip up street car tracks.

Willie's broadcast was the first of his life. The announcer described the player as a nice-looking blond, a jolly good fellow, and probably as much of a football player as Flaherty claims he'll be.

The big boy simply stood there and took as much as he could. Then his face turned a fire-wagon red, he dug a bashful toe deep into the carpet and asked:

"Who does he mean, me?"

Wandering Willie Finally Arrives

Custer Wins In Net Play

Bob Custer, of Gallinger Playground, defeated Tom Barbour, of New York Avenue, 6—1, 6—1, yesterday in the only match of importance played in the Department of Playgrounds Tennis Tournament. Wet courts forced postponement of most of the first-round matches. Custer, Western High School star, is one of the favorites and was given little trouble in his first match.

In the only other senior match played, Jim Mulvihill, of Hamilton, national paddle tennis champion, was victorious over Fugitt, of Hoover, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5. All matches are played at Chevy Chase.

The junior tourney matches found Bensinger, of Takoma, defeating Rettrew, of Cooke, 6—0, 6—1, and Katz, of Hamilton, beating Myers, of Palisades, 6—1, 6—1.

The revised schedule for today follows:

Juniors.

At 10 a. m.—Hauser (Columbia Recreation Center) vs. Georgetown representative; Smoot (Twin Oaks) vs. Langdon representative; Goldberg (Happy Hollow) vs. Hauser (Stanton); Blamin (Chevy Chase) vs. Haike (Phillips).

At 1 p. m.—Dunnett (Gallinger) vs. Hoover representative.

At 2 p. m.—Casper (Roosevelt) vs. Hearst representative; Wooten (Noyes) vs. Montrose representative; Bradshaw (Mitchell) vs. Rosedale representative; Tarleton (Garfield) vs. Adler (Raymond).

Seniors.

At 11 a. m.—Muth (Roosevelt) vs. Sandstreet (Stanton); Weatherby (Happy Hollow) vs. Sokol (Burroughs); Worthmiller (Janney) vs. Raymond representative.

At 1 p. m.—Palacos (Columbia Recreation Center) vs. Hearst representative; Turkey Thicket representative vs. Montrose representative; Abel (Georgetown) vs. Hoover representative; Perry (Western Stadium vs. Cooksey (Rosedale).

Battle Royal Men Named

The starting line-up for Thursday night's battle-royal, a co-feature of the weekly wrestling bill at Griffith Stadium, was announced last night by Joe Turner, wholesale dealer in tangled torsos and other bric-a-brac.

The W street promoter will send Mike Mazurki, Ed Kibbons, Thor Johnson, Bibber McCoy, Slim Zimbleman and Ed White into the ring at the same time—and when the whistle blows its every man for himself. A lively scuffle virtually is guaranteed, and ringside patrons will be asked to refrain from joining in, or feeding the boys peanuts during the bout's progress.

Turner has assembled an odd collection of strong-men for the occasion. Mazurki is city bred, hailing from Manhattan College, in New York. Kibbons wrestled on one of the Oklahoma Aggies best teams, and Thor Johnson is a 360-pound Swede. McCoy, Zimblen and White are well upholstered and stand a lot of rough treatment.

Unlike the first mass massacre staged last month, the two survivors will wrestle to a finish as Turner figures a 30-minute time limit handicaps the athletes.

A graduate of that first free-for-all, Paul Boesch, is on the card, meeting Cliff Olson, one of the most unpopular villians unveiled here in recent years. Boesch, a handsome lad, is a huge favorite with the audience and will be a sentimental choice to survive Olson's eye-gouging, strangle-holds and other harmless tricks.

Abe Coleman, coming back after a lengthy absence, faces Emil Dusek in still another headline bout that should stir up some excitement. Coleman is a half-pint package of dynamite and promises to give the younger Dusek an interesting evening.

The show will be staged at Griffith Stadium if weather conditions permit, but will be moved indoors to the Arena if rain threatens.

Rain Hurts Tennis Play

Only 18 of Carded 36 Matches Played.

By the Associated Press.

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 8.—For the third straight day rain interfered with the Eastern Grass Courts Tennis championships at the Westchester Country Club today, forcing officials to revise their schedule for the week in order to complete the tourney on time.

Of 36 macthes scheduled today, only 18 were completed. Five were interrupted before they could be finished.

As far as it went, today's play was featured by the performance of top-seeded Alice Marble in a third-round women's singles match. She whipped Helen Bernhard of New York, one of the better young players, 6-0, 6-1.

The most interesting development in the men's play was the unexpected entry and equally unexpected exit of Ronald Shayes, a member of the British Davis Cup squad. Shayes, just off the Queen Mary, was inserted into the draw against Ernie Sutter of New Orleans, 1937 intercollegiate champion, and bowed out, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

In the men's singles, the two seeded stars who completed their matches, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, No. 3 and Elwood Cooke, No. 5, both won handily. Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, fifth and last in the women's seeding, was eliminated in the second round, going down, 6—4, 6—4, before Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco.

Grant, slipping and skidding on the wet turf, came through with an unimpressive 6—2, 6—4 victory over Robert Prochaska, of Hartford, Conn. Cooke defeated William Murphy, of Chicago, 6—0, 6—4. Wilmer Allison, the veteran Texan, who is seeded fourth, took an 8—6 set from Bill Robertson, of San Marino, Calif., and huffed and puffed to a 6—5 lead in the second before rain cut the match short. Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, trimmed John Shostrum, of Chicago, 6—2, 6—4.

Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., second-seeded woman player, reached the third round by beating Emily Lincoln, of Brookline, Mass., 6—4, 6—4, then receiving a default from Gruchalla, of Omaha. Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, No. 3, opened with a 6—0, 6—0 triumph over Madelon Weldon, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Sammy Will Show 'Em How!

Baugh Will Reveal His Pass Technique on Ellipse Friday

Sammy Will Also Judge Contest for Pass Throwing Championship of Washington at 'Baugh Day.'

Long ones, short ones, high lobs and bullet pitches—every type of forward pass in his extensive repertoire will be thrown by Slingin' Sammy Baugh, champion of them all, for the edification of Washington fans on Friday.

It is the treat arranged for Washington folks by The Washington Post in conjuncion with "Baugh Day" on the Ellipse field in the rear of the White House.

The ace of the Redskins, new addition to The Post's sports staff as a football commentator, will hold a public reception for the fans and the youth of Washington from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. Over a loud-speaking system he will tell of his forward-passing technique.

Champions of 43 of the District's playgrounds, competing this week in a series of trials under the direction of Richard S. Tennyson, will meet in the finals at the Ellipse Baugh will be the judge as the youths—16 years old and under—compete for the title. Each performer will be restricted to two throws from behind a balk line, with both distance and accuracy counting in the final score.

Public Parks officials who are cooperating with The Post in the exhibition, will set up roped-off lanes for the contestants and provide police supervision. The National Training School Band will play.

Baugh will take leave of the Redskins' practice for the day. Appreciative of the manner in which he was received by Washington fans last year when his forward passing helped the Redskins to the national championship, the tall Texan has expressed the desire to meet more intimately the Washington fans who so readily extended their friendship.

'Man Mountain' Quits Politics! 'Too Rough!'

Norcross, Ga., Aug. 8 (AP).—"Man Mountain Dean," wrestler-motion picture actor who yearned to grapple with Georgia's problems as a member of the State Legislature, withdrew today from the Democratic primary because, he said, his opponents got "personal" in their remarks.

"If I stay in politics I'll slug somebody," said Dean, whose real name is Frank S. Leavitt. "Politics is too rough. I can take care of myself in the ring but I guess I'm not so hot on the stump."

Another Golf Marathon, Must Be a Fad!

St. Louis, Aug. 8 (AP).—Chicago's golfing broker, J. Smith Ferebee, did a good day's work for any man last Friday—144 holes of play over the links—but two other Midwesterners plan to make his feat look like a tour around a putting green.

Warren Riepen, St. Joseph, Mo., professional, and Mike Seyfrit, a State's attorney at Carlinville, Ill., have set as their goal 180 miles of golf between dawn and dark.

Riepen intends to start out at 4 a. m. Wednesday on his home course. He expects to shoot every round under 80. Seyfrit said his 180 holes of golf between dawn "some time next week."

Gail Holmes Wins Junior Muny Crown

Scores 83-78, 161, Takes Tourney at East Potomac Course.

Bill Leapley finished in the runner-up role after a one-hole playoff with Bob Brown. Leapley had 80, 83—163 and Brown 81, 82—163, with Leapley winning on the first hole with a par 4 to a five. Harold Kelly and Don Sullivan were each a stroke out of the play-off with 85, 79—164 and 81, 83—164, respectively.

Holmes, who succeeds Bob Morris as champion, had his highest round on the first nine, a 43, then settled down with a 40 and a pair of 39s in the afternoon for a 78, and the winning total by a pair of shots.

Leapley led at the half-way mark with an 80, with Brown, Sullivan and George Graham next with 81s. They all faltered in the afternoon as Holmes finished with one of the three sub-80 rounds of the day. Kelly's 79 and a 78 by Ray Loy, who had a 94 in the morning, were the others.

The contestants played the B and D nines, where the public links championship was played, and the scores were highest in the history of the event.

Patty Berg Paces Field

Fires 7 Under Par 73 to Lead Women's Play.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Miss Patty Berg, gifted young redhead from Minneapolis, fired a blistering 73, seven strokes under women's par and only three above men's figures, in the first 18 holes of the 72-hole derby of the Women's Western Golfers Association at Butterfield Country Club today. It is the longest medal play event for women golfers.

For three years Miss Berg has played sparkling golf in the derby, but not quite good enough to catch Miss Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., who is seeking her fourth consecutive championship in the event.

Slim, dark-haired Miss Miley was off her usual pace today, settling for a par round of 80. Soon after Miss Miley finished, Miss Berg, wearing a brown pair of rain slacks to protect her from a downpour, turned in a 36-37 for her 73, to set a new record for a single round in the derby. She broke her own mark of 74 made in the second round of the 1937 tournament.

Patty Berg, Minneapolis	36	37	—73
Dorothy Traung, San Francisco	39	39	—78
Ellamae Williams, Chicago	40	38	—78

Fed. Svgs. Corp Reports Profit Of $5,000,000

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Closing of its fiscal year 1937-1938 is announced by General Manager Nugent Fallon of the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation, who reports a net income for the period, after deducting all expenses, of nearly $5,000,000, and total assets of $114,077,882.51. At the end of this period, on June 30, the corporation had insured investment share accounts of 2,026 thrift and home finance institutions, with total assets of $2,000,000,000, to the extent of $5,000 for each investor.

Mr. Fallon's statement showed that expenses of the corporation during the last fiscal year were $192,848.09, or less than 4 per cent of its net earnings. The corporation earned $3,241,021.79 from income on its investment in Government or Government-guaranteed securities. After necessary bookkeeping adjustments, total net earnings of the corporation for the fiscal year were placed at $4,992,186.47.

Indicative of the financial condition of the insured associations, the corporation, although it insures accounts of institutions with assets of more than $2,000,000,000, paid out only $102,808.75 during the fiscal year to salvage endangered clients. Founded four years ago with an initial capital stock of $100,000,000, the corporation has increased its assets during this period by more than $14,000,000.

Bankers Going to Houston.

Headed by President Robert V. Fleming, of Riggs National Bank and a past president of the organization, numerous local banking executives will attend the annual convention of the American Bankers Association at Houston, Tex., November 14-17. The local delegation will include Vice President and Cashier George O. Vass, Riggs National Bank; Vice President and Cashier Wilmer J. Waller, Hamilton National Bank; Secretary Frederick P. H. Siddons, American Security & Trust Co., a member of the nominating committee of the national association representing the District of Columbia; Executive Vice President and Cashier Thomas J. Groom, Bank of Commerce & Savings; President Francis G. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank, a member of the executive committee of the State bank division of the national association; President Lanier P. McLachlen, McLachlen Banking Corporation; President John A. Reilly, Second National Bank, and Comptroller Arthur J. Linn, Hamilton National Bank, and president of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers.

Tourist Travel Gains.

That Washington already is feeling the effect of better business sentiment and improved business generally over the country through a substantial increase in tourist travel as compared with a month ago, is reflected by the records of the touring bureau of the Keystone Automobile Club.

According to the club's experts, the volume of tourist travel into the National Capital now is definitely exceeding earlier expectations, and the reason they assign is "the greaer confidence and optimism felt by prospective travelers as the businesss situation has given unmistakable evidence of clearing up."

"Should the business outlook continue to trend upward," the club's touring authorities stated, "there is every reason to believe, on the basis of present travel volume, that the fall influx of tourists into Washingon will approach peak record proportions. Certainly at present that is the indication."

Bache Gold Study.

The major influence affecting the demand for gold and for gold shares at the moment appears to be the uncertainty regarding the whole international economic and political outlook. Apprehension of war is probably one of the chief elements causing the flight to gold to London, even though the status of the metal in the event of an actual outbreak of hostilities between major nations, is doubtful, according to a study of the gold situation by J. S. Bache & Co., contained in its current issue of "Comparative Values."

Internal political disturbances, exaggerated efforts for attainment of national self-sufficiency, distortion of normal channels of trade, and unbalanced budgets, the firm states, are among other elements contributing to the anxiety.

Personal Mention.

President Willard G. Barker of the Morris Plan Bank of Washington will spend his vacation at his summer home on South River, in Anne Arundel County.

Trust Officer W. V. Simmons, of Liberty National Bank, has been vacationing at his farm near Ellicott City, Md.

Secretary and Treasurer Archibald McLachlen, of McLachlen Banking Corporation, will spend his vacation at Hot Springs, Va.

President Floyd E. Davis, of Lincoln National Bank, is sojourning at his summer home, Nomini, Va.

Brookmire Sees Auto Recovery

New York, Aug. 8.—Nowhere in the field of economic statistics does it appear possible to receive such a misleading impression as from the current figures of auto production, according to the current Brookmire Forecaster, for actually the outlook is about as favorable as the present figures appear unfavorable.

The industry has rarely been closer to a shutdown at this season of the year; but as the trend of the cycle turns upward, the sequence to be expected in the motor industry, according to Brookmire, is that:

1. Retail sales of autos will mount more than people's incomes, especially as confidence returns;

2. Production of autos will have to be stepped up more than retail sales in order to restock dealers;

3. Purchases of materials and parts will have to be increased more than production in order to rebuild depleted manufacturers' inventories.

Shell Oil Adopts Broad Pension Plan

St. Louis, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Shell Petroleum and Pipe Line Corporations announced today the adoption of a retirement pension plan for its 27,500 employes in the United States and Canada.

Upon retirement, an employe will receive a pension equal to 40 per cent of his annual wage during the previous five years. Normal retirement ages will be 60 for men and 55 for women, although retirement at these ages will not be compulsory, the companies pointed out. Disability pensions for employes under 50 will be 62½ per cent of the full pensions, it was announced.

Corn Leads Grain Slump To 5-Year Lows

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Downward plunges smashed five-year bottom price records anew in all grains today, tumbling corn 3⅛ cents lower and wheat and rye about 2½ cents.

A general selling movement by owners of grain futures of every kind took place, attributed largely to lack of confidence on the part of speculative buyers. Accelerating the sweep of values to lower levels was automatic execution of many stop-loss orders from traders unable or unwilling to put up additional funds as security for brokers.

Acting as a specially disturbing influence in the corn trade were reports indicating that corn production this season would be large enough to call for a vote on a Government quota marketing system in the United States.

Leading the wholesale upset of values, Chicago corn futures closed 2¼-3 cents lower compared to Saturday's finish, September 50-50⅛, December 48¼-48¾ with wheat 2-2½ cents down, September 62⅜-62⅞. December 64½-64⅝, rye showing 2¾-2⅞ drop, oats ½-⅝ off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 30 cents.

Business Loans Fall $4,000,000 in Week

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks increased slightly at inland centers but decreased elsewhere in the week ended August 3.

Banks in 101 leading cities reported that their aggregate business loans decreased $4,000,000 to $3,865,000,000. New York City banks reduced their business loans $7,000,000 but increases of $3,000,000 in the St. Louis district and $1,000,000 each in the Cleveland, Richmond and Kansas City districts were also reported.

Moderate Decline in Stocks Follows Break in Leading Commodities.

New York, Aug. 8.—A moderate decline in security values today put an end to the rally which closed last week and financial markets were far more interested in the sharp breaks in leading commodities than in the mild gyrations of stocks. All grains were smashed down to new five-year lows, corn particularly giving a poor performance on the possibility that this year's crop will be large enough to require a vote on a Government quota marketing system for this staple. Cotton closed off 15 to 20 points and was even lower at times when the Government crop estimate, the first for the season, indicated a crop about 750,000 bales above the average indicated by private estimates.

Compared with the action of these important commodities, the performance of the stock market was mild indeed. Profit taking sales were in evidence at the opening gong and a selling move which began in the steels quickly spread to the motors and then to the balance of the list. At no time was the pressure severe and the bullish traders were pleased that the day's turnover fell below the million-share mark. The 913,930 share total supplied evidence that there has been no material change in Wall street sentiment over the week-end. The composite average for stocks declined .32 point, with all groups contributing to the loss and the heaviest losses sustained by the steels.

Radio, the day's most active stock, was one of a few favorites to close with a plus sign. The option agreement, whereby Atlas Corporation could have purchased part of Radio's holdings of R. K. O., has been allowed to expire. General Motors came back to close up a small fraction, being aided by the JJuly report of sales, which showed a contra-seasonal increase. Chrysler was of 1¾ and fractional declines were shown by Yellow Truck and Greyhound. Tire stocks also moved lower with the general trend.

Steels Lower.

Softness of the steel shares reflected profit taking and uncertainity of what is going to be done with the wage problem faced by this industry. The weekly estimate of the American Iron & Steel Institute showed little change in operations, the rate being placed at 39.4 per cent of capacity for this week against 39.8 per cent a week ago. This was in line with expectations, however, and the demand for steel is continuing its slow upward trend. United States Steel and Bethlehem were off about 1½ points each while National and Republic were down fractions.

Word from abroad that Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, in a press interview, expressed the belief that many railroad bonds are far too low did not revive the market for the carrier obligations. That they were too low two months ago is apparent by the higher valuation which the market has placed on them, but investors are being asked now to relieve two important carriers of part of their fixed charges.

Lehigh Valley bonds sank 2½ to 5⅝ points on that road's announcement of a proposal to bondholders that they agree to a postponement of payment of three-quarters of the road's interest, and to the extension of some bank loans and mortgages.

Rail stocks were lower with the balance of the market, but there were few large losses. Union Pacific went ahead 2⅛ points and D. & H. was active and higher. Central, B. & O. and Pennsylvania, as well as most of the other carriers showed small declines, and Atchison was off 1¼ and C. & O. a point.

Treasury Bonds Firm.

While new high ground for the year was reached and held by some isolated issues, the general trend in bond prices on the stock exchange today was somewhat easier outside the Treasury group. Trading was in moderate volume, somewhat under the turnover of most days last week.

In the averages the rail group, utilities and industrials each showed declines with high grade rails suffering the largest drop. Treasurys were almost uniformly higher with old highs equaled or bettered in a number of issues. Mixed movements appeared in foreign obligations, Central and South American issues tending to decline in several instances. German bonds were steady to firm, the Japanese issues showed a number of losses.

Domestic rail issues attracted considerable attention. Interest readjustment proposals apparently affected Lehigh Valley and Baltimore & Ohio loans adversely, particularly Lehigh, where declines ranging up to more than 5 points were shown. Also in the column of declines were issues of the New York Central and Southern Pacific. In contrast to these changes, good gains appeared in Alleghany Corporation, probably on the advance in Chesapeake Corporation and C. & O. stocks. Delaware & Hudson 4s also advanced with the stock to a new high for the year.

Some industrials also moved to new highs, notably Bethlehem Steel 3¾s, which were up while the other two issues traded were down. U. S. Steel debentures also broke into new high ground. Oil bonds showed gains in such issues as Texas Corporation 3½s and Union Oil of California, the latter in small volume.

Utilities were without many features, although Telephone 3⅛s of '61 sold at a new high. Interborough bonds sol ddown while B. M. T.s" were firm.

Crop Estimate Topples Cotton $1.70 Per Bale

Trade Buying Near Close Causes Partial Recoveries.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 8.—Cotton lost up to $1.70 a bale today under heavy liquidation promoted by the Government estimate for a cotton crop of 11,988,000 bales. There was enough trade buying to cause partial recoveries and the market closed 12 to 20 points net lower. December, which had sold off from 8.54 to 8.23, closed at 8.37.

The crop figure was about 700,000 bales above average trade expectations and with the crop in excess of apparent world consuming requirements, fears developed that the present record supplies of 13,400,000 bales of old crop cotton carried into the new season would increase further.

Under domestic and foreign liquidation prices at one time showed net losses of 25 to 34 points. These levels carried the market below a price at which it is expected a Government cotton loan would become mandatory and more trade buying and covering developed on a belief a loan would support prices. Final quotations were 11 to 14 points above the lows.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil responded with declines of 12 to 16 points to the cotton crop estimate by the Government today for production of 11,988,000 bales. General weakness of all important allied markets brought in liquidation but partial rallies on covering developed and at the close the market was 5 to 11 points net lower. Sales were 353 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; September closed 8.30, October 8.25, December 8.35, January 8.25, March 8.28.

Smallest Crop Since 1935.

The Federal Crop Reporting Board forecast yesterday an 11,988,000 bale cotton crop for 1938, an estimate 6,958,000 bales below last year's production and smaller than any crop since 1935. Price reaction will be determine whether loans will be mandatory under the new farm act.

A loan program is required to be established under the law if the average price on the principal markets falls below 52 per cent of parity, or about 8.27 cents a pound on the basis of the present parity figure of 15.9 cents a pound.

The estimate was based on the condition of the crop August 1, which was 78.0 per cent of a normal, and on the area in cultivation July 1, less the ten-year average abandonment, which was estimated at 26,347,000 acres.

The condition of the crop indicates an acre yield of 217.9 pounds, compared with 266.9 pounds last year, which was a record yield, and 179.8 pounds, the 1927-36 average. The crop totaled 18,946,000 bales last year, a record production, while the average for the ten years, 1927-36, was 13,201,000 bales. The condition of the crop August 1 compares with 81 per cent of a normal a year ago and 60 per cent, the ten-year average.

Insurance Stocks At Year's High

New York, Aug. 8.—Insurance stocks in the New York City market continued to show small gains during the past week, reaching a new high for the year at the close, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on August 5 totaled $592,183,000 (the new high), compared with $589,627,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $2,556,000, or 0.43 per cent.

New York City bank stocks also registered gains during the past week. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues on August 5 was $1,367,196,000 compared with $1,360,562,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $6,634,000, or 0.49 per cent.

General Motors Sales Decline in July

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States in July totaled 78,758 units, compared with 76,071 in June and 163,811 in July last year.

Sales to dealers in the United States were 61,826 in July, against 72,596 in June and 187,869 in July a year ago. Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada plus overseas shipments were 90,030 units in July, against 101,908 in June and 226,681 in July 1937.

Steel Operations Dip to 39.4 Per Cent

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will drop .4 of one point to 39.4 per cent of capacity, compared with 39.8 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 32.3 per cent of capacity while a year ago they were 84.6 per cent.

Tydings' Firm Hit for Pushing Price Act Cases

Hungerford Attacks Policy Used by Senator's Law Partner.

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—Arthur E. Hungerford, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, said today in a statement the law firm of Senator Millard E. Tydings is being employed to file court charges under the Miller-Tydings price-fixing act.

"This is being done under the Maryland law which makes the Tydings act operate in this State," to raise his prices to the figure set he will be held in contempt of court he said. "Should a druggist refuse and probably go to jail.

"Herbert Levy, Tydings' law partner is responsible for this court action. The necessary legal papers were filed on the stationery of the Tydings law firm, Tydings, Sauerwein, Levy and Archer. This is not a charge. It is a fact. It is a matter of court record.

"Just a few days ago, acting for a great corporation, Tydings' law firm haled a druggist to the Circuit Court to prevent him selling a baby food for a few cents less than the price set by the manufacturers.

"The druggist was selling the food so necessary for babies for 57 cents a pound. Through this court action by Senator Tydings' law partner the druggist is now compelled to sell it for at least 63 cents a pound or go to jail.

"Action was brought on four articles of baby diet but by the time the judge signed the injunction at least a half page of closely typewritten articles were included.

"Tydings' law partner is now haling druggists into court to force prices up. He does not deny being responsible for the passage of the bill by the Maryland Legislature. He does deny he got a fee for his legislative efforts for one of the lobbying groups.

"Are the Tydings law firm or partners working free in hauling these druggists and others to court?"

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 8.—Defense of Senator Millard Tydings' attitude toward rural electrification was issued from Tydings headquarters here tonight in the form of a statement from Wendell M. Reed, president of the Tri-County Co-operative Association, Inc., of La Plata, Md.

The statement was prompted by a telegraphic inquiry from a La Plata banker to John M. Carmody, Rural Electrification administrator, on Tydings' stand toward operations of that agency:

Reed's statement said:

"I am amazed that any resident of Maryland should have to ask for information concerning Senator Tydings' attitude toward rural electrification in our State. Mr. Carmody, I know, can make only one reply to such a query, but I wish to add my testimony in recognition of the appreciation which I, and everyone else who knows the facts, feel for Senator Tydings' efforts in behalf of rural electrification in our community.

"Our association had sought a loan from the Rural Electrification Administration for electrification of 165 miles of rural lines to serve some 600 farm homes in Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys counties.

The project was held up after allocation of funds had first been granted to us and a committee of men interested in the plan, including myself, called on Senator Tydings in Washington. He promised to take the matter up for us with the Rural Electrification Administration and on May 29 of last year, Senator Tydings telegraphed me that a loan contract in the amount of $165,000 with the Southern Maryland Tri-County Co-operative Association, Inc., had just been signed by the Rural Electrification Administrator. Since Senator Tydings interested himself in our project, our affairs with the Government have moved along smoothly and the construction of our transmission lines, together with a generating plant to serve them, is at last under way."

Elks Convene, To Vote Today At Hagerstown

Gayant, Hladky Given Edge in Fraternal Contest for President.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 8.—Fourteen hundred Elks put in a full day and night on the opening day of the eighteenth convention of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia Elks Association. This number had registered tonight and another thousand are expected to arrive during the night and tomorrow morning.

They attended the opening session of the convention in the morning, heard a number of addresses, witnessed a swimming contest at the municipal pool in the afternoon, heard the Junior Y. M. C. A. Band of Hagerstown in a concert this evening in the public square and then attended athletic events in the convention hall at the Hagerstown Fair Grounds tonight.

While these numerous social activities were going on a little group of delegates from the 12 lodges in the association were busy electioneering for their favorites for the new president of the association, who will be elected tomorrow morning.

Two Cities Seek 1939 Session.

The contest for president on the eve of nominaions apparently had narrowed down to two candidates, Philip U. Gayaut, of Washington, and Frank Hladky, of Annapolis, with the former exalted ruler of the District lodge apparently having an edge in the pre-election discussions.

Crisfield and Annapolis already have made bids for the 1939 convention, with the Eastern Shore town favored.

A number of candidates for State and Sixth District offices in the September primaries were present and addressed the convention today. They included U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, former Judge William C. Walsh, of Cumberland, and William D. Byron, of Williamsport, seeking the Democratic Congressional nomination.

The ideals of Elkdom was the subject of Jackson's talk, while Tydings talked on the values of true friendship.

Welcomed by Mayor.

Mayor W. Lee Elgin welcomed the Elks' Association to Hagerstown and presented a large wooden key to the convention.

Among those introduced at the meeting were Dr. Robert S. Barrett, Alexandria, Va., grand treasurer of the Elks, and Rush D. Holland, Washington, past grand exalted ruler.

The board of trustees of the association, headed by Gayaut, chairman, will receive tomorrow nominations for the annual award for distinguished service by lodges in the association.

Pardon Is Sought For Driver of Car Killing Two Men

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—An active effort is being continued to obtain a pardon for Thomas G. (Tom) Scully, young Winchester attorney who entered the penitentiary March 3, 1937, to serve sentences for accidentally killing two men with his automobile near Winchester Christmas night of 1936.

The men, Frederick M. Affleck and Homer Hook, were fatally injured when Scully's machine plowed into a group which was placing the body of Dewey Newlin in an ambulance. Newlin, a pedestrian, had been killed in another accident about an hour before on the Marsburg pike, two miles north of Winchester.

Roosevelt to See Naval Air Station At Pensacola Today

Aboard U. S. S. Houston, Aug. 8 (AP).—(Via Naval radio)—President Roosevelt tonight was nearing the end of his vacation cruise aboard the cruiser Houston.

The Houston late today had less than 250 miles to run before completing its 5,888-mile voyage, which the President started on July 16 and which will end early tomorrow afternoon at Pensacola, Fla.

Mr. Roosevelt is scheduled to speak Thursday at Athens, Ga., where he will receive an honorary degree from the University of Georgia, and at Barnesville, Ga., where he will dedicate a rural electrification project.

He intends to inspect the Naval air station at Pensacola, and later board a train, arriving in Warm Springs, Ga., Wednesday. After a day there, he will proceed to Washington by way of Athens and Barnesville. He expects to arrive in Washington Friday forenoon.

Knee Injury Keeps Lehman at Home

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—A torn cartilage in the right knee, suffered as he prepared for a swim at his summer residence in Harrison Saturday, kept Gov. Lehman indoors today.

Walter T. Brown, the Governor's secretary, said the injury was "painful but not serious," but necessitated placing the knee in a cast.

Gov. Lehman fell as he approached the swimming pool. He probably will be confined to his summer home for a week or ten days, Brown said.

Price to Confer Here On State PWA Projects

Richmond, Va., Aug 8 (AP).—Gov. Price said today he would go to Washington tomorrow to confer with PWA authorities on several Virginia projects.

Among those he will discuss is the application for $818,000 to aid in construction of the proposed new State library building. If the PWA funds are obtained, a structure worth almost $2,000,000 may be erected.

The application went through the Atlanta regional office and now is pending in Washington.

Strike-Breaker Tortured, Slain At Baltimore

500 Sailors Can't Identify Body Found in Bay; Bartender Does.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 8.—The body of a burly man who had apparently been tortured before being bound and dumped into the harbor, was identified tentatively today as that of "Big Hippo," a seaman who worked occasionally as a strike-breaker.

Police said the identification was made by a waterfront bartender, Jack Eastman, jr., who, they said, knew thousands of seamen by name. They said Eastman told them the man worked as a strikebreaker on several occasions.

Fingerprints Sent to F. B. I.

Police immediately began a round-up of waterfront men who might have known "Big Hippo," in an effort to confirm the identification.

In the meantime, Assistant State's Attorney Douglas N. Sgarretts, who had been assigned to investigate the finding of two sticks of dynamite in the Montebello water tunnel where ten men were killed in a premature blast, had fingerprints taken from the body. They were sent to Washington for checking with the Fuderal Bureau of Investigation.

One clue which police deemed important was uncovered late today. They said a Polish woman who could not speak English told them through a translator she had seen two men carrying a third toward the waterfront yesterday near where the body was found. She said it was about 3 a. m. The watch found in the dead man's pocket had stopped at 3:05.

Nearly 500 seamen were asked to view the body this afternoon, but none could identify it. Dr. Howard Maldeis, post mortem physician, performed the autopsy. He said it revealed no water in the lungs.

Police said the man's face and chest had been burned as if by acid. Laundry marks of his shirt had been removed, they said.

Protests Hold Up Plans for $40,000 Building at Laurel

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Laurel, Md., Aug. 8.—Protests of three leading citizens at a special meeting of the mayor and city council tonight temporarily halted plans for the construction of a new municipal building that would cost the city $40,000.

It was decided the work will be held in abeyance until a mass meeting at the Laurel State Armory on August 16, when all details of the project will be explained. A petition will then be circulated to determine whether or not residents of Laurel want the proposed structure.

Cost of the building received severe criticism at tonight's meeting. According to present plans, labor would be supplied by the WPA, but the city would be obliged to furnish materials at an estimated cost of $40,000. An option already has been taken for a lot on Main street between Fourth and Fifth.

The citizens' protest was delivered by John F. Curtin, past commander of the American Legion; Capt. Julian B. Anderson, former commanding officer of Headquarters Company, National Guard, and John Howard Hopkins.

Boy Burglar Held in Attack On U. Va. Coed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug 8.—A 19-year-old Charlotte (N. C.) youth was held here tonight, charged with an attempted attack on a University of Virginia summer school coed.

According to Chief of Police Maurice M. Greaver, the youth gave his name as James Spurling and admitted the attempted assault as well as a series of housebreakings here during the past two weeks.

Spurling was arrested early today, police said, after threatening L. E. Holmes, colored, with a gun at the Alpha Chi Sigma Fraternity house near the university grounds. Chief Greaver said the youth admitted attacking the young woman when she awakened to find him ransacking her room.

Choked the Girl.

The prisoner, according to Detective Sergeant J. E. Adams, said he choked the summer student into unconsciousness, drew his gun and was preparing to kill her when voices in other parts of the house frightened him away. He vaulted through an open window and escaped, Spurling was quoted as saying.

The intended victim is the daughter of the director of a firm manufacturing explosives. She has been a stuednt at the University summer school only a few days, having been a student at an exclusive women's college where she will be graduated next year.

An intensive, two-week search for the young woman's attacker resulted in Spurling's arrest by Lieut. W. H. Mayo and Patrolman R. M. Buck. His apprehension, said Chief Greaver, solves numerous housebreakings and thefts which have terrorized this section for several days.

Mudd May Enter Congress Fight

La Plata, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—F. DeSales Mudd, 28, La Plata attorney, said today he was considering and was being urged to seek the Republican nomination for the Fifth District Congressional seat but had not decided upon his course.

He is a nephew of Sidney E. Mudd, former Congressman for the Fifth District, and is associated with his father in the practice of law.

Mudd said he had been urged by the State Central Committee and by Gov. Nice to enter the race. There is no entry as yet in the Republican race for the nomination to oppose Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, Democratic incumbent.

Youth Confesses Murdering Girl

Pryor, Okla., Aug. 8 (AP).—A 17-year-old son of a farm widow, Wirt Parr, pleaded guilty today to the murder of comely Alma Manning, 19. At his arraignment before Peace Justice W. F. Graham Parr waived preliminary hearing. He was held without bond for district court trial.

Parr was brought here from nearby Claremore where he had been held for safe keeping. He talked freely of last Saturday when, the State charges, he clubbed the girl, burned her body on a pyre of underbrush and then dragged the charred form 400 yards and hid it in another clump of brush.

Charlottesville Theater Opening Set Thursday

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 8.—With the opening Thursday of the University Theater, Charlottesville will have four moving picture houses, all operated under the same management, Dominion Theaters, Inc.

The new theater is located on West Main street, within two blocks of the main entrance to the grounds and buildings of the University of Virginia. The building is 160 by 45 feet and was erected by the Jefferson-Lafayette Corporation at a cost of $85,000. It has a seating capacity of 650 and a complete stage for all types of stage attractions.

Smith Named Judge.

Richmond, Va., Aug 8 (AP).—Gov. Price today appointed Herbert G. Smith, Commonwealth's attorney of Newport News, as judge of the Corporation Court of that city to succeed Judge T. J. Barham. Judge Barham has resigned as of September 1.

Czech Nazi Slain In Beer Hall Fight

Berlin, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—A member of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German minority, Wenzel Baierle, was attacked and killed in the Czech town of Galserwald by a group of Communists and Socialists, the D. N. B. official German news agency, reported tonight.

The D. N. B., quoting the newspaper Neuesten Nachrichten, of Dresden, said Baierle was killed after an argument in a Glaserwald beer hall.

3 Get Reserve Posts.

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Navy Department announced appointment of the following Virginians as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve: Teddy L. Hansen, of Arlington; John A. Williamson, of Norfolk, and George E. Anner, of Williamsburg.

O'Conor Demands Jackson Explain Stand on Taxation

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor tonight challenged Mayor Howard W. Jackson, a rival for the Democratic nomination for Governor, to state his position on taxation, the judiciary and the Senate race.

Speaking at a rally in the Masonic Hall, where Mayor Elgin presided, O'Conor said he previously had outlined his stand on these three questions and had invited Jackson to discuss them.

"But to date he has not dared to do so," O'Conor added.

As to taxation, O'Conor said he had suggested a graduated income tax, abolition of the securities tax and repeal of several others.

"Mr. Jackson," he asked, "what tax program do you propose?"

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 8.—The stock market closed steady today as traders eyed favorably the Saturday upturn in Wall Street. International issues edged forward to around parity levels. Coppers were in demand and Kaffirs held idly steady. Oils and rubbers were higher. The gilt edge section was firm. Industrials were mostly neglected.

Paris—A tinge of irregularity was evident in dealings in the bourse today. International shares moved forward. Royal Dutch gained 23 francs and Suez Canal 200. Rentes closed 15 centimes lower to 180 up.

Liverpool—Wheat futures eased after an early start forward and ended ¼d to ⅞d lower today, following reports of large clearance of American winter wheat to Liverpool and a substantial increase in stocks afloat.

Life's Darkest Moment

Bob Burns Says—

It's really surprisin' how quick people are to help you when you come right out and tell 'em your troubles. My Uncle Mink, the contractor, would do anything in the world for a person when he understood his problem. I remember the time he was buildin' a house for young Jess Wilson.

Jess came to him and says, "Can you tell me when my house is going to be finished, Mink? You see, I've arranged to be married as soon as the house is complete." And Uncle Mink says, "Now, don't worry, son, you can depend on me and all my men. We'll string this job out just as long as we can!"

Efforts to End Communism in C. I. O. Gaining

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—The revolt in C. I. O. unions against Communist laedership widened and its lines became somewhat clearer today, as last Saturday's purge of alleged Communist conspirators among the international officers of the United Automobile Workers was followed today by a revolt of five West Coast C. I. O. unions against the regional leadership of Harry Bridges on the issue of Communist activity.

Voicing approval of the action of U. A. W. locals in California who were reported today to have joined the International Ladies Garment Workers, the United Rubber Workers, the Los Angeles Garment Workers and the United Shoe Workers in the revolt against Bridges, Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W., this afternoon said, "Bridges can go back to Australia so far as I am concerned and not take away from the efficiency of the U. A. W. We built the U. A. W. from a membership of 27,000 to 400,000 without any help from Bridges. I've told him to keep his hands of the U. A. W."

Bridges has been the outstanding figure in the C. I. O.'s organizational drives in the open shop cities of the Pacific Coast, and following his rise to prominence as a labor leader and because he is a native of Australia, efforts have been made to obtain his deportation by the immigration authorities as an undesirable alien.

Irvan Carey, West Coast director of the U. A. W. and a member of the union's executive board, was sitting beside Martin in today's press conference, and when Bridges' name was mentioned, Carey remarked "If Bridges would take his damn nose out of our locals, we'd have no trouble out there." Carey said that U. A. W. had approximately 10,000 members in West Coast automobile and air craft plants.

San Francisco, Aug. 8 (AP).—A rift in the ranks of 70,000 C. I. O. members on the West Coast was belittled by Director Harry Bridges today as the work of "a few conspiring officials" in Los Angeles.

Bridges declared the unions seceding yesterday from his control—Ladies' Garment Workers, Auto Workers, Rubber Workers and Shoe Workers—represented not more than 6,000 workers.

The dissenters charged him with bringing the council under communist control and maintaining this control by "fraud and the votes of 'paper' locals."

Maritime Board Denies Carload Textile Rates

The Maritime Commission announced yesterday it had dismissed a complaint against the American-Hawaiiian Steamship Co., filed by Ames, Harris, Neville Co., which alleged that the any-quantity rate on cotton piece goods from Atlantic and Gulf ports to Pacific ports was unreasonable.

The commission said that where the prevailing shipping quantity was small "any quantity rates rest upon sound public policy, counteracting a monopolistic tendency by powerful competitors."

The complainant company, which ships cotton goods in large lots, had contended for a carload rate.

Employe of Md. Reform School Suspended in Beating of Boy, 14

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 8.—Andrew Beckwith, a cottage master at the Cheltenham School for Boys, the State's reform school for colored, was suspended today after charges were filed against him by Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones.

The charges were based on merit system rules which give as cause for dismissal "wantonly offensive" conduct by an employe toward a ward of the State.

Jones acted after his report to Gov. Nice Saturday that Beckwith beat Walter Thomas, 14, with a padlock when the boy was held in a cell for four days on suspicion of stealing three cigars. John Beckwith, a brother, was also accused in the report of flogging the boy with a rubber hose.

The report termed the treatment "sadistic and brutal." Benjamin B. Sunderland, superintendent of the reform school, said "none of the statements were true."

Gov. Nice said a trial before the State employment commissioner was the proper procedure and he declined to make any further statement.

Oriental Scourge Feared Spreading In Michigan Area

Detroit, Aug. 8 (AP).—Health officials mobilized the resources of science today to prevent the spread of "shiga dysentery," a virulent Oriental disease which has taken at least six lives in Michigan.

Study of cultures taken from the body of a child who died Sunday while visiting in Detroit was awaited to determine whether she was a seventh victim.

At Owosso, Mich., where the six other deaths occurred, Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, State health commissioner, said 75 persons were suffering from various forms of dysentery and 35 of them had some symptoms of "shiga," the most severe of all types of the disease. He said the diagnosis of those 35 cases was not complete.

Allies' War Medal Taboo For Italian Veterans

Rome, Aug. 8 (AP).—Italy severed one of her few remaining symbolical links with her World War allies today. A decree was published excluding the Inter-Allied medal commemorating the great war from among the list of 32 decorations which military men may wear.

Vienna, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—It was learned today that Rudolf Laidler, prominent throat specialist and university professor, committed suicide last Saturday. The reason was not learned.

Lindberghs Spent Night in Paris as 2 Nations Worried

Reading, England, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here this afternoon in their orange and black monoplane after spending the night quietly in Paris while airport officials of two countries anxiously sought them.

Lindbergh left his new Illiec Island home off the Brittany coast Sunday with Mrs. Lindbergh for a visit to London. He took off from an airport on the mainland near the island and made a quick landing, described in some reports as a forced one, at Bleville Airport near Le Havre.

There was something wrong with the plane's motor and the mechanic at Bleville Airdrome was unable to repair it. Lindbergh, growing impatient, did the job himself and the Lindberghs then took off.

Early today it was revealed Lindbergh had landed at Le Bourget Airport outside Paris in a heavy rain, bringing his plane down on the same field where he landed on his solo transatlantic flight 11 years ago.

Services Set Today For Samuel Murphy

Funeral services for Samuel E. Murphy, 73, Anacostia business man and Navy Yard employe, who died Sunday at Providence Hospital, will be held at his home, 1448 Minnesota avenue southeast, today at 2 p. m., the Rev. John E. Fort, pastor of Anacostia Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Murphy was a native of Washington and was in business for himself as an ice, wood and coal dealer 27 years before entering Government service at the Navy Yard. He retired in 1934 after 15 years service.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Cole Murphy; two sons, William E. and Norman H. Murphy, and four daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Koontz, Mrs. Edith Taylor, Mrs. Evelyn Collins and Mrs. Gladys Gray.

Requiem Set Today For Miss Anne Ryan

Funeral services for Miss Anne Elizabeth Ryan, 26, who died Saturday at her home, 2722 Connecticut avenue northwest, will be held today with requeim mass at 9 a. m. at St. Thomas' Apostolic Church, celebrated by the Rev. Joseph Moran, pastor. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Born in Washington, Miss Ryan was the daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Ryan. She was a graduate of St. Patrick's Academy.

Mexican Troops Slay Cedillo's Former Aide

Mexico City, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Adelaido Barron, rebel leader and alleged commander of former Gen. Saturnino Cedillo's personal bodyguard, was killed Saturday at Tortugas, San Luis Potosi, by Federal Cavalrymen who were pursuing remnants of Cedillo's revolutionary forces, the War Department announced tonight. The announcement said Barron had committed depredations near where he was slain.

Roper, Home, Refuses Third Term Comment

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Congressional elections this year were described today by Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, as "a weather vane for the leadership of 1940."

The Cabinet member and Mrs. Roper arrived from Europe on the liner Queen Mary. He declined to comment on the prospect of a third term for President Roosevelt.

"That is a question for which at this time you could not expect to get an answer," Roper said. "A great many things can happen between now and 1940. We generally study the results of intermediary elections. Th Congressional elections make some men and destroy others. They act as a weather vane for the leadership of 1940."

Nice Will Review Gold Cup Race at Capital Regatta

Gov. Harry W. Nice, of Maryland will review the $10,000 gold cup race in the President's Cup Regatta, Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the general arrangements committee, told the Fo'casle Club luncheon yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel. Lodge had just returned from the Miles City, Md., regatta, where Dr. G. Bache Gill, regatta vice chairman, won a trophy in the cruiser chance race.

Dorothy Parker, "Miss Washington of 1938," was introduced at the luncheon. She was accompanied by her mother and Nadine Petrey, runner-up in the beauty contest at which Miss Parker was chosen to represent the Capital at the Atlantic City beauty pageant.

Fred Huber, vice chairman of the regatta carnival committee, told the club many State societies would be represented by floats in the parade in connection with the carnival the night of September 23. He said the Wyoming State Society would have a float of cowboys riding bucking horses, New York would enter a float descriptive of the World Fair and the Florida Society would display palm trees, oranges and grapefruit.

Flames Damage Streamlined Car; Passengers Safe

I. E. McDaniel, 36, motorman of one of the Capital Transit Company's streamlined Friendship Heights cars, was startled as the car gliding by the Peace Monument last night when one of his passengers shouted, "Hey, there's smoke back here."

McDaniel turned around and saw smoke pouring from the back seat of the trolley. He headed for Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, where a fire extinguisher post is located. Smoke rolled from the rear windows; a tongue of flame shot up; fire apparatus arrived, and within a few minutes the blaze was out. None of the half dozen passengers was hurt, but the car suffered considerable damage.

Woman Is Seriously Ill From Sedative Overdose

Miss Julia Hutton, 35, of 1919 Biltmore street northwest, was in serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night after taking an overdose of sleeping tablets. She was found in a room she had rented in a downtown hotel.

Bandit Pair Gets $200 In Florida Ave. Store

B. T. Finkelstein, 1002 Florida avenue northeast, was held up at gunpoint in a grocery store at that address last night by two colored men who escaped with $200.

Finkelstein told police he was ordered to lie on the floor behind the counter while the robbers rifled the cash register. The gunmen escaped in a car.

Japanese Search Yields No Trace of Clipper

Tokyo, Aug. 8 (AP).—The steamer Canberra Maru was reported today to have reached Douglas Reef and found no trace of the Hawaii Clipper which disappeared July 28 while flying from Guam to Manila.

Surplus Board to Buy Canned Juice for Needy

An official of the Agriculture Department said yesterday the Surplus Commodities Corporation probably would issue orders Wednesday for the purchase of "large quantities" of canned grapefruit juice in Florida, Texas, Arizona and California.

The purchase would be made to bolster the market price of the citrus product, he said, and the order turned over to relief agencies for distribution to the needy. The price to be paid for the juice would be nearly equal to the prevailing wholesale price.
